THE GLOBE EXCURSION.

Newsboys of St. Paul and Minneapo lis, give us your ear for a moment. The GLOBE has something to tell you, and we want you to listen. We have been telling our readers that the philanthropic people of the two cities ought to provide picnic excursions for the little folks. Now, as evidence that we are willing to practice what we preach, the GLOBE has arranged to give the newsboys and carriers of St. Paul and Minneapolis who serve the GLOBE a grand excursion and picnic next Saturday. Arrangements have been made to go out on the Saturday morning train on the Manitoba road to Minnetonka, where the excursionists will board one of Commodore ZIMMERMAN's finest steamers and make a tour of the lakes, returning to the Hotel St. Louis at 1 o'clock, where a sumptuous lunch will be served in the pavilion by Manager EMERSON. The boys will be allowed to have a romp during the afternoon in the magnificent grove surrounding the hotel and will be returned to their homes on one of the late afternoon trains. The boys will be properly eared for by the officials of the Manitoba road on the trains to and from the lake, and will be kindly looked after on the steamer by Commodore ZIMMERMAN and his assistants. Several members of the nists to see that every precantion is taken to avoid accidents, and every effort will be exerted to make the occasion as enjoyable for the little fellows as it is possible to make it.

All boys who sell or deliver the GLOBES in either St. Paul or Minneapolis are invited to join the excursion Those in Minneapolis who intend to join the party are requested to leave their names at once at the GLOBE office in that city, and the St. Paul boys will leave their names with the city circulator at the GLOBE office in this city.

Boys, we intend that you shall have a good time, and the GLOBE wants every one of you to join the excursion. It is a free excursion for you, tendered by the GLOBE as a recognition of your faithful services in its behalf, and because we think a day's airing in the country will do you good.

FREE BATHING.

A correspondent who indorses the GLOBE's advocacy of a free public bathing house wishes to know if any other cities have yet adopted the plan. Only a few of them have, probably not more than half a dozen. Still the experiment has been attended with most satisfactory results. Boston has 17 public baths; New York, 15: Philadelphia, 5; Brooklyn, 3; Buffalo, Cleveland and Hartford, 1 each. The statistics show that in one season in New York 3,431,-086 persons bathed from June to Octo ber. During the same time in Boston the number of people who availed themselves of the opportunity for a free ab-lution was 959,765, and in Brooklyn, where there were only three baths, the bathers numbered 225,885. Statistics further show that in eighteen cities where there are no public baths only about 23 per cent. of the residences are supplied with bath tubs. These figures have a tendency to strengthen the GLOBE's advocacy of a free bath house.

FOOT-PADS AND LIGHTS.

Highway robberies have become unpleasantly numerous in St. Paul of late. The footpads, who seemed to have given this city a wide berth, have, for some reason, appeared in force, and despite the utmost vigilance of the police, the result of their labors is almost daily, or rather nightly, seen in the "holding up" of some belated passer-by. Your thor ough-paced footpad is about as cowardly a person as breathes the air of life. He takes no chances, but always makes sure of coming upon his victim unawares. He has the cunning of the sneak-thief without the courage of the professional burglar, and is a vile combination of both. He should be hunted down without mercy, and if in attacking some apparently guileless citizen he should receive a bit of cold lead, public sympathy would hardly be excited in his favor. But there is another remedy for the footpad evil beside watchfulness on the part of police and belated citizens. Let the city provide more liberally for lighting the streets and the highway will be less adventurous. He is fond of "ways that are dark" and rarely frequents well-

INVITING THE PRESIDENT. St. Paul and Minneapolis want the resident and his wife to visit them, and have already taken the preliminary steps toward indicating to him that desire. But the Twin Cities are not alone in wishing to claim the president as a guest. The entire state of Minnesota wants to welcome him, and it is in the name of the whole state as well as on behalf of its principal cities that the invitation should be tendered. The committee already appointed in this city recognizes this fact, and, after a conference with the Minneapolis committee, every organization in the state will be invited to join in the invitation. This is as it should be, for it is not only one or two cities, but the people of the entire state, of the whole West, whose acquaintance the president should make, and who regard his coming with unmixed pleasure. The invitation to join in a common testimonial of the desire on the part of the Northwest to have the president come among us should be generally responded to, and the invitation sent him should have a ring in it that will leave no doubt of its cordiality.

THE indorsement which the Ohio convention gave the president is simply preliminary to the one he will probably receive a year hence at the hands of the entire country.

Perhaps it got too hot in the Garden City for the Chicago boodler who has escaped and is now probably cooling off in a me ern region, Canada for instance. THE president has promised to go to St. Louis, which is a good enough preliminary to

The epitaph on Salvino's tombstone reads: "The inventor of specta cles. May God pardon his sins."

And yet there have been fewer inventions which have conferred a greater blessing than the humble spectacle. Dr. Johnson once expressed his surprise that the invento had never found a worthy biographer to had never found a worthy biographer to celebrate his ingenuity. It is probably be-cause of the uncertainty of his name that a grateful posterity have been prevented be-stowing upon his memory that honor which is so richly merited.

