SHALL WE PLAY CARDS?

Rev. Scudder Lectures on a Difficult Subject to a Crowded Church. That Rev. Scudder's course of practical church lectures is proving attractive, was evident in the crowd that filled the church last night; occupying even the aisles and the vestibule. His topic was Shall We Play Cards? and the text, Psalm xl, 9: "I have preached righteousness in the layer protection of the process of the proces

When, as in our first lecture, we discussed purely innocent and healthful amusements, we had plain sailing. Now and then we shall ship a heavy sea, and before we get through this lecture course some of you who have bad habits are certain to be sick. True religion is opposed to everything that is sinful and degrading, and the one supreme law it lays down as covering this class of amusements is this: If indulgence in any particular sport or diversion tends to drag you down, you have no right to indulge therein. You are violating your conscience and injuring your In the realm of morals, if your right hand offends you, you must cut it off. What is temptation to one man is not to another, and it is each man's duty to study himself and act in accordance with the general law I have mentioned. The church cannot legislate for all and lay down any iron rule in this matter, for each man's conscience is the supreme court of appeal, and to God alone must each one render an account for the deeds done in the body. I have my opinion, however, and to this you are welcome. Card play-ing, billiards, dancing and theater-going have in point of fact been the agencies in many cases of leading people astray, although at the same time it must be condiversions and yet have not forsaken the path of virtue. The reason why these amusements have been called questionable is in view of the facts that card-playing has in numberiess instances led on to gambling, billiards to drinking, and dancing and the theater to debauchery. Many of those who have fallen point back to these amusements as the occasion of their fall. Now, if, as a public instructor occupying this sacred desk, I am asked by a sea of earnest, youthful faces what is the proper course to pursue, not knowing your individual temperaments, surroundings and liabilities to eir, I say most emphatically that the old Puritan way of abstinence in which I was brought up is the only way that is abso-It may be a narrow-gauge road perhaps, but it is a safe road nevertheless, and I am not afraid to recommend it. went to ruin. Looking at society as it is to-day, I find that the broad-gauge road is very popular however, and that multitudes of our young people are traveling upon it. They don't care to consult ministers, or any one else for that matter. Under these circumstances it would be folly to open quarrel with them, for it would do no good. Rather than do that, I will take a red flag in my hand and wave it at such points as I think are dangerous. 1 do not regard card-playing, in itself considered, a sin, any more than playing checkers, or chess or backgammon, and any one who says it is, must be well on the way towards softening of the brain. The sin lies in the associations into which these spotted and pictured cardboards have fallen. Rid these cards of their evil associations and the subtle power they pessess to lead the weak from that which is innocent to that which is pernicious, and they are perfectly harmless, as innocent as the

I believe in all kinds of harmless amusements and can enjoy them as lustily as any man, but until billiards are disassociated from drink, I think the average young man had better abstain.

Building Projects Taking Shape--The Real Estate Situation.

The status of the real estate market is practically unchanged, only one or two sales having recently been affected which are regarded as important. The general tone of a reel two feet in diameter depending from the market is healthful, and the unusual activity warrants the bright hopes that are entertained for the coming of a season of remarkable prosperity.

The East side folks are endeavoring to awaken the interest that has so long laid lormant. A meeting is called for Wednesday evening at the First Congregational church under the auspices of the East Side Improvement association. Addresses will be made by Mayor Pillsbury, President Northrup, Prof. Folwell, Col. W. S. King, Rev. J. L. Scudder, Judge J. M. Berry, E. S. Corser, and J. T. Wyman.
An effort will be made to secure the hearty support of the citizens in an endeavor to make public and private improvements that will enhance the value and beauty of property for both business and residence purposes.

WRESTLING MATCH CRITICISM.

Peculiar Course Taken by a Morning Paper.

