PACIFIC FLEET WELL ON ITS WAY

Heading for the Windward Passage at 12½ Knots an Hour.

Aboard the Flagship, U. S. S. New Mexico, July 20.—The Pacific fleet, which today left Old Point Comfort for its new station under the shadow of the Sierras, tonight was well started on its 5,000-mile cruise.

Steaming at an economical cruising speed of 12½ knots, the dreadnoughts under the command of Admiral Rodman, with two tenders, today held a course about due south for the Windward passage, and at 6 o'clock were 35 miles off Diamond shoals light and 150 miles from Fortress Monroe.

The fleet had scarcely rounded Cape Henry when Admiral Rodman directed the score of destroyers to proceed at a 15-knot speed, while the dreadnoughts, which had steamed out of Hampton Roads in single file were ordered into a line abreast. Night found the destroyers well in advance of the heavier craft, and it is expected they will reach the Panama canal

The Highlands Large Elberta Peach Orchard as Seen by News Man

Six thousand acres in peach trees. Did you ever notice a peach tree loaded with ripening fruit? Then stop for a minute, and picture the scene as you would imagine it.

A News' man, in company with several friends, had the pleasure Sunday of seeing the entire orchards and packing sheds of the Highlands Elberta Peach orchard, which are located in Pike county, near Murfreesboro.

This large orchard is controlled by Bert Johnson, who is well known all over the United States for his peaches and other farm products. This orchard, which is said to be the largest one in the world, and we can testify that it is the prettiest that we have ever seen. It is hard to realize just how large the orchard is without seeing it with your own eyes, and driving through it. The trees are well cultivated, and the ground is clean. Running all through the orchard are streets and avenues, all named and numbered, such as Main, Highlands, and various other names, while the avenues are numbered. It reminds one of a city. Mr. Johnson keeps all the streets in good condition and one can drive in any direction that they desire. In the way of farm and orchard machinery, he has the very latest, using tractor graders, and cultivators, besides the many head of horses and mules. He uses a large number of large auto trucks of the very latest styles for his use.

The company's grading machines were of great interest to us, this automatically assorting the peaches and rolling them over and over so the inspectors may investigate them for faulty fruit. The machines make it possible for four men to do the work of twenty men in culling the peaches and distributing them to the packers.

Another plant of interest was the canning factory, also owned and operated by the company, where all the faulty or over ripe peaches are canned and placed on the markets. It is estimated that three hundred and fifty women are employed in this plant during the canning season. The plant is also used to can many other products which are grown on the farm, such as sweet potatoes, beets, and many other kind of fruit and vegetables. The company specializes in growing turnips, and Mr. Johnson has made the company famous by canning turnip greens.

About ten or twelve years ago this great orchard was started with less than one hundred acres, and its constantly increasing acreage and never failing crops give convincing proof that "anything under the sun will grow, successfully, in Southwest Arkansas."

The company have every convenience on the place for their employees in the way of living quarters. Besides numerous homes for men with families, they have five large hotels, which accommodate hundreds of men. Near these hotels they have large, concreted swimming pools of clear and pure water. They have telephones connecting all points of the orchard with the head office, and the building and streets corners are lighted with electricity, all from the company's power house.

The social welfare of the employees have not been overlooked. Churches and school houses have been provided and are built in the most thickly populated centers on the farm.

While the fruit was not ripening to any great extent, only a few cars a day was being shipped, but by the latter part of this week it will be in full force, and all labor available will be needed in harvesting the crop. Several hundred, perhaps several thousands of men were on the ground, some working and some waiting for the big drive to begin.

Besides the Johnson orchard, there are several other orchards in the vicinity. Blevins is said to have over 400 acres in Elbertas, while Tokio, Murfreesboro, Bingen, and other villages and towns in Pike county have orchards of a fair size.

It is said the output of the Johnson orchard alone will amount to over one million dollars this year.

We traversed Little River, Sevier, Howard and Pike counties, and as a whole the crop conditions look good. In Howard and Sevier the corn and cotton, especially the corn show signs of needing rain, and in many places the corn is burned pretty badly. In the vicinity of Ben Lomond, ten miles north east of here, is the prettiest crops that we have seen for several years. One can stand at the top of the hill just before going down into Little River bottom, and see hundreds of acres of land, as level as a floor, all planted to corn, cotton and alfalfa, and especially the alfalfa is very beautiful and fine. The crops on this side the river, in this county, are good, and are not suffering very much for rain, and we should think that Little River county will have a bumper crop in both corn and cotton.

The farmers who have early corn report fine corn crops. The early bird caught the worm in planting corn this year.

FOCH REQUESTS ENGLAND TO BE READY FOR WAR

In the Midst of Celebration of Return of Peace, Allied Supreme Commander Talks of Next War.

London, July 21.—"The next time, England will be in the same position as the last time. She will not be ready, and we will have to wait for her."

Thus Marshal Foch is quoted as saying in an interview the Daily Mail published here today.

The marshal, however, paid the highest tribute to the British army, but insists that Great Britain maintain large reserves in military materials.

"The next war will be more than ever one of machinery," Marshal Foch is quoted as having said. "You should have laboratories, with inventors always working, to keep abreast of the mechanical side of war."

And They Celebrate Peace.

London, July 21.—Nineteen thousand allied soldiers, picked men from the famous combat divisions the names of which are written in large letters on the pages of the history of the world war, marched today in the celebration of the return of peace. The parade was six miles long, and it required more than an hour to pass a given point.

King George, and the members of the royal family, army and navy officers and the leaders of both houses of parliament, reviewed the veterans from the Buckingham palace and returned the warriors' salutes.

The line of marchers was arranged alphabetically. The Americans, headed by General Pershing, 33 officers and 1,100 men, lead the procession, and next came Field Marshal Haig and five thousand British veterans.
