THEATRICAL TALK.

Keene at the Hennepin Avenue This Week.

ATTRACTIONS AT THE GRAND.

"Guv'ner" at the People's---Bills at the Pence and Others.

Thomas W. Keene, the eminent tragedian, appears at the Hennepin Avenue theater all of next week, in the following repertoire: Monday, "Richelieu;" Tuesday, "Julius Cæsar;" Wednesday and Saturday, "Richard III.;" Thursand Saturday, "Richard III.;" Inursday, "Othello;" Friday, "Hamlet," and Saturday matinee, the only matinee, "Merchant of Venice." Mr. Keene comes to Minneapolis direct from Chicago where he has just opened the new and magnificent Haymarket theater, playing two weeks there to crowded and anthusistic houses. His government is enthusiastic houses. His company is warmly praised on all sides and is said to be the finest legitimate company that ever supported a tragedian. Keene al-ways carried a strong company, and the good reports we heard of it can readily be believed when the good any contrins be believed when the com, any contains such well known artists as Joseph Wheelock, Arthur Elliott, Eugene Moore, Miss Anna Boyle, Miss Constance Hambling and other parts that place Hamblin and others of that class. Speaking of Keene's opening night the New York Graphic says: "The event was observed by a very large and exceptionally intelligent audience, and the reception accorded Mr. Keene was so enthusiastic as to leave no question that the actor's period of absence from the field of active work has at all dimmed the high regard in which he was previously held. Indeed, his first appearance last night in the character appearance last night in the character of Richelieu evoked a storm of applause that swept over the crowded auditorium of the Chicago opera house again and again, delaying the action of the play for a good ten minutes while the actor, who was visibly affected by the warmth and extent of his greating that the control of the crowd but in the crowd affected by the warmth and extent of his greeting, stood bowing his acknowledgements to the cheering throng. Throughout the evening, as the tragedy progressed to its close, these manifestations of hearty praise and good will were frequently repeated, and Mr. Keene was called before the curtain a great number of times to answer the acclamations of the audience. In every acclamations of the audience. In every sense this opening of Mr. Keene's sea-son is to be regarded as a far greater success than had been anticipated by that gentleman's most sanguine friends, and there are on all sides warm praises of the vigor, the strength and the scholarly quality of his work.

Beginning Monday and continuing for three nights and Saturday matinee, Ezra C. Kendall, the eccentric comedian, supported by Arthur and Jennie Dunn, Gilbert Sarony and other clever farceurs, will present his latest success, "A Pair of Kids." This farcical concert has now been played for over two years with the greatest success, in the princiwith the greatest success in the princi-pal cities of the United States, and has always did larger business on its re-turn. "A Pair of Kids" has been seen turn. "A Pair of Kids" has been seen here last season, and was enjoyed by large audiences. The concert is of the "Dreams" and "Bunch of Keys" order, and the part that Mr. Kendall assumes is that of an old "jay." In this character role Mr. Kendall is inimitable, and made the hit of "We, Us & Co." in the part of Dr. Medicus. On Wednesday the 1,000th performance of "A Pairjof Kids" will be reached, and the management announce that every lady attending the matinee and buying down stairs' seats matinee and buying down stairs' seats will receive a handsome pair of kid

It will also be given Monday night. "The Streets of New York" will follow Tuesday and Wednesday and Wednesday matinee, and "Peck's Bad Boy" the remainder of the week. The Pence caters ably to its large clientele, and its work. ably to its large clientele, and its work is appreciated. Manager Bock will appear in every play this week.

This week will be presented at the People's theater, for the first time in this city, the funniest of all English comedies, entitled "The Guv'nor." The funny sayings and situations of this comedy are said to be distributed through the piece in a most admirable and appropriate manner, and keep the audience in a continuous roar of laughter. It will be placed upon the stage in the same excellent manner that has marked all the past productions seen at this popular resort, and will undoubtedly insure for the People's another week of success. The past week the "Two Orphans" have been playing to splendid business, and gave the best of satisfaction.

Arrangements have been made with the Milwaukee road for a special train to leave the Minneapolis depot every evening next week after the close of the Keene performance at the Hennepin Avenue theater.

