MAYOR AND GRAND JURY. The situation in which those men and newspapers find themselves, which have been identified with the recent assaults on the city administration, deserves the consideration of all thoughtful people of Minneapolis. The action of the grand jury in failing to return an indictment cuts no especial figure, as no one for a moment imagined that such a course would be taken; yet it is significant that that body, upon purely ex parte testimony, found nothing upon which to base a charge, much as i might have wished to do so. There were those who may have though LAITTRE, but the public remarks by the latter yesterday afternoon, upon the adjournment of the body of which he is foreman, will dissipate any such idea. In a public street car he openly have indicted him anyhow," meaning that he personally wished, evidence or no evidence, that an indictment could have been returned. There is only one of two constructions the public can put upon what has occurred-either the cowardly innuendoes are utterly false and baseless and a court of justice would have quickly said so; or they are the result of a conspiracy to covertly attack Mayor Ames without giving him an opportunity to defend himself or to retaliate. If such cowardly work does not react, the GLOBE greatly mistakes the feeling of the people of Minneapolis, and if Mayor Ames does not take active steps to expose the villainy, the Globe is mistaken of its estimate of him. Assassins of character are as amenable to the laws as assassins of life, and if Mayor AMES' words are read aright, he proposes to compel both puppets and string pullers to make good their insinuations or take the consequences. Several of the Minneapolis newspapers will probably have to justify their outrageous charges, and from yesterday's grand jury returns they will find it a difficult task. In the meantime, the public mind will take in the situation. This is not the first time the tongue of slander has struck at Mayor Ames, but his patience has reached its limit and it may be the

FLOUR AND WHEAT.

Northwestern Miller.

The flour output continues at a point just above 100,000 barrels, last week again recording a slight gain. The week's product was 117,850 barrels—averaging 19,625 barrels daily—against 114,360 barrels the previous week, and 145,200 for the corresponding time in 1886. The number of mills in operation to-day is the same as a week ago—fourto-day is the same as a week ago—fourteen—but another of 800 barrels capacity will be added to-morrow. The present daily output is about 19,000 barrels. Three days of almost continuous rain roved the water power some-but the excessively hot prevailing militates against very rapid grinding. As to future operations by the mills there seems to be a good deal of uncer-tainty, as most firms have but a few orders on hand, and varied views are held as to the effect that Tuesday's break in wheat will have on flour. The prepon-derance of opinion, however, appears to be that wheat has finally found its level. and that if not again elevated to its former fictitious basis, the milling business will be fairly prosperous for a few months to come. The decline in wheat has left the flour market unsettled, millions retained to make the months in the control of the control has left the hour market unsettled, millers not caring to make changes in quotations until wheat becomes less feverish, and buyers for the same reason postponing purchases. The flour exports for the week were a little higher, yet fair in quantity.

Mayor Ames, last evening, when informed that the grand jury had adjourned without bringing any indictment against him, instead of being elated was visibly disconcerted, and boiling over with suppressed indignation. He said: "I am disgusted and disappointed. I had hoped with that great reformer and ex-prison inspector, John DeLaittre, at the head of a nonpartisan grand jury, I would be indicted, and thereby given a chance to refute the infamous charges and cowardly innuendoes which charges and cowardly innuendoes which the Republican press has been pleased to bring against me, and which I had hoped the grand jury would formulate into distinct charges that could be met. A coward is the most despicable freak of nature, and I had hoped to meet a few of these dastards face to face before a court of justice. I placard all of these people as liars, thieves and scoundrels, who are unwilling to confront me either personally or politically—liars because they have uttered that which they know is false and dare not attempt to prove; thieves, because they have attempted to rob me of my good name; scoundrels, because in their hypocritical, sheaking way they have stabbed me in the back, and have always run away when I have turned upon them. The policeman who was discharged for conduct unbecoming an officer and a gentieman is beauth my provise and policeman who was discharged for conduct unbecoming an officer and a gentleman is beneath my notice, and too low down in the scale of humanity for me to enter into a discussion with either as mayor of the city or as a private individual. The fact that the grand jury has not indicted me after the infamous assaults preferred by the "non-partisan" Republican press proves that they are simply warmed-over chestnuts from the last campaign. I have been in my office all day expectover chestnuts from the last campaign. I have been in my office all day expecting I would be indicted, but the poltroons, true to their cowardly instincts, have siunk into their holes and evidently expect that after I have been covered with the sline and filth with which they have endeavored to deluge me, I should not have an opportunity to vindicate myself before the people. ## NOT INDICTED.

The Grand Jury Brings in No Bill

Against the Mayor. that the grand jury would adjourn before noon, but noon came and the jury was still closeted in the court room discussing-the members of the jury and the witnesses only know what. About 11 o'clock Edward Grace, an ex-policeman, and the alleged author of two or three letters that have been made public lately, in which Mayor Ames was charged with almost everything, put in an appearance and entered the room. He remained in there some time and came out looking well satisfied with himself, as he smiled somewhat grimly, but he smiled, nevertheless. As he left the court house he let drop vague insin-uations that there would be a sensation before long.

