

CONTAGIOUS BLOOD POISON

KING OF ALL DISEASES

To Contagious Blood Poison rightfully belongs the name King of all diseases. It is the most powerful of all human ailments—corrupting every part of the body and wrecking and ruining the lives of those unfortunate enough to contract it. When the first sign appears in the form of an insistent sore or ulcer, few persons realize that the deadly virus has entered the blood; but so potent is the poison that one drop will vitiate and pollute the purest and healthiest blood, and in a short time the degrading and horrid symptoms begin to appear. The mouth and throat ulcerate, the glands of the neck and groins swell, the hair and eye-brows fall out, copper-colored spots appear on the body, and in the latter stages of the disease the poison works down and destroys the bones. No other disease is so highly contagious, and many have contracted it and suffered its awful consequences through a friendly hand-shake, handling the clothing of one afflicted with the same vessel. S. S. S., The King of Blood Purifiers, is the only cure for Contagious Blood Poison. It goes down into the circulation and forces out every particle of the virus. It is nature's antidote for this peculiar poison, and cures the disease in all its stages, and cures it permanently. S. S. S. does not hide or cover up any of the poison to break out in future years, but so completely eradicates it from the blood that no signs are ever seen again. S. S. S. is purely vegetable, we offer $1,000 for proof that it contains a particle of mineral of any kind. Book with instructions for home treatment and any medical advice you desire will be furnished by our physicians at no charge.

HONGKONG'S ROCKEFELLER
Simple Business Habits of One of the Richest of Asia's Merchants.

They have multimillionaires in China and some of them live the simple life notwithstanding their wealth. A recent magazine article gives a striking feature of the richest Chinaman in Hong Kong—one of the richest merchants in Asia. He owns steamship lines, sugar refineries, quarries and what not; the offices of his clerks are fitted up with typewriters, roller-top desks, index cabinets and all the paraphernalia of an up-to-date business, yet he himself retains his old-fashioned habits. But says the article: "In a little back room, about the size of a New York boarding house hall bedroom, in one of the oldest and largest commercial houses in Hong Kong, and in all Asia, works an old, bright-eyed celestial. He is tall and bony, and his long, lean fingers are tipped with pointed, well kept nails protruding an inch or more beyond the flesh. His head is high and bald. A few scattering hairs bristle from his upper lip. A pig-tail, (of the finest quality obtainable) hangs down his back. His lips are thin and his mouth is straight, but not hard. His whole expression is kindly if not beaming when he looks up. He wears a plain gown of good but not elegant texture. There is nothing to indicate distinction in his appearance. He sits on a high stool in front of a high old-fashioned desk, such as bookkeepers use who have to move about freely while at work. In one hand the long fingers grasp a brush-pen, which speeds with lightninglike rapidity over the pages of a great book, his other hand the while manipulating the beads of an abacus."

PRINTS BY ELECTRIC LIGHT

Postal Cards Turned Out Automatically by New Photographic Device.

A novel electric apparatus has been brought out in Belgium for producing photographic prints. It applies to bromide prints, which are made by artificial light, and is especially useful for turning out such prints in the shape of postal cards, producing the latter automatically and in quantities.

The operation of the apparatus is simple. An automatic device applies the paper from a roll or magazine against the negative, then an incandescent lamp is turned on for a time, which has been previously adjusted once for all in the case of a given negative. After the exposure the lamp is turned off and the paper is removed from the negative and goes into a dark box, then a fresh piece of paper is applied and so on.

The apparatus is set so as to give a certain number of prints from a given negative and each printing operation causes a ratchet wheel to advance one point. At the end of the printing an electric bell is rung by the ratchet device. By means of a rheostat the time of the exposure can be adjusted from one to 200 seconds. The whole is operated by a battery of four small accumulators.

ELECTRIC LIQUID HEATER.

Recent Invention That Can Be Used for Various Household Purposes.

Eventually electricity will be used for practically all purposes, luxuries as well as necessities. Among the former class is the recent invention of a Massachusetts man—an electric heater for heating and boiling liquids, for cooking and similar purposes.

The receptacle can be varied in design to suit the individual tastes, either elaborate or simple. Incased in a false bottom of the receptacle is the heating apparatus, the current being supplied from an adjacent incandescent lamp fixture, through a wire running through the handle. Obviously by simply turning on the current the heating apparatus is set in motion, an additional advantage being the ease of carrying the receptacle to any place desired, and limited only by the length of the wire. Such an apparatus would be of invaluable use in the sick chamber or for the infant.

Power from City Sewage.
"Electrical development challenges prophecy," writes Edward B. Elliott in the March Technical World Magazine. "Fifteen years ago a man who predicted that it would be possible to deliver to Chicago, at the city limits, 31,000 horse-power of electrical energy developed by water power, would have been regarded as a foolish dreamer. Yet next November there will be ready for the municipalities in the sanitary district 15,000-horse power developed from the drainage canal—which carries off all the city sewage—and, after the completion of the plant, the full amount above mentioned—more than the city of Chicago and the other municipalities can possibly take."

Tall Wireless Mast.
A steel tower 400 feet high is being erected at Machrihanish, on the Kintyre coast of Argyllshire, for the transmission of Marconi signals across the Atlantic. From this tower it will be possible to hold communication with all vessels suitably fitted between Great Britain and North America.
