

SOCIETY and CLUBS

MARY B. OFFUTT

FEBRUARY.

The snow has left the cottage top;
The thatch-moss grows in brighter green;
And eaves in quick succession drop, Where glistening icicles have been;
Platting with a pleasant noise In tubs set by the cottage door; While ducks and geese, with happy joys, Plunge in the ward-pond, brimming o'er.

The sun peeps through the window-pane;
Which children mark with laughing eye;
And in the wet street steal again,
To tell each other spring is night; Then, as young hope the past recalls;
In playing groups they often draw,
To build beside the sunny walls; Their springtime huts of sticks or straw.

And oft in pleasure's dreams they lie Round homesteads by the village side Scratching the hedgerow mosses by Where painted pots shells abide;
Mistaking the ivy spray For leaves that come with budding spring.
And wondering, in their search for play,
Why birds delay to build and sing.

The mavis thrush with wild delight, Upon the orchard's dripping tree, Mutter, to see the day so bright, Fragments of young hope's poetry.

dar," in "The Year Book of Daily Recreation and Information," by William H. Bone.

DISINTERRED BABYLON

FORGOTTEN GLORIES OF CITY OF NEBUCHADNEZZAR
(By Edmund Chandler in London Times).

By the Tigris and Euphrates mortality is the most obvious thing that meets the eye as one rides abroad, but the dead of dead things is this Mesopotamian waste in Babylon.

Nineteen years ago, when I visited the site, the ground was barely scratched by the professional excavator who the robbers of bricks had been busy quarrying there for centuries.
The excavations were begun by the German archaeologists in March, 1899, and from 200 to 250 workmen were employed daily, winter and summer, until the war put an end to the work.
The greater part of the city which the Germans have brought to light belonged to the comparatively modern period of Nebuchadnezzar (604-561 B.
C.); but there are traces in the ruins left by the Sargonid Kings (C. 722-705 B. C.), and successive strata revealed the streets and houses built by succeeding dynasties of the Assyrian, Neo-Babylonian, Persian, and Graeco-Parthian periods. Also there are relics that prove a prehistoric Babylon, but it is impossible to carry excavations down to that depth owing to the rise in the water level.
The city walls of Nebuchadnezzar are a triple rampart. Two teams of four horses abreast could pass each other on the outer barrier. The whole circuit, according to the evidence of the excavations, was 11 1/4 miles, but Ctesias gives four times, and Herodotus nearly five times, this circumfer-ence. The excavators have followed the line of the Kasr Roadway, a main street which leads to the Ishtar Gate made by Nebuchadnezzar as a processional road for the great God Marduk, to whose temple of Esagila it leads. The walls of the Ishtar Gate and 40 feet above the Ishtar Gate are covered with figures of bulls and dragons in brief relief. There is little else that is decorative to catch the uninitiated eye at Babylon. The silver and gold and precious stones with which the Babylonians filled the temple of Esagila are forgotten. The images have been removed, the double doors of cedarwood overlaid with compex.

It is hard to tell whether one is standing on the roof or the floor at Babylon. The roofs of one period became the foundations of the next. But in a general way in spite of the superimposed strata, the Babylonians ruled that have trodden one another down, the identification of sites in Babylon is easier than in most buried cities. And this is due to the inscriptions on the bricks and tablets. For the Kings of Babylonians were providentally vain. They left their stamp everywhere in no uncertain characters. Sardanapalus invoked curses on the head of whoever should destroy the records of his name. "Him may Marduk, the King of All, behold with wrath, and destroy his name and his seed in the land." Nebuchadnezzar caused a legend to be inscribed on every brick glorifying his works. On the edge of each slab under the Ishtar Gate was an inscription which was destined to remain hidden and invisible until turned over by the curious excavator after 25 centuries had gone.
"Nebuchadnezzar, King of Babylon, son of Nabopolassar, King of Babylon, am I. The Babel Street I paved with blocks of Shadup-stone for the proce-sion of the great Lord Marduk, Marduk, Lord grant eternal life."

