SNIVEL SERVICE REFORM.

The wave of Harrisonian service reform is soon to carry Dan Ahern, superintendent of mails, out of the postoffice. The pretext is made that this position is hereafter to be controlled by the superintendent of railway postal service, and that the appointee is to be from that department. If there is any truth in this assertion, H. C. Parlin, who has been head clerk of the Chicago and Minneapolis branch of the railway postal service on the Milwaukee road, will probably get the appointment. It is generally thought pointment. It is generally thought this is but a subterfuge, however, and ex-Ald. Muldoon and Ald. Jay Phillips are making a hustle for the place. Mr. Ahern has filled the piace capably, and the only fault found with him is that he is a Democrat. He will take with him the friendship of all in his department, and as he has had several advantageous business offers, probably does not grieve much over his departure. One curious thing about this particular wave of civil service reform is that it removes Demo-cratic superintendents of mails at Min-neapolis and Chicago, and leaves Re-publican superintendents untouched at St. Paul and Milwaukee.

Rumors About That Cars Will Begin Regular Trips This Morning.

Hennepin Legislators Refuse to Accept Suggestions of Workingmen.

An Evening Meeting at Which Lowry and Mayor Babb Are Roasted.

The street car strike at Minneapolis is becoming an enigma. Just why no effort was made to start the cars vesterday, as President Lowry has claimed he had plenty of drivers, no one could tell. The streets were quiet, and the police force has certainly had plenty of time to prepare to furnish protection Special police have been sworn in almost by the hundred, and the militia has been kept in waiting. Ald. McGowan, Farnsworth, Brue-shaber, Swanson, Gray, Vander-warker and Ingenhutt called on Mayor Baob with a petition, asking him to call a special meeting of the council. They told him that the public was suffering a serious inconvenience, and it was time that some action should be takenr Mayor Babb, however, refused to call a meeting, and gave as his excuse that he could not furnish protec-tion to the company. One alderman in-timated that he did not seem to be acting for the public, and as mayor of the city, but was standing in with the company, which has not the men to fill the strikers' places, and will be obliged to send outside the city for them. Argument was of no use, and the aldermen left not overhurdened with respect for left, not overburdened with respect for the mayor's weak and dilatory policy. While among the police, however, and on the streets, it is thought the attempt will be made to-day, the aldermen got the impression from the mayor that no effort will be made, perhaps, for several days.

DO THEY MEAN IT?

Report That Cars Will Be Started This Morning. At last the end, or the beginning, of the great strike on the Minneapolis Street Railway company is in sight. This morning at 6 o'clock the company will make an endeavor to start the cars on every line in the city and ran motor trains on regular time. Whether the experiment will be a success or not remains to be seen. On the one hand the laboring men of Minneapolis realize forcibly that if they are beaten in this strike, in which they are sustained by popular sentiment, the days of union organizations are over in Minneapolis and that in the future they need expect nothing at the hands of the great cor-porations. On the other hand is the street car company, headed by Thomas Lowry, battling against organized labor. If the strikers are successful, it means that the labor organizations will, to some extent, control matters in Minneapolis; and no one realizes this more than the and no one realizes this more than the gentlemen who are interested in the street car company. For that very rea-son, the struggle is to be a hard one, and can only end in the utter and en tire defeat of one side or the other, since Mr. Lowry has declared that he will not arbitrate, and the strikers will not sign the "iron-bound contract," and return to work at the wages offered by the company. That is the situation, and the dawn of Wednesday is viewed with concern, to say the least. After long and exceedingly tiresome wa which has been fraught with tiresome suspense, a plan of action has been decided on, and to-day will determine the victors. After consultation and conference with the mayor and the superin tendent of police, the street car com-pany has decided to run cars to-day, readiness to answer to a call, in case the police force is found inadequate to handle the crowds. There are now nearly 100 special men on duty on the outlying beats, and nearly every regular officer on the entire force is ready for action. It is more than probable that there will be trouble, and the police realize it fully. All day yesterday the various gun stores about the city did an immense business in the sale of revolvers. The purchasers were not strikers, nor were they policemen, but men who are looking for trouble, and mean to bring on a conflict between

E. H. Day Victimizes Some Minneapolis People.

E. H. Day, the St. Louis syrup drummer, whose arrest on a charge of forgery was mentioned in yesterday's GLOBE, seems to have had quite an eventful career in the Northwest. He stayed some days in the latter part of March at the Hotel Warwick, where he paid his bill with a check which was afterwards learned to be a forgery. He sold from samples which he carried. He sold from samples which he carried, some syrups to C. S. Brackett, the Fifth street groeer. Brackett gave him a check for the amount, and after producing a letter authorizing him so to do, he endorsed the paper in the company's name and got the grocer to cash it. Later it was discovered that he had swindled both parties, and Mr. Dow, proprietor of the Warwick, followed him to St. Paul and found that he had swindled several persons there. the city authorities to go ahead, replied that such was the case.

