NEGLECTING THAT

COLD OR COUGH?

Why, when Dr. King's New Discovery so promptly checks it

IT'S natural you don't want to be careless and let that old cold or cough drag on or that new attack develop seriously. Not when you can get such a proved successful remedy as Dr. King's New Discovery.

Cold, cough, gripe, croup does not resist this standard reliever very long. Its quality is as high today as it always has been—and it's been growing steadily in popularity for more than fifty years. 60c and $1.20 a bottle at all druggists. Give it a trial.

DEFECTIVE PAGE

"PIES"

By S. BROMBERG.

"Mother, how you make such wonderful pies is beyond me," said Tom. Mrs. W. smiled pleasantly at her only son. This wasn't the first time this little mother had been complimented by her son for her pies.

"I solemnly state on this apple pie in the presence of you and dad that I shall never marry a girl who can't come up to your pie baking standard."

Mr. W. laughed loudly, and said, "Tom, you keep quiet." Mrs. W. just said, "Go ahead, Tommy, get your mate, and leave it to me to teach her how to bake."

Taking a piece of pie, he kissed his mother and went off to the club.

"Oh, I hate it! Detest it! I never will know how to cook." With her hair all mussed up, tears streaming down her face and her hands sticky with dough, Mary A. sat down disgusted with cooking and baking pies.

Her mother came in, and upon seeing her, cried out, "Mary A., get up this instant. A young girl of eighteen should know better than to cry over such a trifle. Patience, my dear, you will know how to bake soon enough."

"But I don't want to know how," replied Mary. "I wasn't born to be a cook, anyway."

If there was any day Mary really detested it was Saturday, when her mother let her do all the cooking and baking for the entire day. It's true Mary made a pretty bad mess of things, but then if she really put her mind to it she could have been a little expert at it.

Mrs. A. saw that she couldn't do much of anything with Mary this afternoon, anyway, so she let her off. "Just wait, Mary dear, when Mr. Right comes along, and he's the kind who can be reached by the stomach, you will be mighty sorry that you didn't take my advice more like a dessert than a medicine."

Mary was hurrying home with eggs, and was just turning the corner when she collided with Thomas W. Down went the dozen of eggs, making a yellow stream on the young man's shoes and on her suit. When she came to, for she thought she had fainted, she was as red as a beet, and stood there begging his pardon and all that ceremony.

Tom meanwhile assured her that all was well, and wiped the egg off. All this happened to the amusement of the numerous passersby.

Everything appeared so funny for the moment that this youthful pair just couldn't keep back the peals of laughter and off they went after Tom secured Mary's permission to accompany her home. Mrs. A. saw them coming and walked over to the gate. Mary for the first time realized that they did not even know each other.

She explained everything to her mother, and good-natured Mrs. A. laughed heartily, and after names were exchanged, etc., she invited Tom to come down to dinner next Saturday. He thanked her for her kind invitation and promised to come.

Saturday was an ideal day for a stroll, Mary thought, but since "the egg hero" was coming down, she decided that she must help her mother with the cooking, much as she disliked it.

At 5:30 all was ready. Mary had telephoned for a few more friends to come also, so her mind being full of the coming dinner the day passed much faster than she thought a Saturday ever could. Wonder of wonders! To celebrate the event, the four apple pies she made were a success! In fact, the best she could ever wish for.

When they were all seated at the table Mrs. A. told about the eggs, and this caused the young people to ripple with laughter. Finally the pies came around. Tom took one bite, and decided then and there that he liked it. "Well, at last, Mrs. A.," he said, "I have found a pie equal to my Mother's. I must congratulate you."

She was about to say who deserved the honor, but noticing the grimaces on Mary's face decided to keep quiet. Tom was telling them about the pie pledge, to the immense enjoyment of those present. Mary turned a deep red, and Mrs. A. smiled again.

This friendship between the two developed in time into love, and one evening while walking through the woods Tom suddenly halted and looking squarely at Mary he said hesitatingly: "Mary, dear, surely you must realize how much I love you."

"Oh, but Tom, I can't cook, and you remember what you said about your pie pledge."

"You little dear, why that was only a joke. Do you think it would ever matter to me?" Tom said enthusiastically.

"Tommy, dear, really you didn't mean it!"

"No, sweetheart," he said.

On the way home Mary pulled near and said: "I have something to confess, Tom."

"Go ahead, dear," he said. "Fess up—I'll forgive you anything."

"Well, it was I who really made those apple pies that you liked," said she smilingly.

Tom laughed heartily. "As if you could deceive me," he lied bravely. "Why, the pie was so sweet that I couldn't help knowing you made it."

Pie is still a favorite in the W. household, and little Tom, junior, is his dad over again, even to eating pies. Yes, and Mary sure is a splendid little cook—yes, and she likes it too.
