AN ATTEMPT MADE TO BLOW UP STATUE OF FREDERICK THE GREAT

BARRETT ROSE HIS PLACE.

Barrett Will Probably Not Maintain Minister to Panama.

Washington, Jan. 10.—There is a strong probability that as one step toward simplifying the administration of affairs in the canal zone the function of Minister Barrett will be consolidated with those of the governor of the canal zone. A recommendation to this effect has been made to Secretary Taft and to Secretary Hay and it is probable that the recommendations will be adopted in view of the fact that to make a change would involve no new legislation. The immediate result of such action would be the vacation by Mr. Barrett of his post as minister to Panama and the assumption of the duties of that place by Major General George B. Davis, the governor in the canal zone. The change would result in the saving of the sum of $15,000 per annum involved in maintaining the American legation at Panama and in other economies. Negro Hurling Bomb from Monument Just a Second Before it Exploded

Police Working Hard on the Case

Washington, Jan. 10.—An attempt was made today to blow up the large statue of Frederick the Great, which stands in the grounds of the Army war college.

A soldier on duty saw a strange man walk rapidly away from the statue and quickly jump in a carriage. The soldier pursued the man, but he was speedily outdistanced, the man driving the team unusually fast.

At the same time a colored man, who was passing the grounds, observed the incident and he hurried to the statue. After looking over it for a few seconds he observed hanging from one of the arms, a smoking object. He was at first afraid to touch it, but after realizing that it would probably destroy the statue, he quickly grabbed it and hurled it away as far as he could.

Secretly he hit the ground when a terrible explosion was heard, the object being to be a bomb. The bomb made a terrible noise when it exploded, and dozens of windows in the soldiers quarters, quite a distance away, were broken, and other slight damage done.

Police officers were soon notified of the affair and they are making every effort possible to apprehend the man. They are interrogating all lackeys of the city and hope in this way to ascertain which lackey contained the man. Several detectives have been put to work on the case and it is believed that the man will be captured.