Fox & Watson's Specialty Magnets will draw at the Comique this week.

the Municipality. Health Officer Kilvington's suggestion that the garbage and manure of the city should be in some way utilized, instead of being wasted by being dumped into the river, met with a hearty approval from a well attended meeting of market gardeners and horticulturists held at Market hall yesterday after-noon, although opinions as to how this end could be accomplished differed somewhat. President Pierce read a paper, in which he said the removal of garbage meant health to the city and cheap manure for the gardeners. He thought dump stations should be established on all railroads running out of the city so the gardeners could secure manure by paying for its transportation. In his by paying for its transportation. In his paper he also advocated that a committhe should be appointed to confer with the board of health to prevent the is-suance of licenses to peddlers who re-tail spoiled fruit and vegetables about Health Officer Kilvington stated that Health Officer Kilvington stated that from 300 to 500 loads of manure are being dumped in the river daily and wasted. He thought the only thing necessary was to hit upon some feasible scheme for making the refuse available to the gardeners. He thought the railroad plan advocated by President Pierce impracticable, and advised that four suburban dumps should be established. suburban dumps should be established from which the gardeners could haul away the manure. He at once notified the paper that not only must it retract the lie, but must furnish its authority or take the consequences. It will grovel in the dirt this morning. The Tribune is the next sufferer. It published a libel on County Commissioner A. L. Lennon, and he promptly served a notice for a retraction. There was gore in the demand, and it will be complied with.

Took a Few Things. Friday night Eric Erickson, a Swede laborer, broke into the jewelry store of A. H. Schultz, at 322 Cedar avenue, and carried off eleven silver watch cases, carried off eleven silver watch cases, one gold watch case, four silver watches, forty-nine gold rings. seven watch chains, of the total value of $310. He was arrested about 2 o'clock yesterday morning by Sergt. Krumweide, and the property was found on his person. He yesterday waived examination in the municipal court, and was held to the grand jury.

Four Young Thieves. Friday night the warehouse of D. L. Brown, furrier, on First avenue north, between Third and Fourth streets, was broken open and a number of fur coats stolen. Yesterday morning some work-men found four of the coats in a lumber yard, where they had been hidden. Later in the day Inspectors Howard and Doyle arrested four young thieves, who confessed to the robbery.

HER HISTORY'S BEST YEAR.

With the opening of the new year the GLOBE intends to supply the public, and especially those interested in values and buildings, with a column that shall be second to none in the fullness of its news, the regularity and accuracy of its figures, and the latest data in reference to the real estate market in Minneence to the real estate market in Minne-apolis. At the present time, and for a few months to come, news will be a scarce quantity. The next few months are a hibernating period for the broker and agent, wherein he puts on his thinking cap and schemes for the com-ing of spring with all the feverish ex-pectance and pleasant anticipations of their only rivals—the poets. The men who hold this market and control it, the men who are at the head of the great who hold this market and control it, themen who are at the head of the great houses—who have really so largely aided in building up the city, seem unanimous in agreeing that real estate is in a healthy, proper condition for the season of the year. The prospects of a busy, active spring are splendid, but for the present things are absolutely quiet, and nothing else need be expected. "The prospects point very clearly," said a veteran authority vesterday, "to a great improvement in building this year, I think, and it is after mature and careful deliberation, that the main activity will be in inside property during the coming deliberation, that the main activity will be in inside property during the coming months. Speculation will go on as usual, of course, in the outlying districts, but the transactions this year that will build up the city will be some I know of, that are being floated already, and which will be in the city and involve the erection of some handsome blocks, and that is what is volve the erection of some handsome blocks, and that is what is wanted to give Minneapolis an impetus at the present time. She needs more business blocks. I have not the least doubt but if twenty fair sized buildings were erected in the course of the year they could all be rented as soon as the foundations were laid. I have great faith in the real estate of this city, hefaith in the real estate of this city, be-cause watching it as I have for years I see signs on the horizon that foretell good for the future. There is a gradual disappearing of shysters out of the disappearing of shysters out of the trade—men who are seeking more congenial climes—Kansas City and California for instance, and the centering of the business into the hands of well-known reliable houses that speaks splendidly for the solidity and the conservative condition of things into which this branch of business is slowly but surely drifting. It is just as interesting to drifting. It is just as interesting to watch the trend of streets to-day as it is to old settlers to look back upon the time when rivalry existed between Nicollet, Hennepin and Washington avenues. Fourth street seems now to be the banner thoroughfare. It is certainly gone beyond the embryotic stage, and the unfinished buildings already laid speak for themselves as to its popu-larity with the business men of this period. Fifth does not show up as yet in the light of being boomed any, but Sixth street promises to become quite a thoroughfare in the next few years. The buildings at present being erected there, being quite ambitious looking, and large in their proportions.

