Eight years in Washington for Woodrow Wilson.

IT MUST BE TRUE

On the back of their campaign text-book, in the most prominent place they could put it except the front page cover, the Republicans have printed the following:

GREATER IMPORTS—LESSE REVENUE

Imports.

33 last months under Payne Tariff ... $4,677,817,286
33 first month under Underwood Tariff ... 5,318,282,073

Customs Duties Collected.

33 last months under Payne Tariff ... $868,111,975
33 first months under Underwood Tariff ... 629,756,431

An increase of $649,464,787 in imports in spite of 23 months of war. A loss of revenue amounting to $238,354,644.

This is splendid—for the Democrats. In the first 33 months under the Underwood Tariff the people of the United States were able to buy $640,000,000 more of foreign goods than they were in the last 33 months of the Payne Tariff.

They were also able and did export in the same period $1,150,000,000 more of merchandise than they did in the same period under the Payne Tariff, a gain of practically $500,000,000 in our favor in the balance of trade.

It is true that the government lost in customs duties in the first 33 months under the Underwood Tariff $238,000,000 as compared with the same period under the Payne Tariff, but that amount of money remained in the pockets of the people of the United States, for even the Republicans have not now the effrontery to claim that the "foreigner pays the tax."

But this loss of customs duties under the Underwood Tariff law is more than offset by the $274,000,000 that the government collected under the income tax provisions of that law. The money not collected by the government from customs duties was saved in a great measure to the ordinary citizens. The revenue collected as income tax was paid entirely by the well-to-do and wealthy.

The figures given such importance and display by the Republicans, when shown along with other figures necessarily allied to them, like exports to imports, revenue from tariff duties and revenue from income tax provisions of the tariff law, are unanswerable arguments for the wisdom and success of President Wilson's administration.

CHOATE'S TRIBUTE TO PRESIDENT WILSON

Republican's Praise of President Endorsed by Noted Editor.

Joseph H. Choate, ambassador to Great Britain in the McKinley and Roosevelt administrations, an ex-president of the American Bar Association, and long a leader of the American bar, and a leading Republican, writing in the Review of Reviews for January, 1915, paid high tribute to Wilson's administration's policies growing out of the war. He said:

"If we can maintain our neutrality and keep out of this war and at the same time prove ourselves friendly to all the nations engaged in it—as I think we shall under the wise and prudent conduct of President Wilson—the United States will, I believe, not only be called into consultation by the warring nations, when they are no longer able to keep up the fight, but will practically be able to dictate the terms of peace between them, one of which must, if possible, be an effectual guarantee against any future outbreak of the horrible spirit of militarism which has caused the present war.

And I am encouraged in this belief by reading the recent message of President Wilson and the annual reports of the Secretaries of War and of the Navy, which, taken together, appear to show a steadfast determination on the part of our Federal Government to have us prepared always for effectual self-defense

"Of course, the end of this war will see us by far the most powerful nation in the world, and if the policy pointed out by

A ROTTEN REPUBLICAN SHOW

—New York Evening World.

Secretary Daniels is pursued, we shall perhaps in the fullness of time become ourselves the mistress of the seas without incurring hostility or attack from any nation, and shall be the great factor of preserving universal peace."

Commenting editorially on Mr. Choate's letter, the editor of the Review of Reviews says:

"Surely, there is no more approved friend of international peace in our country than the Hon. Joseph H. Choate. Read then, what he writes in this number of the Review on our needs of efficient means of national defense. He is in a perfect agreement with what President Wilson has set forth in his message to Congress of December 8. For our part, President Wilson's words seem statesmanlike and noble. They are wholly compatible with strict and efficient attention to the business of getting the best results out of the vast expenditures for army and navy that are met by the taxpayers."

OUR COUNTRY'S "FICTITIOUS" PROSPERITY

The Central Trust Company of Illinois, Charles G. Dawes, formerly McKinley's Comptroller of the Currency, President, in its published report for September, reports:

For 1915-1916 exports greater; imports greater; balance of trade in our favor, $219,000,000. Merchant shipping makes new record; tonnage of American ships three times that of 1914. Financing by corporations more than doubled. Gross and net earnings of railroads greatly increased; idle cars August 1st, 11,000, against 265,000 a year ago.

Frank Carter, Vice-President of the Mercantile Trust Company, of St. Louis, says:

"One of the best reasons I know for saying that Woodrow Wilson should be re-elected is the unusual condition in banking circles in that there is no attention being paid to the election when extending credits, as has been the case in all previous presidential years. For a friend in Boston I called up three of the biggest companies in St. Louis to give them a big order in the steel business, and each one told me they had so much on hand it was impossible to take on any new business."

John M. Hodges of the Fort Dearborn National Bank, in an article headed "Prosperity to Stay With Us After the War," in the Chicago American, says:

"I believe that the railroads will have more freight and passenger business than they can handle, steamboats will have more tonnage than ever before, steel, woolen and cotton and saw mills and manufacturing operations will be on the most extensive scale ever known. At the end of the world-war's end every belligerent country will be confronted with the greatest demand for the products of the soil, loom, mill and factory. They will buy where they can get the goods quickest, and that market is America."

And steel common stock persists in going up. There is something very like ingratitude in some big business interests opposing the re-election of Wilson just because he does not allow them to dictate the policy of the American government.

THE WORLD WAR

ITS CAUSE AND ITS MEANING

By James F. Rogers, of Seim

The most gigantic, devastating war recorded in the annals of the human race, suddenly broke upon the world in the summer of 1914. Ten hundred million men and women—two-thirds of the human family—have been drawn into this titanic struggle. The few nations that have so far kept out of the conflict have done so only by the most careful diplomacy, based upon a settled determination to have no part in this welter of blood.

Satanic Mania Gripping the Nations

The world is staggering under the terrific blows already received from this war, and the end is not yet in sight. Millions of men have been slain on the blood-drenched battle fields. Other millions have been maimed for life. The great majority were in their prime. This frightful ruin has filled the world with more sorrowing relatives, fatherless children, and broken-hearted widows than has any other war of its length since the world began. And all the while, the armies continue to increase in numbers, until there are now thirty million men under arms.

It would seem that the terrible destruction already wrought would so appal the rulers of the nations involved that they would find some way to bring this mad struggle to an end. But it does not. The combatants apparently grow more furious and determined as the ruin increases. As one writer says, this war is "like some infernal dream devised by the imps of hell sitting in an eternity of inventive council."

Another says: "The rulers of nations are stupid. It would seem that they are blinded by the gods. It is as if madness is upon them, a fatuity incurable; a mania, fatal, malignant satanic."

The Record Speaks for Itself

One Good Term Deserves Another.

And still another declares that "such popular fury for fighting as appears to pervade Europe just now has the aspect of demoniacal possession. When a mob is crazed by war bulletins, we might as well argue with the Gadrene swine. The steeper the precipice, the more furiously the infatuated crowd rushes for it."
