Gen. Black Roughly Handled by

WASHINGTON, May 25 .- During the consideration of a private pension bill in the senate this afternoon, Mr. Ingalls severely criticised Gen. Black, the commissioner of pensions, declaring him to be an impostor, to whom congress granted the highest pension rate on false allegations of his being a "wreck." He protested against Gen. Black's enjoyment of such a pension while opposing pensions to other soldiers. Mr. Cockrell defended Gen. Black's administration of his office, citing figures to show that more claims were allowed each year under his administration than in any year in any former administration in an any year in any former administration. If Mr. Ingalls believed Gen. Black's pension unjust, Mr. Cockrell said, he (Mr. Ingalls) should introduce a bill to discontinue the pension.

Mr. Voorhees warmly defended Gen.

Black and with energy and emphasis denied that there had been any false allegations in the matter of his application for a pension. He represented Gen. Black's condition at the time as one of

ABSOLUTE AND COMPLETE DISABILITY and his survival and recovery as wholly unexpected and extraordinary.

Mr. Logan would not say that Gen. Black was not entitled to his pension, but he expressed a hope that the pension office would be administered in sympathy with the wounded soldiers. He thought that unfair statements had been sent broadcast over the country about the action of Commissioner Dudley. If Gen. Black was entitled to the pension Mr. Logan hoped he would retain it. Gen. On motion of Mr. Sewel the senate then took up the bill heretofore reported by the committee on pensions "To amend the pension laws by increasing the pensions of soldiers and sailors who have lost an arm or leg in the service.'

The bill gives $50 a month to soldiers and sailors who lost one foot or one hand in the service, $36 a month to those who lost an arm above the elbow or leg above the knee, and $45 a month to those who lost an arm at the shoulder joint or a leg at the hip joint. Mr. Miller offered an amendment extending the provisions of the bill so as to include among the $45 a month pensioners, the cases of men whose legs had been amputated so near the hip joint as to prevent the use of an artificial limb. The amendment was agreed to, and as so amended the bill was passed. The urgent deficiency conference report was submitted, and on motion of Mr. Allison agreed to. #### The House Engaged in a Discussion of the Bill.

WASHINGTON, May 25. - After the trans action of routine business in the house to day the oleomargarine bill was taken up in committee of the whole. After some dis cussion on the subject Mr. Hepburn de nounced the methods by which oleomargarine found a market, declaring that none of it was sold under its proper name. This declaration was earnestly denied by Mr Lawler (Ill.) and a noisy colloquy on this took place between the two gentlemen, in which Mr. Frederick took a hand, with the assertion that Chicago was so used to fraud that it wanted to palm it off on the whole country. [Laughter.] Mr. Lawler did not relish this attack upon his city, and replied with the declaration that Chicago to-day was one of the most healthy cities in the United States; that its death rate was less than that of any other city in the United States. "It went up a little the other day." suggested Mr. Reed. "Not a bit of it," replied Mr. Lawler. Mr. Frederick remarked that the people of Chicago could not afford to die; they were too devilish mean to die. Mr. Struble gested that the reason was that they knew they were going to h— and did not want to die on that account. Canty, ex-city recorder, of East St. Louis, are now on trial at Belleville, Ill., charged with misappropriation of the city's funds and the robbery of the safe in the treasurer's office. The crimes are supposed to have been committed about two years ago, and in the meantime Thomas Duffy, a lieutenant of police, has been tried and convicted of the latter offense, and is now serving a sentence of five years in the penitentiary. During the proceedings in the court yesterday Duffy was placed on the stand, and made a conion, which, if it shall remain unshaker by subsequent testimony, will undoubtedly convict the Canty brothers. Duffy testified substantially as follows:

In March, 1884, Canty and witness were in Shea's saloon in East St. Louis, when Canty remarked that he had lost money at poker, and he wished some one would blow the Market house to h—l. The next day he said if I and another man would blow the safe open, we could Canty promised to have everything put in readiness for working the job. Duffy then got Clark and Egan, two of his subordinates, and so informed Canty. He told witness when things were ready to let his brother Tim know. I first consulted Egan, and he got a man. At our last meeting Canty told me to get in the vault and we could find the safe door unlocked. The first time I saw Canty after the robbery he told me to keep from getting drunk and talking, and if I got in any trouble he would back me up.

Canty was put on the stand and denied each detail of the above confession, after which the court adjourned until to-day.

The Home Rule Bill.

LONDON, May 25,-The cabinet met at noon, and when it had been in session half an hour, a special messenger was dispatched after Baron Herschell, lord high chancellor. He was at the time engaged in a great law-suit, but the nature of the summons he received induced him to abruptly cancel his engagement and repair at once to the cabinet meeting. The meeting lasted an hour and twenty minutes, and very soon after the adjournment Mr. Gladstone started for Windsor to see the queen. Various conjectures were indulged in as to the nature of the decision arrived at by the cabinet, but the actual upshot of it is virtually a but the actual upshot of it is virtually a move in the direction of a concession to the disaffected Liberals. Several of the ministers urged that clause 24 of the home-rule bill be eliminated. After a long discussion it was decided to leave the matter in Mr. Gladstone's hands to deal with as he might think fit. His mind was apparently quickly made up, for early in the evening the government. for early in the evening the government whips were instructed to summon the rank and file of the Liberal party to a general meeting on Thursday, when modifications of the home rule will be announced in order to preserve the government from defeat on the second reading. Mr. Morley was alone in continuing to oppose the elemina tion of clause 24 from the home rule bill. The Hartington section maintain their enmity to the bill, and will not attend the Liberal conference. The ministers are confident that with the accession of thirty-five diffident and "doubtfuls" they will have a majority of forty. The bill will be estopped after the second reading. It is probable that parliament will be dissolved in the autumn. If the Gladstone government be returned the winter session will be devoted exclusively to the discussion of the bearemy kill.

Talking of Dissolving. LONDON, May 25 .- Mr. Gladstone went to Windsor to-day in obedience to a summons from the Queen and conveyed to her the opinion of himself and colleagues with reference to the home rule bill and the proposed dissolution of parliament. The Queen intimated that she was willing to meet the wishes of the min-isters. The Liberal Unionists, in spite of their new and untried committee, are sanguine of success in the coming elections. They are receiving financial support daily. Baron Rothschild sent them £500 sterling, and it is believed they have received several large sums. They are widely circulating anti-home-rule literature. The government does not promise to reconstruct the home-rule bill, but proposes to with-draw it after the second reading and to bring it up for the committee stage later, mindedly.

NEW YORK, May 25.—The general lock-out threatened by the Contractor Tailor's association, unless about 300 journeymen who have struck in twenty-five shops against the task system should return to work by Sunday, was carried into effect yesterday, and in consequence about 8,000 men and wo-men are now idle. As soon as the work-men learned of the lock-out they flocked to the headquarters of their executive commit-tee. They were sent to Turner hall, in East Thirty-fourth street, where a mass meeting was held. The workmen expressed their determination not to abandon their demand for the abolition of task work, and the adoption in its place of the weekly wage system on the basis of ten hours work for five days and nine hours work on the sixth. The contractors thereupon held a meeting and declared that they would keep their shops closed for a whole year, if necessary, to compel the men to come to terms. A number of the contractors, however, in conversation said they would like to see the trouble ended, as this is one of the busiest seasons.
