Thirtieth Anniversary of Plymouth Church-- Meeting of the Police Commission.

COERCION DENOUNCED.

The Sentiments of the Minneapolis People on the Hated Bill.

Minneapolis turned out en masse last night to protest against the coercion bill yow pending in the English parliament. The demonstration was a remarkable one. It was composed not by any means totally of Irishmen, but of citizens of all nationalities, and the expression of indignation against the outrageous bill voiced in the speeches and resolutions adopted came from liberty-loving citizens who, without distinction of nationality, politics or station, united in protesting against the tyranny. The meeting was pre-ceded by a procession, which served the Gill and the party of distinguished citizens of St. Paul who accompanied him. The procession consisted of Sidwell's band, the Hibernians and divisions 1, 2 and 3 of the Ancient Order of Hibernians. Harmonia hall had been filled to its utmost capacity long before the arrival of the procession On the stage sat the following prominent citizens:

was then introduced, and was cordially greeted. He said: It is a great honor to be allowed to preside over this meeting, and I thank you for it. The coercion law now before the British par-liament has no friends in Minnesota, I am glad to say. The cause of the Irish people is a great one, and it is only a question of time when it will prevail. The history of Ireland has been full of tears and sorrow, but the disposition is now to wipe away those tears and give the people their right. The people of Ireland ask the right to make her laws and govern her, but the England Tories tell them that they are not able; but we know they are, for if there is any one thing that an Irishman is capable of it is of running the government. I believe that under the leadership of Parnell, supplemented by the aid of the great statesman, William Gladstone, the Irish people will soon regain their freedom.

J. J. McHale was elected secretary and a committee was appointed to draw up resolutions. Seth Abbott, the father of the noted songstress, Emma Abbott, was called on and sang 'La Marsailles," which was received with thunders of applause.

c. D. O'BRIEN, ex-mayor of St. Paul, was introduced. He No Irishman can refuse to speak at such a meeting, and therefore I am proud to stand here. This occasion is a notable one. Never until now have we taken a hand in the ac-tions of the English people, but things are now in such shape that we feel that we must raise our voices in protest against the great raise our voices in protest against the great injustice. The crisis has now come, and it remains to be seen whether we will be allowed to have any freedom in Treland or not. If we are men, we will not be crushed out, and we are men. For years past the people of Ireland have been denied the right to earn a living, and now the British parliament is trying to make it a crime for the Irish people to ask Al-mighty God to allow them to live. The people there are afraid of the law, for they government, lrishmen have done their duty by this country—which has given them pro-tection and furnished them homes—and now it is right that the people of the United States should show their opinion of the obnoxious English voices in a thorough manner. If the English government passes this coercion bill they will only hasten the day that will make the greatest lesson of an Englishman's life.

EUGENE M. WILSON. We are here to-night to send out our sympathy across the broad waters to a suffering people. It was only a century ago that we ourselves became free and our own masters, and it is right that we send our sympathy to Ireland. On top of its other out-English government now proposes to suspend trial by jury, and to abolish the habeas corpus right, thus going back to the time when you would have Jefferies for a judge and Titus Oakes for a witness. All that Ireland asks is the right to govern herself, and I am glad to see that even Can-ada is divided in regard to the land tenure law. For the last 100 years the Irish people have been growing poorer and poorer owing to the land laws. The impression has gone out that it was only Catholics who were down-trodden; but this is not so, as many a Protestant in Ireland has laid down his life in defense of Ireland's cause: It is against these oppressions that the Irish are protesting, and a gainst which Gladstone is laboring. REV. JOHN CONWAY.

We are here this evening to assist in "kick ing the coercion bill into a cocked hat." Co-ercion policy has been the system of the British rulers followed up from time im memorial. The Irish people have been made slaves as far as English laws could make them. The United States will aid Gladstone now by giving a free assertion of opinion in regard to this coercion business.

B(SHOP FOSS.

