ONE DAY IN CAMP

When it's reveille in the morning, Dear, my thoughts then turn to you.

Then to make the misery lighter, Love, my thoughts then turn to you

When it's five-fifteen in the morning and the bugler sounds first call,

And I step outside the barracks and everything is fresh with dew,

When it's seven-fifteen in the morning and the sick call then is heard

And the Sergeant yells "Outside," "Come now, one and all,"

You roll up your right sleeve and walk in without a word,

They jab a needle in your arm, and they make you like it, too,

When it's seven-thirty and drill call and everyone gets in line.

When I am tired, worn, and weary, just sore, through and through

Both of which the Engineers have never been known to shirk,

When it's one-fifteen in the afternoon, an unearthly sound is made

When it's five-thirty in the evening and retreat and all is done.

When it's ten o'clock at night and taps are blown so very low.

And all my thoughts are of one girl, whom I know is true,

-Written by I. G. Nelson, Co. B. 68 Eng. Camp Leach.

And I set and smoke my pipe and watch the setting of the sun,

I see a face in each ring, my Love, and of course, the face is you.

And I watch the smoke above the pipe forming rings so round and blue.

Then I go to sleep and dream, and all my dreams are then of you.

But, when the German stops his murdering and raiding on the sea,

And the submarines are all sunk and the German soldiers flee,

And the Kaiser doffs his helmet to the Old Red, White, and Blue,

With the rest of this victorious bunch, then I'll return to you.

And I come back to my quarters, then, of course, don't feel so blue.

It's nothing in the world but fatigue call, get a shovel or a spade,

But it makes the old pick lighter, Love, when my thoughts turn back to you

It makes it all seem lighter, Girl, for my thoughts turn to you.

It's squads right and four left, quick and double time.

When it's eleven-thirty and recall from both drill and work,

For now it's time for rest, so I just sit and think of you.

And I try to make this hilltop look like the valleys do,

ON WHICH SIDE DO YOU BELONG?

Why is it so difficult for people of different political opinions to credit great news organs, unfortunately in the opposition with honost intentions? Since representative government be afraid of anything new. gan there has always been two schools of political thought, the conservative alignment of the political forces of the and the liberal, or in more recent par- nation, which may have the greatest lance—the standpatter and the progressive. In the formation of our constitutional government these schools either way it blows, or are you going were represented by two pre-eminent to determine on which side you belong statesmen-Col. Alexander Hamilton and Thomas Jefferson. Hamilton believed that the majority of the people gation? were so liable to be swayed by passion or prejudice, that it was necessary to limit its power by all kinds of of State in Washington's cabinet, constitutional checks and executive openly expressed his sympathy for the prerogatives. He said there are only two governing principles among men, personal interest and force. On the invade France and restore order. The other hand, Jefferson believed in the rule of the majority, whether right cr unpleasant for Jefferson that he rewrong, and was loath to believe that signed his portfolio. Yet, later he was a majority of the people could not be trusted to do the right thing for their country. While holding such opposite to his ideas, and had he lived to this views, and while Jefferson did finally win out and impress upon our nation of self-government, than did Hamilton's followers, both men have gone down in history as great patriotic of events these days for the standpat-Americans who both helped shape the destinies of America, and lay the foundations for the great country which is today the hope of the world.

If the world had remained as it was a hundred and fifty years ago, there would probably been less need of progressives or radicals to keep urging changes in government to meet new conditions. For instance, the highways in those days were the navigable rivers and water courses, and the wagon roads. See how carefully the rights of navigation were guarded in the early days, and have remained so to this day. Since then, however, the railroads have become the real highways of the nation, and some of the greatest political battles of the West were fought to secure in the first in stance, government control by means lation and commiss during more recent years for the absolute government ewership, especially in the trunk lines.

he death blow will be dealt efforts to capitalize patriotism for partisan purposes? Observers here are beginning to see a break in what might be called the conscription of intellect. The hysteria that shouted "disloyalty" at any one who differed in opinion from the shouter had reached even to the congress of the United States. In a speech in the senate July 12 Senator Reed of Missouri flayed this practice and admonished his colleagues against denying the right of free speech to senators who might differ from the majority. He said:

"We ought to quit scolding each other because we venture to have an opinion. It is our business to have opinions, and we ought to quit challenging the good faith of members of this body.

"Mr. President, I have never read in history a story of such loyalty as is manifested throughout this entire land. I believe if we could do what the Almighty can do-open the heart of every man and every woman in this country-we should see there the story of a deathless love of country such as has never been engraven upon the hearts of any other people.

