of the coffee you buy adds to its value in the cup.

Lion Coffee

comes to you fresh and of full strength, always in sealed, air-tight packages. Bulk coffees lose their strength, deteriorate in flavor, and also gather dirt.

Uniformity, freshness and full strength are insured to users of Lion Coffee.

$3.00

Modern improvements in the manufacture of shoes have cut the cost in two. Ten years ago, five times five dollars would not have bought such shoes as we are now selling for $3.00.

We have high priced shoes to sell, but you won't wear so many of them if you carefully examine our Crossett $3 shoe. Come and see about it.

I Coughed

"I had a most stubborn cough for many years. It deprived me of sleep and I grew very thin. I then tried Ayer's Cherry Pectoral, and was quickly cured."
R. N. Mann, Fall Mills, Tenn.

Sixty years of cures and such testimony as the above have taught us what Ayer's Cherry Pectoral will do.

We know it's the greatest cough remedy ever made. And you will say so, too, after you try it. There's cure in every drop.

Three sizes: 25c., 50c., $1. All druggists.

Consult your doctor. If he says take it, then do as he says. If he tells you not to take it, then don't take it. He knows. Leave it with him. We are willing.

NEW ULM REVIEW.

WEDNESDAY, MAR. 25, 1903.

Henning Criticized.

Prof. Bosky, who takes an interest in subjects such as Dr. Henning lectured on at Turner hall Monday evening contributes the following criticism:

It was a complete disappointment to the earnest thinker who was looking for enlightenment. Only one luminous point was raised and that was that the definition of light should not necessarily be taken as identical with the general belief that light originates from burning bodies, like the sun, for instance.

The speaker tangled himself up in contradictions from the beginning. He said, "The world is making progress" and in the same breath he states that that people today are given more to buying dime novels than to reading such progressive literature as Darwin.

He admits that the Jewish biblical story of the creation is identical with the older Babylonian story, and goes even so far as to say that a still older race of people had also a story of the creation covering the Bible history.

It is astonishing that in spite of the admission of such creation theories, leaving no doubt about their genuineness, the honesty of old savants and philosophers who reported to us what they knew about the creation, is doubted and the modern scientist still try to belittle the very foundation of their doctrines.

Mr. Henning said absolutely nothing about the forces, the power which was behind any creative act, which alone is inseparable from the subject. What gave the impulse for the creation—for any creation?

Dr. Henning overlooked the meaning of Tiamat (the woman, "Earth" and Mar-bue, the father, "Light"). He had not courage to draw the conclusion that the intercourse of both caused spirit.

By what right does Mr. Henning, or the scientists who speak through him, question the authority of the Jewish story of the creation when he admits that of the Babylonian. Could there be any stronger argument for the former than that the Babylonian is older and the two are identical with one that is still older? Should we not rejoice that through the Jews we became acquainted with the true theory, which has come down to us through 3000 years. Had it not been for this we would now be getting our first lessons of the creation through Babylonian discoveries. The fact that we have an account of the creation from the Jews proves that they were smartest, which reached its climax in the appearance of the great philosopher Christ among them.

Dr. Henning mentioned the prophet, Amos, the courageous man who called attention to the corruption in public life, through cultivating the material instead of the spiritual side of life. How much superior in intellect must Amos have been, when he could muster courage to oppose existing rules, 3000 years ago and have it known today. Who is the man of this age whose name and voice will be heard 3000 years hence in the same respect?

Dr. Henning mentions the struggle between the upper and the under waters (Tiamat vs. Mar-bue) and states that to end the struggle, "a bolt was put between them." Who put the bolt between them? The "between" is the firmament between our planets and other planets. He mentions that the germs of life come from this water, from the ocean so created. He says nothing about intelligent life; from whence comes that? He does not say that intelligence started with ignorance; but he admits that nothing can be lost.

After constructing such a solid foundation, namely, the identity of the earliest creation theories as a result of the researches and investigations of modern science, Mr. Henning jumps again into the unknown and says, "The days of faith are past, the light of modern science leads you to surer light than the light of ancient tradition which these same scientists so persistently use in the construction of their own theories."

That Mr. Henning ridiculed the church was in bad taste when he so contradicted himself. The times are such that we have to use tolerance. Thought, today is rapidly developing, and we are on the verge of overthrowing many old, preconceived theories. The intense struggle for an existence in this great, living nature, leaves many with little time to think on subjects of this nature, and we help here only through a spirit of kindness and love towards each other.

"Light" was the only "ideal" held out by Mr. Henning worth striving for. What is light to a tired coal miner coming home from work? What is light to me, in the full heat of summer?

If I size up "light" as Mr. Henning undoubtedly puts it, from the viewpoint that the oldest known creation theory is identical with the biblical theory and the theories of modern science, then I cannot possibly find the connecting link to the authority which inspired him to say that "faith is vanishing." Mr. Henning seems to confound church and religion. He also talks of progress and admits that three thousand years ago they knew as much or more than we do. He does not say a word about the influences which hinder most people from seeing light; he says only we shall in due time see it. Who?