I am glad to speak a word to show that I am in sympathy with this movement. While it Europe some time ago I passed through Ire-land, and there was many signs of the dis-satisfaction which existed at British injustice. The time is coming when the only form of government wild be for the people and by the people. I look for impression to be made on the members of the house of parliament by these meetings. Unless this act of coercion be snowed under by the opinion of the self-governed people, the result must be disastrous to the people of Ireland. But I have bope that the English people will consider well this matter before placing this coercive law upon the people of Ireland, as the must, if they heed public opinion.

firm their organization, Mr. Baldwin gave a number of early reminiscences. His thoughts turned toward real estate, and he told how the young men used to stand on

REV. M. D. SHUTTER. I will only express my hearty sympathy with this meeting. Before this question all differences of creed must be hushed. Things that coerce all humanity come before al creeds. I am not here as a member of any political party nor as a chairman of any denomination, but I am here to-night as an American citizen to add my voice to what has been said. After years of crime and blunder the English people are trying to crown their stupidity by the greatest outrage ever perpetrated on any people. and it calls for the condemnation of every freedom-loving man under the heavens. This will bring about what every Irishman has so longed for-home rule-and my hope to-night is that the government of Ireland will soon be by and for the people.

COL. R. C. BENTON: I do not need to tell you that my sympathy is with you in this great matter. Everyone is with you—the lawyers and the ministers, the Republicans and the Democrats, and the orthodox and the heterodox. This coercion bill does not even give a man a chance for his life, as it refuses Irishmen the right to be tried by a jury of his peers. Why is it the English government refuses to give Irishmen this right? I know what the Irish people are, and I know they should never be attacked by coercive measures. I hope the grand old man will live to see the triumph of right and justice, but I am afraid not, for the British people are not always to be influenced by the opinion of the freemen of the United States.

REV. JAMES M'GOLRICK. I hardly know whether to address you as an Irishman or as an American citizen, for some years ago I renounced all allegiance to Queen Victoria. It does me good and makes me hopeful to see men of all nationalities and of all creeds join with us in denouncing and of all creeds join with us in denouncing the measures of the English government. Bancfort's History of England shows us plainly the injustice that has been done the Irish people. Money has been sent to this country to poison the minds of the public against the Irishmen, but I am glad to see that but little damage has been done in this manner. The time is near at hand when the Irish people will assemble in their own parliament on College Green.

Resolved, By us, citizens of the United States and of the state of Minnesota, in mass meeting assembled, at Minneapolis, on this 28th day of April, A. D. 1887, the governor of our commonwealth in the chair, the mayor of our city, respected representatives of all creeds, professions, industries, and legisla-tive halls (state and national) amongst us, double purpose of furnishing an out-door demonstration and an escort for Gov. Mcto by the people of Ireland, our sympathy goes out to them in their gloom and threatened oppression, and that in the name of liberty, enlightenment and progress, we protest indignantly against the attempted maintenance of undue authority by the instrumentalities of force and barbarism.

Resolved, That in the sense of this meeting the government of her majesty of Great Britain, to establish a right to continued existence in Ireland, must give up the policy of foreign officialism and domestic strife for one of national recognition and interna-tional conciliation; that the torch, the sword and the gibbet, provincial prejudice and re ligious rancor, having failed as a well-tried policy, there remains for those who would rule the Irish people but one method yet untried in Ireland; that of government by the people, for the people.

Resolved, Therefore, that greeting the createst living English statesman, judged by the genius of the present age, W.
E. Gladstone, we pledge to the cause of humanity, contained in the issue of constitutional freedom for Ireland, which he advocates, our resolute, unswerving support: vocates, our resolute, unswerving support; that, saluting the people of Ireland, we ask them to take heart and hope anew from the genius, wisdom and union of their leaders in the cause of patriotism; the accession to their ranks of the Progressive party in Great Britain; the well-pledged support to them in their constitutional struggle by Ameircans, and the deep-felt sympathy of mankind with a nation which has long and nobly wrestled

Resolved, That the chair be instructed to forward copies of these resolutions to Mr. Gtadstone and Mr. Parnell, and that a cable message be sent, signed by the governor of our state and the mayor of this city, conveying the sense of this meeting to the great leaders of the Nationalist and the Liberal parties in the British parliament.