"There are a few people who may be disloyal; there are a few criminals orn every day; there is a certain perentage of criminals born on this earth in every country and clime, just as here is a certain percentage of the deformed and of the insane: but there is not as great a percentage of disloyalty in the United States today, in my judgment, as there is of insanity. "Look at the picture. We premulgate a law under which every boy or very man between 21 and 31 must eave his home at whatever sacrifice. They have left their homes; and you can count almost upon the fingers of your hand the numbers of those who resisted the draft. Four and a half million of them are in camps or are on their way to camps, and nearly 500,000 more have voluntarily joined the navy of the United States. I have visited some of these camps; I have heard the soldiers discuss their hardships with laughter on their lips; they jeer and laugh over their difficulties; they make light of them; and upon the tongue of every man I have talked with there has been one expression the desire that the order forward to France shall soon come, that he may be permitted to do his duty.

"YET YOU CONSTANTLY FIND A LOT OF CHEAP FELLOWS TRY solve. But thru it all, you can trace ING TO PROVE THAT THEY ARE LOYAL BY DENOUNCING EVERYthe standpatter and the progressive— LOYAL BY DENOUNCING EVERY-those who profited by the existing order and therefore placed their whole of the United States denounced for their disloyalty who, with tears in their eyes, have put their arms about their conditions and chances for ad- their first born and said, "It is your duty to enlist and follow the flag." Long before that hour can come your throne will totter, your scepter will be broken, the bloody sword will fall from your palsied hand, and your own enslaved people will rise to bless the flag that bears the emblem of America, for it will also be to them the emblem of liberty.'

Our Transportation Problems. Some of our national transportation problems and difficulties can be better understood when it is remembered that in the northeastern section of the United States, including New York, Pennsylvania, adjoining States, and New England, the population is 693 persons to every mile of railroad; and weeklies, refuse to study the problin the South the figures are 407 per sons per mile; and in the West, 252.

There are 15 square miles of land to every mile of railroad in the West, while in the East there is 1 mile of railroad to every 5 square miles of land. There are innumerable factories in this eastern theatre, and the bringing in of coal and raw material and the carrying out of manufactured products make up a tremendous freight

The Railroad Administration is solving gradually many problems. By the elimination of many unnecessary passenger trains several thousand engines are diverted from passenger to reight traffic, which relieves the situation materially. Also by loading the freight cars to full capacity a great saving is being accomplished. Routing freight by the most direct route, and other methods adopted by the administration, are doing much to ease he strain on our transportation facili-

United States Revenues. The internal-revenue collections for the fiscal year ending June 30 last totaled $3,672,000,000. The collections for the preceding year were $800,000,-000. This year's collections exceed by nearly $200,000,000 the estimates made when the war revenue measures were passed by Congress last year. Four thousand persons were employed in the work and the total cost of the collection was only $12,000,000. The patriotism roused by the war contributed largely to the success of the work, and the taxpayers assisted and cooperated with the Government.

A determined effort will be made to bring to book tax evaders in every part of the country. The Treasury already has evidence against a large number who have sought to evade taxes, and by checking up contracts and with other data the Government expects finally to discover and punish many tax evaders, as well as recover large amounts of revenue illegally withheld.

> A Boost For Rest Room. Mrs. Stella Woolf who appeared in Willmar with one of the show companies expresses her appreciation of Willmar's Rest Room.

"Having been a traveler for several years. I have had occasion to be in a great many different towns, but in none of them have I had the opportunity of enjoying a more homelike public rest room than the one supported in this town.
"It is certainly one of the most important assets of a country town to provide a rest room, for its ccuntry patrons and their tired children, but also to the traveler merely passing

"In some country towns I have taken notice the principal department store had the only available rest room, consequently the women and children went there to rest,-and incidentally they did their trading there as well. So it is reasonable to suppose that if a public rest room were provided by the town, there would not be such a strong incentive for the patronage of one store, simply because it provided this convenience.

"Willmar is very fortunate to have such a pleasant and congenial lady as it public rest room matron, and the writer spent several pleasant hours in her company. "We shall always remember Willmar as a thriving and up to date little city, and its rest room is certainly

A lucky escape was the exciting ex-perience of Miss Catherine Tew and Fred Hallin at Eagle Lake Sunday afternoon. They were about to cross the lake in their canoe but the strong wind blowing rendered the canoe unmanageable. When Miss Tew was about to change her position in the canoe, she lost her balance and fell backwards into the water. Fred, in an effort to control the boat, likewise was rocked out of it and found himself with the young lady chinning the water. It was, indeed, fortunate that the water was shallow and the participants of the experience fully realize

THICK, GLOSSY HAIR FREE FROM DANDRUFF

Girls! Try It! Hair gets soft, fluffy and beautiful—Get a small bottle of Danderine.

If you care for heavy hair that glistens with beauty and is radiant with life; has an incomparable softness and is fluffy and lustrous, try Danderine. Just one application doubles the beauty of your hair, besides it immediately dissolves every particle of dandruff. You can not have nice heavy, healthy hair if you have dandruff. This destructive scurf robs the hair in lustre, its strength and its very life, and if not overcome it produces a feverishness and itching of the scalp; the hair roots famish, loosen and die; then the hair falls out fast. Surely get a small bottle of Knowlton's Danderine from any drug store and just try it.