I did not want to do this, said he, as he put on an injured look, but I was obliged to do it in my own defense, so that my friends would not think I was a thief and had talked about Mayor Ames in an unproper manner. If I have ever done anything I should not have done I am willing to apologize for it. But now that this thing has come there will

Here he stopped and looked sad, as a bystander suggested that the mus might come from the wrong side.

When the jury convened in the afternoon, M. W. Glenn, who recently vented his anger toward the mayor in an interhis anger toward the mayor in an interview, was the most conspicuous figure in the ante-room. "Well, me boy, we are here—a whole caboodle of us, and we'll see what can be done," remarked he, in a patronizing tone, as he swung his white hat and looked happy. He was called before the jury shortly after 3 o'clock, and remained there nearly an hour. When he came out he looked neither to the right nor to the left, but clapped his hat on his head and departed. Superintendent of Police Hein was also present, but declared to everychapted. Superintendent of Police Hein was also present, but declared to everyone that he did not know what he had been called for.

It seems that a list of names of men who had contributed to the celebrated "campaign fund," which Mr. Glenn declares he received some $1,500 of, had been presented to the grand jury, and hearly all of these men were present as witnesses. The majority of them acknowledged to having contributed money, but produced receipts for it.

If that is what is causing all this trouble, said one of these witnesses, it seems to me that the whole thing is the most outrageous farce ever perpetrated. So far as has been shown there is nothing to show that there has been any misappropriation of money belonging to the city by any one. The way it looks to me is that this is spite work, and it is unnecessary for me to state who the persons working the scheme are.

It was stated on good authority that ons working the scheme are.

It was stated on good authority that John De Laittre, the foreman of the grand jury, and two of the members, had declared that they did not believe there was anything in the charges, and as far as they were concerned should do nothing in regard to the matter. But in view of the subsequent development is nothing in regard to the matter. But in view of the subsequent developments it would seem that the above is not correct. The jury adjourned at 5:30, when it was publicly announced that no indictment had been found against Mayor Ames, or any one else connected with the administration of the city. Said one of the jurymen:

but I', wish to God we could have in dicted him (meaning Mayor Ames) anyway. SWELTERING COMMITTEES. Numerous Petitions for Street Car

At the meeting of the council commit-tee on railroads yesterday afternoon it was decided to report adversely upon a petition for a street car line on Twelfth avenue north to Dupont avenue and on Dupont to Twelfth street. Prof. Moore appeared before the committee and presented a petition for an extension of the University street car line from Four-University street car line from Fourteenth avenue southeast to Oak street. Secretary Goodrich, on the part of the company, objected, claiming the extension would cause a network of tracks at crossings certain to prove annoying. Action was postponed one week, and the aldermen of the Second ward wat be requested to meet with the committee. A petition for the extension of the Riverside line from Twenty-seventh street to Lake street, was put off one week owing to the absence of the alderman from the Seventh ward. A petition asking that the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul railway be compelled to keep Sixth avenue south free of ears, and be compelled to run trains at a rate of speed not exceeding six miles an hour inside the city limits, was referred to the police commission. A protest against laying a street car line on Twenty-seventh street south was postponed one week.

The committee on sewers considered several petitions briefly and postponed action. It was decided to report favorably upon Ald, Johnson's motion to inably upon Ald, Johnson's motion to instruct the city engineer to begin work upon the tunnel for the sewerage system below University avenue. A petition from the Minneapolis Street Railway company was presented, requesting that the city shall proceed to lay a sewer on Thirteenth street, between First avenue south and Nicollet avenue, and on Nicollet avenue, from Thirteenth street to Thirty-first street, in order that the company can build its cable line. Ald. Cooley stated that there was a distinct understanding that the city should lay the sewer whenever the company was ready to lay the cable. Engineer Rinker estimated that it would cost $35,000 ker estimated that it would cost $35,000 to lay the sewer, and it was decided to postpone action two weeks, in order that property owners can appear before the committee and be heard. On motion of Ald. Kerr it was voted to increase the pay of masons on the East side tunnel to 37½ cents per hour, and 40 cents for

THE CAR BUILDERS.

The Rules Revised---The Janney Type of Brake Favored.

The master car builders got right down to business yesterday morning. The nominating committee presented its report, which was laid over to make way for the special order. The nominees are as follows:

President, William McWood, of the Grand Trunk, Montreal; first vice president J. W. Cloud, New York, Lake Eric & Western, Buf-falo, N. Y.; second vice president, E. W. Cloud, New York, Lake Erie & Western, Buffalo, N. Y.; second vice president, E. W. Grieves, Baltimore & Olio, Baltimore; third vice president, John S. Lentz, Pennsylvania & New York Canal and Railroad company, Packerton, N. Bissell, New York Central Sleeping Car company, Buffalo, N. Y.