"You see." said he, "the street car company has desired to run the cars all along, but we could not promise them police protection. You see our police force is very small, and it takes some time to get the new men stationed and accustomed to attend to their duties. We don't want them to start the cars again until they can run them. The company was very anxious to start the cars Monday, but I knew that if there was any such crowd on the street as there was Saturday, even though it was good-natured, our police force would be too small, and then there might be a riot. This was the second day of the trial, and the wit-Ingenhult signed a petition to the mayor requesting him to call an extra session of the council for this morning to take nesses, who on the whole were very shy of reporters, said they thought all the evidence would be in by evening. Five o'clock, time for adjourning, came and still the door was locked. At about half-past five the doors were opened and Mrs. Jennie Weldon, accomand panied by another lady, came laughingly out of the court room with as much seeming gayety as she could have borne in her happiest cuss its advisibility, and it was finally decided to call no meeting, but leave the matter entirely in the hands of his presentation as May Templeton during her years on the stage. Price of Meat Raised Because of the

Meat Inspection Bill. The Council's Auditing Committee

VIEWS OF LOCAL DEALERS.

Porterhouse Will Cost More, but Common Meats Are Unchanged Thus Far.

The recent passage of the "cattle bill," providing that all cattle to be slaughtered and offered for sale in Minnesota markets must be inspected on the hoof by a local inspector within 24 hours before being killed, has settled for the time being the importation of deceased meat from Chicago, Kansas City and other points to Minneapolis, as well as to other places in the state. Heretofore the local meat men have been receiving from 90 to 110 carloads of dressed meat per week, from outside points. This meat consisted mainly of the choicer portions of the animal, there being plenty of the common grade to be obtained here in Minneapolis. Already has the passage of the bill, which is now only waiting for the gov-ernor's signature to become a law inernor's signature to become a law, in creased the price of meat in certain quarters, and from all appearances it is probable that the higher price will be kept up on the choicer meats, such as loins, porterhouse and first rib roasts. The price of the common grade of meats will not be raised to any extent except, perhaps, under the ordinary fluctua-tions of the market. Of course, at some of the shops in the city the prices have already been raised, but it is held by the larger meat dealers that these prices will only be maintained for a hort time, except on the better grades. Mhe dealers in the center of the city, whose trade is largely in the better quality of meats, are not particularly elated over the passage of the bill, as it prevents them from obtaining the kind of meat they want from outside markets, and forces them to charge a and forces them to charge a higher price for that which they obtain from the home markets, thus cutting down their trade. On the other hand, the dealers on the outside, that is, the outlying portions of the city, whose trade is mainly in the common grades of meat hold that the bill is a grades of meat, hold that the bill is a good thing, and claim that it will help their business in a variety of ways. There is a considerable difference of opinion in regard to the bill, and it is opinion in regard to the bill, and, it is probable that the law will have to be in force for some time before anything definite can be said in regard to it.

While many of the smaller dealers have raised the prices of meat, the large dealers have not done so, and the proprietors claim that such a thing will not be necessary, at present, at least. The following interviews with some of the leading meat dealers in Minneapthe leading meat dealers in Minneapolis, give a very good idea of the situa-tion as it stands at the present time: Col. James Chant—It does not strike me that the bill is going to help farmers to get better prices for their cattle to any great extent, although it may do so in the long run. As matters stand now the demand for the finer meats greatly exceeds the demand for the common grades, and to meet this demand we have what meats we want and can not well obtain here sent in from outside markets. Now that we are prevented from getting this meat from outside markets, I see no way out of the difficulty but to raise the price of the choicer meats, such as first rib roasts. choicer meats, such as first rib roasts, loins and porterhouse, and by that means get people to using more common meats. In a beef there are about thirty or thirty-five pounds of the choicer meats, so you can see that to supply the demand a large number of cattle must be killed. This leaves more meat of the common grade leaves more meat of the common grade on our hands than we can use, and in order to get around this we must induce people to buy more common meat or else have a meat canning factory started here. I do not look for an advance of any note in the price of the ordinary meat. Of course it may raise a cent or two, but the only material advance there will be in the choicer cuts. I see no reason why the passage of this oill should affect the price of meat sold by the dealers on the outskirts of the city. They do not have a large demand order to get around this we must induce city. They do not have a large demand for anything but the common grade of meats, and the dealers can obtain plenty of that right here at home at any time.

J. H. Davis—The bill will have the effect of making dealers raise on certain kinds of meat, the choicer cuts, for instance. The local meat men have been receiving some 100 cars of meat a week from outside markets. This meat has generally been of the best grade, as plenty of ordinary meat could be obtained here at any and all times. If we have got to kill our own animals hereafter, we must find some means of disposing of the common grade of meat, and to this end we have to charge more for the choicer grades. This will compel people to eat more of that grade and less of the other. Another effect of the bill will be to force onto the public the bill will be to force onto the public a poorer grade of meat, for it stands to reason that we cannot raise as good cattle here as they can in the regular catthe nere as they can in the regular cat-tle-raising states. If many live cattle have to be brought here from other places to be inspected and slaughtered, the consumer will, of course, have to pay the increased freight over that charged for dressed meat.

charged for dressed meat.

