Sheet Lightning that Shimmers But Does Not Burn—Notes About Everything.

To a Leader of the Fashion—No, we don't know anyone who would like to exchange a bicycle or lawn tennis set for a snowshoe almost as good as new. We are not in the commission business just now, but if your suit will fit it a 100 pound man when the padding is in and a 150 pound man when it is out, you may as well think we might use it to do our dumb-bell set in and will trade you a snowshoe for it and charge you any percentage for making the deal.

"In my country," said a cultivated German, the other day, "there is drunk by even the masses as a beverage. The best Bavarian beer costs about 2 cents a glass. An American, however, would not drink it for the life of the money, but then the glasses used for it are nearly three times as large as those used in the commission business. I am bound to get the most of my money, as the glasses are regarded by the government and each mug has to contain much more than a glass of beer. I am for the form, and when a man calls for a beer he only pays one half the price of a full glass."

"Yes," said Mr. Mannheim yesterday, "we are going to reconstruct our store so that it will be perfectly fire-proof. Had we made these provisions for building a fire to the basement, as we did on the upper floors, which were well provided with hose, the fire of the other day would have never made its way into the store."

"I think," said a lady auditor in the Grand opera house on seeing the comparatively light attendance at the opening performance of St. Paul's company, "Thursday night, that the patrons of the Grand opera must have expended all their money in toboggan and snowshoe suits. Why, this house should have been jammed to-night, and I don't know how else to account for it."

Stanford Newell is quite an epicure, and he enjoys dropping into Mayer's and dissecting a plate of shrimp with a friend or two.

Hon. W. M. Campbell is more at ease than he has been for some months, although he says he felt his good luck coming for some time.

George Walsh, the attorney, likes to size up the freckles on the dinner plates. Dr. Quinn and George Lamore are also fond of taking in the side-show sights. Charley Fairchild says they do it to keep posted.

George R. Finch states that the title of "Mr. President" is becoming a trifle chatty.

P. J. Bowlin likes to drive a good stepper, and he is a first-rate judge of horses.

Justice Jurens is well up in classical lore. Judge Wood wears a handsome gold horse-shoe on his hand—just for luck, you know. Judge Wilkin is an intelligent person of the times, and he always occupies a seat in the grand opera nights.

Col. Crooks is down on the jury system that keeps a man shut up in a jury room all day and improves his chances for taking cold when released from the enforced seclusion. The colored man who was in jail before the change in the weather Wednesday night, and he is now nursing a robust cold in consequence.

Ex-Senator James King usually takes his noon lunch at the Ryan. He says it is very necessary to do this in his business.

Charley Manship of the Gaylight company wears a miniature bow tie as a watch chain charm. He says it is an evidence of his homeliness.

Hugh Fergus says you can't keep a good man down, and as an evidence of this he points to the phoenix-like power to reappear of Man he has here.

By-the-by, in speaking of the trial of a lady who had been to the city of St. Paul, he said that he had been to the city of St. Paul, and he is now nursing a robust cold in consequence.

woke Thursday morning I thought something had struck the town and I saw the windows were painted with what I supposed might have been ozone but what looked like frost. The sun was shining brightly and when I got down stairs the hotel clerk winked at some fellows standing around and invited him to walk around the corner and join him in an appetizer—oh, you have a mighty clever lot of hotel clerks up this way—and we started. Well, sir, when we struck the sidewalk everybody seemed to be in a hurry, and that cold blizzard blast got a leverage on my anatomy and percolated my clothes as if they had been a sieve. Before going a block a man said it was below zero and the blizzard said it was still blowing for all it was worth. I reckon I know now why people don't get up at five. Why, they haven't got time, sir. Yes, sir, I bought this button coat and vest and am going to wear it till the ice is out of the river. Take something with me."

Three little duds on a spree,
Three little ones and three little hats,
Three little duds with angrage—
Gay little duds are we.
Three little duds all on a bat,
Three little slims piled in a sack,
Three little heads without a hat—
Tired little slims are we.
Three little duds and three little bds,
Three little doctors, three little heads,
Three little tombstones—epitaphs read:
"Dead little duds are we."