The Chicago Herald, in its real estate and building summary, makes the total amount of transfers of real estate for 1887, 10,175, with a total consideration of $55,232,292. Astonishing as the statement may seem, this is not as much business as Minneapolis did with her considerations of $59,000,000. In buildconsiderations of $59,000,000. In building, too, Chicago with its 800,000 population only spent $19,744,600 to Minneapolis' $12,000,000 with 175,000 population To show how the two cities have no rival west of Chicago and how they are growing, the following figures are given: Population, 1887, as reported by Dun's commercial agency, Chicago, $20,000. JOHN RUSKIN'S ROMANCE.

How He Courted, Married, and Was Divorced From His Idealistic Woman,

New York Graphic. John Ruskin did a strangely wayward thing when he consented to get married. He did a most erratic and to the public a most inexplicable thing when he arranged for his divorce.

He had accepted some of the loftiest He had accepted some of the loftiest traditions about womanhood that men sometimes read of and talk about, and he looked for his ideal companion. One night he met her in the drawing room of a London friend, who, without his knowing it, had brought the young lady to meet the eyes of the great writer.

It was a June night, he was thirtyfive, and she looked like a Greek goddes.

He was dazzled. She was a tall, graceful girl of nineteen, with a face graceful girl of nineteen, with a face and figure as faultless as one of the statues of old. No one ever expected Ruskin to fall in love, and he did not. She was poor, needed a home and its comforts, and so they were married.

Their wedded life was peaceful, friendly, kindly to the highest degree, but there was not a spark of affection to lighten their existence. She admired the great man she had married, and was grateful for the wealth and comfort he showered on her. He worshiped her as he would the marble made life-like by the sculptor's chisel.

There was nothing human about the

There was nothing human about the life they led as husband and wife; and she was a woman who in her heart, like all true women, laughed at the tradi-tions that made her sex-love distant worship.

One day Ruskin brought an artist to paint his wife's picture. And the man was Millais; and he was a bright, cheery, handsome fellow, human every inch of him, with a great and absorbing love for the beautiful, and a willingness to tell of his love.

He began to paint the portrait of the magnificent woman, and when he had finished he was in love with his friend's

Womanlike she saw it, and perhaps she was not full of sorrow and reproach. It was the first tribute of real manful love that had been laid at her feet.

And Ruskin? His wide eyes saw the romance that was weaving around those two lives, and his heart realized how little affection he had to lavish on the woman whom he had made his wife.

How he told her the story of his pride in her and the sacrifice he was to make for her, while she lay prone at his feet, is one of the things which only he or she could tell. It is difficult to obtain a divorce in England, but John Ruskin secured it for her, and one bracing morning in the early winter, a month after the divorce was granted, Ruskin stood beside the couple in one of London's quiet churches and saw them made man and wife.

That was a good many years ago, and since then Millais has become rich and famous, and is now Sir John, and his ramous, and is now Sir John, and his wife is my Lady Millais.

The warmest, sturdiest friend the struggling painter had in his toiling days was the man whose wife he had married, and through all the years of Millais' later success and great honor John Ruskin has been the welcome guest, and almost daily visitor to the guest and almost daily visitor to the man and woman whose lives he so selfishly crowned with happiness.

A Judicious Husband.

Audubon Magazine I was walking through the edge of a clearing when I started up a mother bird, apparently looking for a good site for her nest. She was much excited, and flew about hither and thither, cry-ing, "cheep, cheep," and twitching her tail nervously. She made so much noise that her husband heard her and came flying home to find out what was the matter. He did not think either my dogs or I looked belligerent, but he followed her about from limb to limb to lowed her about from limb to limb to be on hand in case any thing should happen. It was very evident that he did not sympathize with her fears, as he neither cried out nor jerked his tail; and after he had chased her here and there, up and down, back and forth, for some time, he turned towards her on the branch and looked at her, as much as to say: "Oh, you freegome creature! Why oranch and looked at her, as much as to say: "Oh, you tiresome creature! Why will you be so absurd? Don't you see that they are not going to hurt you?"

His contempt had no effect, however, and—he opened his mouth at her. This threat of conjugal authority subdued her, and at last she meekly flew off into the woods with him.