Ex-Congressman Tucker, of Virginia, who has a great reputation as a college com-mencement orator, delivered the annual ora-tion at the closing exercises of the South Carolina university. He had a pitcher of iced tea set before him and refreshed him-self frequently therefrom. The Southern Christian Advocate thought it was champagne, and gave Mr. Tucker a downrigh good scolding for setting such a bad example to the youth of the country. It took Mr. Tucken's friends a long while to convince the religious editor of his mistake and to get his journal to take it all back. Such is the penalty of having been a congressman.

The invitation sent by Kansas City request ing President CLEVELAND to visit that town is the flashiest thing of the age. The invita-tion is in book form, eleven inches long, sixteen inches wide and four inches thick. The binding is of seal skin, being the first in-stance of the use of this valuable skin for book binding. On the front cover of the book, sunk in the binding, is a square of white satin, on which is engrossed Kansas City's greeting to the president and wife. On the title page is the word "Venite," followed by water color pictures. The invitation is signed by 21,000 citizens. The book is inclosed in a case of sealskin embossed in gold and lined with gold plush.

It looks as if the Kansas City invitation ought to fetch the president. But it won't. This is a Democratic administration, with which high fangled notions count for naught.
St. Paul is going te send an old Anny Jackson sort of an invitation, inscribed on birch bark, with a promise of plenty hominy and sweet potatoes. Then the whole cabinet will come right along with the president.

The new issue which John Wise attempte to create for the Republican party in his Fourth of July speech at Philadelphia is broadening. A St. Paul gentleman arises in this morning's Globe to sustain the position taken by Mr. Wise that George Washington was not a good speller. Mr. Wise's St. Paul backer goes further and implicates two other very worthy people in the accusation of being deficient in orthography.

The two additional ex-notables who are arraigned under this charge are no other than the illustrious ALEXANDER HAMILTON and that good woman of precious memory, Mrs. MARTHA WASHINGTON. If our correspondent is correct in his statements it was Alexan-DER HAMILTON who was responsible for that miserably misspelled document, the celebrated Farewell Address. HAMILTON never was a Democrat, and we are not going out of our way to defend him. But the Democratic party is going to stand up for George Washingron. And there is too much chivalry in the party ever to permit the memory of a good woman to be aspersed.

Washington's Illiteracy.

To tle Editor of the Globe. There were two short notes in the "Stray Sunbeam" column of your paper this morning in regard to John Wise's Fourth of July speech, wherein he inti-mates that Washington was "so illiter-ate that he could not write his cele-brated farewell address without filling it with misspelled words."

The fact that Washington was illiter

The fact that Washington was illiterate, I had supposed, was well known by every reader. George, and Martha, his wife, too, could not write a grammatical letter; and the spelling of both was of the very worst. But did George Washington really write his celebrated farewell? We answer, "No, not a line of it." When Washington was about to take his leave of the army he asked Alexander Hamilton to write him a farewell address. Hamilton did so, and sent it to him, and Washington, after reading it, made a change of a very few words and returned it to Hamilton, who made a copy and forwarded it to Washington, keeping the original with the changes in Washington's own hand, and that address written by Hamilton is the famous "farewell address of George Washington." Washington.

Washington."

Now, as "the proof of the pudding is in eating the bag," so "the proof of this lies in the fact that the original paper, with the changes made by Washington, was quite recently—and probably is now—in possession of a descendant of Hamilton who is living in New York."

What I tell you here comes from the lips of a gentleman who recently died in this city, and he had the reputation of being a man of honor, and was probably the best informed man on events in American history that ever lived in in American history that ever li the state of Minnesota, to say the

By the amendment to the constitution the whole matter is left to the legislature, with the restriction that the mode shall be general and the law uniform in its operation. The law

WAS NOT UNIFORM, tecause it required a three-fifths vote in some counties and only a majority vate in others. It made a distinction in classifying the counties. The matter of classification is gone into at great length by the opinion, and the Pennsylvania and New Jersey supreme court decisions are referred to. Judge Gilfillan holds, however, that in this case either the majority rule or the three-fifths rule should apply uniformly throughout the state. The court says the act is not udconstitutional becaus of the proviso, for that alone is not unconstitutional. The law is unconstitutional, because it provides two rules not based upon any proper classification. To cut out either and leave the other to stand would be legislation and not judicial action.

CARS ON ALL STREETS.