The Tribune's connection with the recent Moth-McLaughlin wrestling contest, is open to the severest censure. That paper has posed, however ridiculous it may appear. s sans peur et sans reproche, as it would the bar-room, the brothel, the burglar's den allege, upon sporting events. Yet, how and the gambler's hell. The odor of sin is delusive are superficial indications! Since on them, and the safe way, especially for Charles Moth's advent in Minneapolis, the Tribune has made a special feature of disparaging his prowess as an athlete, his integrity as a man and his liberality as a sporting man. The motive which has actuated the paper is as transparent as the limpid waters of Minnetonka, to speak poetically. Moth has persistently retused to fee the Tribune. But about the Moth-There are thousands of such Laughlin wrestling match. The reporter who has such matters assigned to him conthe mother and father to decide is, shall we fided to not a few that he was to receive $50 for his work in connection therewith. How did he propose to bring this end about? Perhaps it was not by a blackmailing scheme, but it was by something that savored of it. Col. McLaughlin was called panions. With true motherly wit she said: with Moth was made. Col. McLaughlin 'Boys, if you must play you had better foolishly posted in the reporter's hands the needless to say that neither Moth nor Mc-Laughlin were verdant enough to pay the ing the small-pox abroad. If the boy will bill, inasmuch as not a line had been play at all hazards, and there is no escape authorized. But what about McLaughlin's $100? That is still held. The reporter, in whose hands the sum was placed, resorts to hallowed influences of home and show him the subterfuge that he transferred it to one of the proprietors for safe keeping, and cannot get it. Furtherm claims that it is due the office for advertising the contest and for his personal efforts in bringing about the match. The Tribune's accounts of the match were highly colored in favor of the Detroiter with the view of inducing him to relinquish all claims to the money. Col. McLaughlin has made a formal demand for the $100 in vain, and the reporter has circulated the story that $50 of it went to him. Ald. Sly, who has acted as Col. McLaughlin's backer throughout the campaign, has stated that the reporter got the money, and the affair seems bewilderingly complicated. On the other hand Col. McLaughlin stoutly refuses comes a habit, and card playing without the demands of the Tribune and degambling becomes insipid. Many a young nounces it as an outrageous scheme to appropriate his money without even the most flimsy excuse, and if it is not forthcoming by 10 o'clock this morning legal process will be resorted to. To this end one of the leading attorneys of Minneapolis has been consulted. This $100 explains one important incompatibility in the reporter referred to. At the wrestling match, just as the referee made his decision creating the formidable kick, the reporter said "Moth was not thrown. He made a bridge," etc. The report which appeared in his paper said that Moth was thrown upon "three points;" that he came down "with a duil and heavy thud," etc. (It should have been "dull and sickening thud," to make it more sensational.) Nor is this all. After giving Moth the "worst of the deal," or a "roast," this irrepressible reporter with a prodigious gall waited waited upon Moth and asked for more money. The $50 from McLaughlin only sharpened his appetite, and his greed for gain impelled him to pursue an unprecedently tion was aroused, and the audacious re-porter was forcibly reminded "who and

About a year ago Joseph McCam, a worked in one of the half dozen pin factories that now turn out the 1,500 tons of pins yearly made in this country, began the construction of a machine with several new appliances that gave increased speed to manufacturing and extra value to the pin for the manufacture of these little hous The machine is now complete, and whether quiet or in motion, it is an interesting piece of mechanism, composed of many small, bright and neat nickel plates of many different shapes, and the whole not larger than a street "waifle" factory. The machine eats brass wire and spits out 500 polished pins every minute with no assistance except that of a small four-horse-power engine heated with gasoline to convey motive power. The wire of which the pins are made is wound about one side of the machine. Two iron feed rollers, so connected with the other mechanism as to draw the wire from the reel and deliver it to the machine just as fast as the latter can convert it into pins, are the first machinery seen in following the brass wire from its coil on the reel. The feed rollers push the wire into a die three inches beyond them, in which two motions of of a hammer crushes the head on the pin and simultaneous with the last strike of the "header" the wire is chipped off by a steel blade the proper length for a pin. headed and cut the desired length, the pin leaves the "header" secured in the rim of a vertically disposed metal wheel. quarter of a revolution of that wheel has been made, the pins are deftly removed by a circular horizontal metal plate, and as it revolves, holding firmly myriads of pins in proved of a delectable order. the rim, it brings them in contact with four om the plate on which they are pointed to ide the machine which makes the pins is ze and scarcely less interesting. THE ITALIANS. Arrival of the Mapleson Grand Opera Company.