Nebuchadnezzar, speaking in the bricks of a protective wall he built in Euphrates, says: "I raised its foundation on the depth of the waters. Its top I exalted like the wooded mountains." He was familiar, it seems, with the existence of mountains. And to my mind this is the most wonderful thing about Babylon, that these Kings, with all the wealth and resources they could command, should have chosen to live in their freight by the Euphrates. For thousands of years the greatest sovereigns of the earth selected for choice the climate of Hell.

The millions of stamped bricks and the thousands of inscribed ones have preserved the name of the great King as enduringly as he could have wished.
But he is forgotten by the people of the land. All his bricks and memorials are in vain. Even the Lord Marduk is as dead as his Royal suppliant and protector. With neither name could one conjure up the haunting local spirit or awaken a shadow of reverence or awe. Persia, Parthia, Greece, and Rome have passed since, and are barely remembered.

An auspicious occasion was the birthday party of the Arkansas Valley Chapter, D. A. R., on Tuesday afternoon when Mrs. J. H. H. Low and Mrs. W. R. Bryant entertained the members in the home of Mrs. Harold Low. The affair having been planned to celebrate the twentieth anniversary of the chapter. The precious charter framed in wood from the first iron works west of the Susquehanna, built by Col. George Ashman and Thomas Cromwell in 1785, hung upon the wall, as well as the rare service flag of the chapter made by Mrs. W. R. Bryant, bearing twenty-nine stars which included two gold ones and three crosses for Red Cross service, one for work overseas. At the far end of the spacious living room the wonderful flag of Pueblo Post No. 2, American Legion, presented by the chapter during the war, hung its colors in glory, stirring all hearts, as did also the smaller silk flag of the chapter. Cut glass vases filled with vivid red carnations and ferns brightened the rooms and crowned the handsomely appointed table in the dining room which was the cynosure of all eyes with its royal birthday cake with adornings of Colonial blue, bearing twenty red candles.
Here, Mrs. Forest Rutherford, Mrs.
Belle Rollins Reid and Mrs. Mary B.
Offutt presided happily.

Brief words of tribute to Mrs. Martha J. Noble, the first regent of the Arkansas Valley Chapter, whose memory is an inspiration, were spoken by Mrs.
Mary B. Offutt, the regent, who expressed regret also that Mrs. John Albert Thatcher, one of the charter members, could not be present. The four charter members present were:
Mrs. Belle Rollins Reid, Mrs. Leslie Rutherford, Mrs. Walter N. Leslie, Mrs. J. H. H. Low. The gem of the program was the paper, "History of the Chapter," read in a comprehensive manner by Mrs. Belle Rollins Reid who knows so well the deeper meaning of the D. A. R. The lovely program as a whole follows:

Thousands of Americans at this time of the year are taking the only ocean trip which can be made on a railroad train. They are going to Key West by way of the line which runs West from the Atlantic ocean on an embankment built from one to another of those tiny islands known as the Florida Keys.

As you ride along this remarkable railroad, you can look out the window and down into the clear shallow water and see great schools of fish playing near the surface, and deeper down you can glimpse now and then the shadowy form of a small shark.
On either side of you reaches away to the horizon a vast expanse of brilliant blue water, dotted with islands, which vary in size from a fraction of an acre, to perhaps a quarter of a square mile. They are low and flat and covered with low-growing mangroves, and other swamp plants. Here and there a group of coconut or royal palm lifts a feathery silhouette. Occasionally a little shack is glimpsed, and a few sails are seen in the distance, but for the most part the region is a wilderness of blue water, white sand and low-growing jungle—a wilderness that you would love to explore in a small boat.

Of life you see little. Now and then white flocks of ibises rise from the islands; a tree duck spatters clumsily away from the train, or a great blue heron trails his legs in lonely dignity across the sky. For the most part, silence and sunlight own the place—

By JAMES STEPHENS
In Dublin town the people see Gorgeous clouds so gorgeously They are finer, I declare, Than the clouds of anywhere.

A swirl of blue and red and green, A stream of blinding gold, a sheen From silver hill to silver hill, Comes each evening on the bridge.

So when you walk in a field, look down, Lest you tramp on a daisy's crown;
But in the city look always high And watch the beautiful clouds go by.