REV. FATHER P. H. CLARKE. As I never owed the queen of Great Britain any allegiance, I never could renounce it, and so I have never done so. I came here having no right except the right of possession. If I were an Englishman I would say to you that you are very impertinent for in-terfering it English affairs, but as an Irish-are coming to the United States every day in order to escape the tyranny of the English In the evening the lecture room, of the church was filled with people, who listened with deep interest to reminiscences of the early days, and a history of the remarkable growth of Plymouth. The choir gave appropriate musical selections between the speeches, which were made by the pioneers of the church. William Cheeney read a history of the church during the first twenty-five years of its existence. The eighteen charter members of Plymouth church included eight Presbyterians, nine Congregationalists and one received on confession of faith. The first spastor was Rev. Norman McCloud, who was succeeded by Revs. A. C. Atwater, H. M. Nichols, C. C. Salter, H. A. Stimpson, Dr. Hutchins and the present minister, C. F. Thwing. Mr. Cheeney spoke of the burning of the first house of worship, which stood on the corner of Nicollet avenue and Fourth street in April, 1863, and of the tragic death of the then pastor, Rev. Nichols, who, with his wife and children, was drowned in Lake Calhoun. Following Mr. Cheeney, the venerable founder of Plymouth church, Rev. N. McCloud, made a brief address. He said he was not surprised at the growth of Plymouth church. It was founded by men of broad intelligence and high character, and these qualities, with God's blessing, will always bring prosperity. He gave many interesting details of the early struggles of the church, and spoke feelingly of his abiding interest in its welfare. Mr. McCloud is a pioneer in Congregational church work, and it has been his privilege to organize three churches which have grown to be great centers of ecclesiastical influence. He founded Plymouth church in Denver and the first one in Salt Lake City. Charles Cushman drew a touching picture of the death of Rev. Mr. Nichols and the gloom consequent on that event. Plymonth Sunday school. R. J. Plymouth church bought its first lot, corner of Nicollet avenue and Fourth street, for $1,800, giving in payment a bond. When the church was burned the lot was allowed to revert to the original owner. Afterward it was again purchased. this time by the church ladies, who paid $300 cash for it. In 1870 it was divided into business lots, having a frontage of twenty-five feet each on Nicollet avenue, and the whole sold at auction for $17,000. and the brethren flattered themselves they had made a brilliant success of it. To-day the land, sixty-five feet front on Fourth street and 165 feet on Nicollet, is worth over $300,000. A letter from D. C. Bell was read, expressing keen regret at not being able to attend the meeting. H. B. Hudson the clerk of the church, then read a few statistics showing the growth of the society. Since its organization Plymouth church has received 626 members on confession of faith and 1.013 by letter: there have been 786 removals for all causes, leaving a present membership of 853 members; $48,181.28 has been given by the church to benevolent enterprises, exclusive of the contributions of the Sunday school and young people's question of the jurisdiction of the United States over the Alaskan fur seal fisheries. The statement made in the Canadian par-liament yesterday to the effect that communications on the subject had been sent by that government to Secretary Bayard is denied at the state department, and it is said all the correspondence touching the fisheries has been carried on directly with the government of Great Britain. This fact, it is believed, will explain the delay in hearing from the state department of which com plaint has been made at Ottawa. The United States laws under which certain British Columbian vessels were seized by the revenue cutter Corwin last season are more than twenty years old, and the question of a conflict between those and the law of nations is one difficult of settlement. The fact that this question has been raised strengthens the department in its determination to continue to pursue the temperate course it has so far followed in the negotiations with Great Britain concerning the Canadian fisheries. The vast Alaskan fisheries are quite as important to this country as are the Nova Scotian inshore fisheries, and the state de-partment is necessarily obliged to shape its construction of the law and treaties as to preserve the right of the United States to the exclusive enjoyment of the Alaskan fisheries, while maintaining the treaty rights of our fishermen in North American waters. It is held that there cannot be two constructions of the laws; and any position assumed by the department must apply equally to Atlantic and Pacific waters.

Rich Mexican Mines.

CHICAGO, April 28.-Interviews with the Chicagoans whom recent dispatches associate with the discovery of valuable mines in Mexico, confirm the report. A dispatch from the City of Mexico states that two of the seven legendary mines from which the Spanish conquiers of Mexico drew inexhaustible quantities of gold and silver until driven out by the Indians two centuries ago have been found by the exploring party sent out by the Sonora company two years ago, and prove to be fully as rich as even the legend has them to be. In January, 1885, the Sonora Land company was chartered under the laws of Illinois and Mexico. The original intention was simply to reclaim and survey the 15,000,000 acres of grazing land. The incorporators were mostly residents of Chicago.