In the St. Paul City Railway company case the court goes against the city council. On January 8, 1872, the council passed the ordinance granting the franchise to lay tracks upon the "streets of the city" to the St. Paul "Street" Railway company, and the legislature in the following February confirmed the ordinance. The council afterwards passed a repealing ordinance, upon a protest from Pleasant avenue and Oak street residents, that all authority that had been granted by ordinance to any person or persons, company or corporation, to lay a railway track upon Pleasant avenue and Oak street, between Sixth and Ramsey streets, be revoked and repealed. The court holds that it is immaterial to the validity of the grant whether the company was a corporation and repeated. The count hous that its whether the company was a corporation or partnership, and that the original grant was in the nature of the contract and if valid as to the city the council could not rescind it. It also holds that although a municipal corporation cannot irrevocably surrender any part of its control over the public streets without the consent of the legislature, for it holds that power in trust for the state, yet when the ordinance was confirmed by the act of 1883 it became as binding as though the council had had express authority to pass it, and from that time the power of the council may grant to other companies the right of way along its streets, but whether it can recall the right granted to the St. Paul City Raifway company now that the legislature The proceedings of the general court martial in the case of Private John Mc-Nillie, Troop M, Seventh cavalry, Fort Meade, Dak., have just been published. There were four separate charges and five specifications preferred against the prisoner, recounting the stealing of a horse from his troop, together with a miscellaneous lot of horse equipments, a pistol, sabre, etc., and desertion. The court finds the prisoner guilty of the charges alleged, and sentences him to be dishonorably discharged from the service of the United States, forfeiting all pay and allowances now due or that may become due him, and to be confined at hard labor in such penitentiary as the reviewing authority may direct, for the period of ten years. The department commander remits three years of the term imposed by the court, thus reducing the sentence to seven years, and designates the state penitentiary at Stillwater, Minn., as the place where the sentence to confinement shall be undergone, and where the prisoner will be sentence awarded by a general court martial in the case of Walter Mc-Kaight, late private, Troop I, Fifth cavalry, now a military convict serving sentence at Fort Smpoly. Tony App, a saloonkeeper on Jackson reet, near Fourth, was shot by John Reed, formerly a clerk in the Hotel Ryan, in a row which took place in Seely's saloon in the panorama building at 1 o'clock this morning. App and Reed were drinking together at the bar with two or three friends when a dispute arose, and App slapped Reed, who is a smaller man, in the face. Reed clinched with him, and they exchanged blows, but were quickly separated by Mr. Seely. While Seely was trying to pacify App, Reed went back to the water closet and washed the blood from his closet and washed the blood from his face. Coming out he stood in the doorway of the water closet, and drew a revolver, shouting to Seeley, "Look out, I'm going to shoot," he took deliberate aim at App and fired four times, three of the bullets entering App's body, one in the arm, another in the side, the third and most dangerous in the back, just to the right of the spine. App walked to a carriage and was driven home. The oxtent of his was driven home. The oxtent of his injuries cannot yet be determined. Reed pocketed his pistol and escaped through the rear door.

IN MALE ATTIRE. A Minneapolis Girl Sets Out to Follow the Circus, Dressed in Her Father's Clothes.

Lizzie Bernholz, a pretty German girl of twenty-three years, disappeared from her home at 116 Plymouth avenue late last evening, dressed in male attire. Her father notified Inspector Kinand the police were put the alert. The girl was on the alert. The girl was arrested at the union depot in St. Paul shortly before midnight by Special Officer Doherty and booked at the central station as a suspicious character. She gave the name Lizzie Sthamann, and refused to answer all questions. She was dressed in a faded gray coat, and trousers that were too and trousers that were too long by six inches, and wore her long hair matted beneath a big slouch hat that came down over her ears. She has a pretty and intelligent face and pleasing manners. She is said to have been "circus crazy" for some time and ambitious to be a circus some time and ambituous to be a circus yes-performer. She went to the circus yes-terday afternoon, and directly after coming home, dressed herself in some old clothing belonging to her father and skipped out. In her infatuation she be-lieved that if she adopted male attire she might follow the circus with safety, and perhaps get a chance to learn to be and perhaps get a chance to learn to be a bareback rider.

The French Republic.

PARIS, July 25 .- M. Ferry, speaking at a Tirailleur banquet at Epital to-day, dilated npon the uses of rifle societies. Such societies, he said, represented a practical patriotism that was silent and hard working, a patriotism very different from the noisy, uproarious, empty patriotism favored in certain circles. He expressed disapproval of the project to reduce the terms of service in the army. It was not a national guard that France needed, but a defensive army proportionate to the offnsive forces surrounding her. He praised the army for always remaining aloof from politics. He denounced those who he said, accused the government of being antinational because it wouldn't allow the mob to interfere with the deliberate action of the duty, constitute public powers not follow the mob behind the car of a God of the music halls. THE MADISON G. A. R. Further Developments in the Present Rumpus.

Special to the Globe.

MADISON, Wis., July 25.—Matters with regard to the row in Gen. Fairehild's G. A. R. post took on a decidedly interesting turn to-night. J. W. Carman, the officer of the day, who became unruly and kicked up a muss at the last meeting by removing his insignia of of-fice, together with the badge of the orfice, together with the badge of the order, and declaring he had had enough of the G. A. R., comes out with a letter to-night saying there was no row or political talk of any kind. This letter must have been the outgrowth of a sudden change of mind on the part of Carman, as he was in fact the man who gave the whole thing away in the first place. In response to this letter Hugh Lewis, a one-armed veteran of the Iron brigade and a great personal friend of Gen. Bragg, and who caused the first sensation in the post by withdrawing from the G. A.