Over one hundred members of Maplesen's Italian Opera company arrived yesterday. Col. Mapleson and the principals, including Mme. Lillian Nordice, who arrived Saturday, and Mile. Alma Fohstrom and others to the number of twenty-three, are at the West. Thirty-eight of the stars of lesser magnitude are domiciled at the Clark house, and the balance, including chorus singers, are scattered about the city, many of them having in accordance with their well-known love for economy, which is a national charcteristic, sought out some of the cheapest odging houses in the city. Coming up from the depot these latter people carried in their arms all sorts of curious bundles, and jabbered Italian like a lot of magnies. Their sharp, black eyes immediately sought out the signs "warm rooms," and they would stop in little squads on the sidewalk while one of their number went up to make a talk with the proprietor. If his terms suited, they stayed; if not a grunt from the leader was a signal to move on. At the West hotel a number of the hightoned were scattered about the exchange and seemed to be having a decidedly pleasant time conversing together. Col. Maple-son, who, according to Eugene Field, led the English forces at the battle of Water loo, was as backward as usuai in declaring that he had the "grandest opera company the world hever saw, b'gad, sir." C. W. Shepnerd, manager of the hotel, not the opera company, was found in his private office giving orders for the steward to open up another barrel of maccaroni, and to have maccaroni stewed, fried and broiled three

The Clark house seemed to be fairly runng over with the gorgeous gentlemen who fill up the back of the stage in the ensemble. One dark-complexioned gentleman standing in front of the stove with parted coat tails

Important Political and Commercial Events for To-day.

To-day will be pregnant with important meetings of all characters and will be a more than usually interesting Monday. In the morning, despite the fact that it is a legal holiday, the board of trade will discuss weighty matters of municipal moment. The City Pastors' association will hear religious dissertations and the liberal ministers likewise. In the afternoon, a special council committee, with the water board, will investigate the highly important question of a supplementary pumping station. At 4 o'clock the regular weekly meeting of the exposition directorate will occur. The city prohibition convention, to nominate a full ticket, will assemble at Harrison hail at 2 in the afternoon. The important night meeting is the assembling of indignant Eighth warders to protest ainst interference with the motor line. It will be a rouser. The carpenters will meet at 819 Minnehaha avenue to form a union and the railway employes will dance at Harmonia hall.

Col. M. W. Glenn did not know why he was called a politician in Minneapolis. He did not deal in it for a living, but on the contrary had nearly been driven to the poor house on account of it. He had resolved to keep his lips sealed on politics in a land league, but would urge that everybody aid the cause of the league by attending the lecture by Hon. Ignatius Donnelly, and perhaps a paramout reason for refraining to mention politics was that if he should be so weak everbody would say than he was a candidate for mayor, and that he was not.

Chris A. Gallagher responded to a call and unneccessarily apologized, as a member of the entertainment committee, for a few short-comings. He then read Will Carleton's "Gone With a Handsomer Man. Mr. Gallagher's style was quite dramatic, and his hearers were thrilled with pathos.

POLITICAL GOSSIP.

The first of the conventions will be held to-day and the Prohibitionists, as usual, are first in the field. The gathering will take place at Harrison hall at 2 p. m. and prosects of a large assemblage are good. leading candidates for the mayoralty are Dr. L. W. Denton, William M. Lawrence and Silas Moffitt, while in certain quarters the name of Ald. Albert Lawrence is whispered in subdued tones. Dr. Ed. Phillips said, yesterday: "We will surprise our Democratic and Republican riends with the number of votes we can poll. No, we don't expect to elect our mayor, but we do expect to elect an alderman or two." How this was to be done he did not say.

Echoes of the Windom hall conference of Saturday night went sailing about the city, yesterday, in Republican circles. It become evident that Ald. Sly's ide will prevail and the registration section will be knocked out of the plan. The reference made by Supt. Tousley to the workingmen was greeted with "Rats!" wherever read. The workingmen are after Tousley's scalp.