His pleasing address was a fine shell around a worriment and I doubt if any listener got any enlightenment on a theory which demonstrates itself in reality every day in our lives with every new birth. It was a thinking being which formed my creation and it was a thought of a superior being which created the body on which my body lives.

As wholesome as I consider such lectures, I should think opportunity should be given for asking questions of the lecturer at the close of the meeting.

Ed. Bosky.

THE STOMACH IS THE MAN.

A weak stomach weakens the man, because it cannot transform the food he eats into nourishment. Health and strength cannot be restored to any man or weak woman without first restoring health and strength to the stomach. A weak stomach cannot digest enough food to feed the tissues and revive the tired and run down limbs and organs of the body. Kodol Dyspepsia Cure cleanses, purifies, sweetens and strengthens the glands and membranes of the stomach, and cures indigestion, dyspepsia and all stomach troubles. E. A. Pfeifferle.

Growing out of the visit of Senator Tillman to Minneapolis where he delivered a lecture on the race question in one of the Baptist churches, the Tribune of that city has a most sensible editorial on the question. While the senator's address exceeded the bounds of reason and was so bitterly uncompromising, it shows that there is a reason for the feeling that exists in that section of the United States, and if it is quieted or even abated it will have to be done by the people of the south and it is doubtful if they, with all their knowledge of the colored man will be able to solve the question. People in this northern country have no conception of the feeling that exists there and when they do awake to the condition that the north has imposed on the south by reason of the fifteenth amendment, which Senator Tillman has so bitterly denounced, it will be to discover that the whole theory is wrong. Such men as Mr. Tillman do the cause of the white man in the south no good, and if the negro ever dominates the south as he will some day, if he is given all the privileges to which he is entitled, it will be to the exclusion of every white man, more because of this bitter opposition than for any other reason. It is impossible that a negro will permit a white man to rule over him when he has the power to have one of his own color, and when the time comes it will either be the complete domination of the negro or his total dispersion. There will never come a time in this country when the negro will have the full rights and benefits that accrue to the white citizens in any considerable numbers.

The drying up of what was once the large lake called Swan lake and the dividing of it into farms may be a good thing for the farmers in the immediate vicinity, but that in connection with the same condition that prevails with other lakes all over the state is one of the worst things that can happen to the country. The ditching and draining of these lakes is working an injury to the state that will never be overcome. People wonder why it is that the lakes dry up and the streams are running low. It is simply because the natural waterways that have fed these places, from the formation of the country, are obstructed by man, and no other provision made. Man can never improve on nature with any certain degree of success, his attempts have always proven to be more or less of a failure, and more frequently dismal failures. The building of railroad grades and of wagon roads and the ditching of low places in the farms, thus diverting the water into new channels, is the principal reason why many of the lakes are going dry and the seasons in this state are each year becoming more and more uncertain. The drying up of a body of water as large as that once represented by Swan lake means the taking out of the air a large per cent of moisture, and when it is considered that it is only one of the many lakes that are disappearing it cannot long be wondered why conditions in this state are changing. The small lakes are almost as important to the state as the forests, and perhaps more.

As a result of the early rain which came before the frost was out of the ground, added to the wet season of last year, the sloughs and low places are filled with water and it looks as though much of the land that has been cultivated on many of the farms would be unfit for cultivation when the season arrives for sowing grain. There is more water standing on the ground than has been noticed for several years.

OUR RUGS

Yes, appreciated by everybody.

The reason is that many times a rug is more preferable than a carpet.

They make house cleaning easier.

A rug is a complete design in itself, therefore they present a more cosy and artistic aspect which is more pleasing to the eye.

A large percentage of people are buying rugs every year.

We offer you a most complete line of Good Wearing Rugs in all styles and sizes.

Our prices are within reach of all.

"I bought this can of coffee from you and it is absolutely worthless."

"Can't help that, sir."

"But you guaranteed the can."

"Exactly, but I didn't guarantee the coffee—couldn't, its one of the cheap brands, but not in price."

Wife—"I advised you to buy

Pfefferle's Bulk Coffees.

They are always fresh and right. Cost no more, but are one hundred per cent better."

You don't pay for the can, but receive honest value. Our customers like them, our competitors fear them. Prices 12, 15, 20, 25, 30, 35 and 40c a pound. Why pay 30 to 35 cts for coffee when you can get just as good coffee at our store for 20c

BABY BEEF.

We were fortunate enough to secure a number of choice corn-fed beef cattle; and these being only about 14 months old are termed "Baby Beef" cattle; the beef of which is in enormous demand at fancy prices in all large cities.

We have concluded to give the people of New Ulm the advantage of this purchase, and so have decided to keep these cattle for home consumption.

The first of this "Baby Beef" will be on sale, Saturday, March 14th, 1903, at reasonable prices. We invite all lovers of good meat to try this meat; as one trial will be enough to convince you to be a customer of ours. All other fresh and smoked meats and sausages at our market are of the very best quality, at reasonable prices.
