During nights, between the recent fair days and the Fourth, residents in the neighborhood of the City Park complained of disturbance in their nights' rests by some hilariously inclined individuals who seemingly think that keeping patients in the hospital and other peace loving people disturbed long after midnight, is good pastime, but others do not like it, therefore the practice should be stopped and most likely will be from this on.

Orchard and Garden

LEROY CADY
Associate Horticulturist
University Farm, St. Paul.

Water gladioli frequently as soon as buds begin to set.

Copenhagen cabbage is one of the best for late use.

The wild cucumber is said to carry the mosaic disease, which injures the cultivated varieties.

Now is a good time to make up a list of bulbs for indoor and outside planting this fall.

Arsenate of lead sprayed on cabbage plants at any stage of growth relieves them of cabbage worms. Paris green and lime are also good.

Apples ranked ninth in the list of farm crops in the United States in 1919. The total value was equal to that of rice, rye, buckwheat and flaxseed combined.

Do not let too many melon vines grow in one hill. Thin, cultivate and fertilize for best results.

Now is a good time to give some attention to the appearance of public highways in the community. There should be trees and some plantings of shrubbery at places where they will not interfere with traffic.

CHANCE TO TRY OUT STATION WINTER WHEATS.

The Minnesota Experiment Station at University Farm is this year growing increased plots of two new varieties of winter wheat, Minhardt and Minutki, which have outyielded the best varieties of spring wheat by an average of about five bushels to the acre the last three years. Farmers who are interested in giving these varieties a trial should write T. E. Odland, secretary of the Minnesota Crop Improvement association, University Farm, St. Paul, Minnesota. The station is especially anxious to get these wheats in the hands of farmers who will grow them under such conditions that the crop can be sold for seed next year.

Enigmatical.

"I hear your 'wet' speech was very moving." "I was assured there wasn't a 'dry' eye in the house."

Every Saturday Night.

Slangley—"You gotta hand it to my wife." Smart—"You mean you do; I don't."—Boston Transcript.

The All-Prent Thought.

"Aren't you interested in saving daylight?" "I am more concerned in hoarding up moonshine."

Depends.

"Don't you think it is a farce for a woman to smoke?" "It is more of a tragedy if she's on fire."

A Contradiction.

"The singer kept on the even tenor of his way." "How could he do that when he is a baritone?"

Just Now.

"Don't you think a man who keeps on drinking is disgusting?" "No; I think he's wonderful."

The Reason.

"What a free manner he has." "No wonder. He is a constitutional dead-head."

When He Died, He Died All Over.

"Doggone!" said Jesse Eschbach, chief examiner for the state board of accounts, as he read one of the letters in his mail. "Here is one."

The letter told of a man who had paid his dog tax to the township assessor and the ungrateful cur had gone and died. The dog died before the assessor had turned in his books to the county assessor and the inquirer wished to know whether there was any way to get back the dog tax.

"The cruel law," Mr. Eschbach will reply, "states that taxes are paid on property owned March 1."

"That'll raise a howl!" he added verbally.—Indianapolis News.

REWARD OFFERED.

Robbers on the evening of July 3rd to the morning of the Fourth of July stole one tire stool with new rellner and rim and all, one grease gun and one adjustable auto wrench and handy wrench set, all for Overland car, while it was stalled on the road three quarters of a mile south of Warren, and one pump with brass finishing, and one Eveready fiber case Daylows flashlight, 5 1/4 inches.