The following paragraph, taken from a norning paper, furnishes a sample of erratic reportorial work:

The Prohibitionists have canvassed their nayoralty timber, and nearly settled on Will-am M. Lawrence of the Seventh ward. If he is willing to make the run they will give tim the complimentary nomination. At east that was the talk of the Fourth ward saucus last night. "Call him up by telephone," said one of the brothers. After Central had signified that the proper connection ha been made the following conversation took "Is that Mr. Northup?"

"Can you supply Plymouth church pulpit next Sabbath? "Well, I might, I used to preach once, but I'm in the feed business now."

Here the Plymouth brother rang up Central and informed her that she had given him the wrong Mr. Northrup, while one of the committee casually remarked that the church needed feed badly enough, but of the other kind.

For fifteen years Fred L. Smith has occupied the office of secretary of Excelsior Lodge of Perfection, A. and A. S. R., in this city. The lodge held its tri-ennial election yesterday and Fred peremptorily re-fused to longer wear the honors and carry the burden of secretary's duties. It 'goes without saying that he has for many years devoted a valuable amount of time in the Masonic harness.

Aided by the proceeds of the recent benefit, the Press club proposes to make a vigorous effort to reach the goal for which it started. At yesterday's special meeting it was decided to to expand its quarters extend its library, and largely improve its social possibilities. Friday a fifty-mile bicycle race, Whittaker against five riders, who will change every ten miles, while he goes the full distance. Saturday, commencing at 2 p. m., one-hundred-mile race with twelve starters.

There is now no doubt that the proposed Northwestern base ball league will be organized. A meeting will be held in Eau Claire next Monday for that purpose. The league will be composed of the following cities: Milwaukee, Minneapolis, St. Paul, Duluth, Eau Claire and Oshkosh. There is some question regarding the wisdom of leaving out Stillwater. That city has always manifested a lively interest in base hall matters, and a lively interest in base ball matters, and would probably prove a better paying point than some of the cities contemplated. Mr. Loftus, the veteran, will go to Milwaukee to nanage that team, Mr. Lucas will manage Duluth, Ted Sullivan St. Paul, and probably J. E. Whitcomb Minneapolis.

S. G. Whittaker of St. Louis, the fifty-mile amateur champion of the United States, arrived in Minneapolis Saturday night to com-pete in a series of bicycle races against five of the fastest riders in this city. Whittaker is not only a fast bicycle rider, but holds all the American trievele records from 6 to 10 miles, his time being within 23 seconds of the fastest in the world. He will ride a royal mail racing wheel which weighs 25 pounds. This wheel is the same make as Mile. Armaindo uses in all her races. The first race will take place to-night at the Washington rink and the distance will be 20 miles. Five of the amateurs will be pitted against Whit-taker, who will ride the whole distance, while his competitors will change every four miles. This will be a hard race for the St. Louis boy, but he says he will be equal to the occasi No doubt the fastest time ever made by amateur in the world will be made by champion to-night. T. W. Eck, the manage of Washington rink, says he is only going to give races to the fastest and best amateur and professional bicycle riders and skaters in the couptry, and the public may rest as sured that every race which takes place if the rink will be on its merits, and in all race the riders or skaters must make fast time to get a prize. No hip-podrome races will be allowed. Ehlert left last night for his home in Chicago, and says whenever they get any more fas skaters in Minneapolis to send for him and he will try conclusions with them. He made the fastest five miles ever skated in the North-west, at the rink Friday night. Time, 17 minutes, 38 2-5 seconds.

Park avenue was quite gay yesterday with fast steppers and fancy sleighs. Rev. W. W. Satterlee has been appointed to supply the Methodist pulpit at Richfield until the next conference, on account of the resignation of Rev. Mr. Thompson when he united with the Episcopal church. Mr. Sat-terlee will leave this morning for Rochester, Minn., to attend the Prohibition convention from the First district.

Prof. Richard Stempf, director of the Har-monic and Philharmonic societies, was thrown from a sleigh on Portland avenue yesterday afternoon. The fall brought serious in-juries. His left shoulder was dislocated, and a very severe bruise inflicted on his face besides internal injuries. Dr. Ames reduced the dislocation and dressed the other wounds.