The special order was the revision of the code of rules governing the condi-

the code of rules governing the condi-tion of and repairs to freight cars for the interchange of traffic. The associa-tion went to work in solid earnest, and for over two hours wrestled with the rules, the amendments to the rules be-ing, so far as outsiders could see, of minor importance. The masters, however, gave close attention to the work in hand, and the air was filled with the peculiar vernacular of the car builders—terms which, to the reporter, were as Greek to the schoolboy, were bandied about, the delegates defending their amendments with draughts from business experience. They talked about ness experience. They talked about chill wheels and slid flats, and flanges with flat, vertical surfaces, and shelled out circular prices, and chipped rims, and raised centers, and sharp and thin flanges and a host of other terms familiar to the car builder, but unknown to the outer world. They considered the condition of brakes, and the repairs of wood work; they got along without much difficulty until the rule for the settlement prices for new cars and trucks was reached. An amendment to advance the whole schedrule of prices 10 per cent. called forth a rather sharp debate. The advance was favored, as a rule, by the representatives of the smaller roads, and opposed by the master car builders of the great corporations. In voting, each delegate corporations. In voting, each delegate was entitled to cast one vote for every was entitled to cast one vote for every thousand cars owned by his road, and in this way the motion to increase the price was defeated. A motion for an increase of 5 per cent. on the present list also failed, and the matter was referred to a special committee who reported at the afternoon session, making additions of from $5.0 $5.0 to be prices of the difference of the difference of the prices of the difference of the diff from $5 to $50 to the prices of the dif-ferent kinds of cars. This report was adopted. An important amendment authorizes the appointment by the executive committee of an arbitration

It was after 4 o'clock when the revision of the rules was completed. It was awfully hot in the hall, and not even the fans so kindly distributed by some enterprising advertiser could keep the car men cool. The question of couplers coming up, the executive committee recommended that the Janney coupler be adopted as the type os automátic coupler to be adopted by the association, and requested that the question be balloted upon by letter after the adjournment of the association. Mr. Wall made an extended report of the Burlington experiments with automatic couplers last year. During the gentleman's remarks the hot and weary delegates did their best to keep interested in the speech, which was extended into a general review of couplers, recommending close coupling, and from these to a discussion of various brakes. Mr. Miller objected to the adoption of the Janney type because it is not provided to the couple of the properties of the doption of the Janney type because it is not present the committed in Michigan. these to a discussion of various brakes. Mr. Miller objected to the adoption of the Janney type because it is not permitted in Michigan and New York. He considered the Cowell type as good as the Janney and wanted it added to the committee's recommendation. A letter from George C. Watrous, master car builder of the Detroit, Lansing & Northern road, strongly commended the Cowell coupler. L.S. Coffin, a member of the Iowa railroad commission, was called upon, and said the only point of view from which he considered the car coupler, was safety to the train men. The report of the committee gave him great satisfaction, because it indicates that this body has arrived at a point where you have decided to speak the word that shall do away with the old pin and link coupler. I plead for the boys who do not come in here and plead for themselves. The gentleman grew eloquent as he considered the danger to which brakemen are subjected, and the strength or his one argument would seem to have been enough to overweigh all opposition. RELIEF AT LAST. Con De Wan Dies While on His Way Home.

Con De Wan, one of the prominent leaders of organized labor in Minthe administration of the city. Said one of the jurymen:

When Glenn was placed on the stand we found that he did not know one tenth part of what he professed to know. In fact he even denied (not in so many words) that he had ever been interviewed by a reporter in regard to the money matters he said he knew so much about. If he did know anything he would not tell it, and my private opinion is he did not know anything. All of the charges made by Grace we followed up closely and found to consist of the merest nothings. It was a big bit of nonsense in ever bringing this matter up.

Several of the members of the jury, including John De Laittre, the foreman, took a car in coming up from the court house, and while on the route were busy discussing the affair.

The spacious lecture room and parlors of the Church of the Redeemer were thronged with the members of the congregation, who had gathered to welcome Dr. Tuttle, after his prolonged tour in the East and South. There were no speeches, the informality of the occasion adding much to its pleasure. Dr. Tuttle was assisted in receiving his friends by Rev. Mr. Shutter, the assistant pastor. The young ladies' flower mission had decorated the rooms with blooming plants, water lilies and bouquets. Light refreshments were served, and the evening was delightfully spent by the large company in interchanging greetings with the venerable pastor and in pleasant conversation. in pleasant conversation.

DYSPEPSIA.

The operation of washing out the stomach once used to a limited extent is coming into vogue again in cases of dyspepsia. "A soft rubber tube is passed gently down into the stomach. The opposite end has affixed to it a glass funnel, which is held on a level with the patient's breast and tepid water is poured slowly into the funnel until a sensation of fullness is experienced. The funnel is then lowered and the fluid allowed to syphon out. This is repeated until the water runs clear." This process must be quickly followed by putting on over the stomach one of our FANCY CHEVIOT SUITS. This with one of our new PEARL OR TAN DERBY HATS will cure the worst case. UTK, Minneapolis.