Minneapolis Provision Company—As far as we are concerned it will not raise the price of our meats. We can get all the meat we want right here in the state, and we see no good reason why prices should be raised. Some dealers always jump at the slightest chance to raise prices, however.

The restaurant men are evidently expecting a big raise in the price of meats of all kinds, as yesterday nearly all of them made an increase in the price of meals, five cents for a single meal and 50 cents on the meal ticket.

TO MEET IN MINNEAPOLIS. The Annual Convention of For esters to Be Held Here.

In August next the National Convention of Foresters will be held in Minneapolis, when 600 delegates from all quarters of the United States are expected to be present. The laws of the order require all the officers of the high court to be elected from among the court to be elected from among the members in this city and St. Paul, and a meeting of Twin City Foresters was held at Plummer post hall Monday night to make selections, which are to be ratified by the convention. J. Wilson Murray was named for high chief ranger and Dr. J. T. Lee sub-high chief ranger; J. C. Henry, treasurer; A. T. Ellis, secretary; F. Smith, senior woodward; W. Watson, junior woodward; Andrew Fraser, senior beadle; C. B. Williams, junior beadle; M. E. Bosliner,

C. E. Shepherd and H. W. Hill, board of auditors; and George L. Monagham, R. E. Williams and J. A. Redgrave, board of trustees, were the other nominations

Margaret Flynn's claim for damages for injuries received in a fall on an icy walk at 119 Nicollet avenue, was denied, and the committee also refused to recommend the payment of $50 for medical attendance claimed by Gust Johnson, who was injured while working on the sewer. W.S. Hull's claim of $25 for damages to his carriage in a collision with Assistant Fire Chief Kenney's buggy was al-lowed. The Drowning of Arthur Freeman.

Several errors erept into the Globe's account of the drowning of a young boy Saturday afternoon, in the river. accident occurred at the foot of First avenue north. The boy's name was Arthur Freeman, and he was eight-and-Artial Freeman, and he was eight-and one-half years old. He was found by his father, I. L. Freeman, at the point where he probably fell into the water from the log on which he had been playing. The funeral occurred Monday afternoon from the family residence, 1415 Washington avenue, porth. dence, 1 415 Washington avenue north He "Did" the Liverymen. Frank Smith, a young man who has contracted a very unpleasant habit of hiring teams for an hour or two and turning them loose to wander home after driving them for a whole day or night, and who was discharged after be ing tried Monday for an offense of that kind, was rearrested yesterday on a similar charge preferred by Butte, the liveryman on Second avenue north. He was convicted of cruelty to animals and remanded to await sentence. Capt, Brown Makes $30,500. The old theater Comique property has finally been sold by Capt. W. W. Brown to a man named Robinson, a resident of Vermont. The price paid was $60,000. Six years ago Capt. Brown bought the place for $29,500. Capt. Brown has secured a lease of the place, running for two years and three months, and at the expiration of that time will go out of business. Fell Thirty Feet.

MR. THARALSON'S GOOD FOR-TUNE.

He Wins the "Solberg Point" Suit. Mr. Andrew Tharalson, owner of the beautiful "Solberg Point" property at Excelsior, has just had the benefit of a free and successful defense of his property against an action of ejectment in the district court, brought by the heirs of former owners. He was the fortu-nate holder of Policy No. 1076 of the Minnesota Title Insurance Company, Minnesota Title Insurance Company, under the terms of which the company made the defense at its own cost and charge. Had he not been "wise in time," this litigation would have cost him a handsome sum. To be sure, this issue of the case does not necessarily settle the matter, for the claimants may bring any number of actions of the same kind. Mr. Tharalson, however, can feel at ease, because he has a twenty-five-year policy, under which the company must defend him against all such litigation, while others similarly situated, but without title insurance, must make the defense at their own must make the defense at their own MINNEAPOLIS, Minn. April 12, 1889 -C. B. Shove, Secretary Millers' and Manufacturers' Mutual Insurance Company, City—Dear Sir Mutual Insurance Company, City—Dear Sir:

On the night of April 8 a fire started in our shavings vault, located near our boilers, which was promptly arrested and controlled by the Grinnell automatic sprinklers, and we are very glad to express in this manner our entire satisfaction with the protection afforded us by this sprinkler system. And to those who may question the efficiency of this system for giving the same protection in winter as in summer, will say that we had not changed from the dry pipe or air system to the wet pipe system, owing to the uncertainty of the weather and the liability of the pipes freezing up. I WOULD respectfully announce to my many patrons and to all lovers of a good horse that after April 15 I will be prepared to show at the Palace stables, Minneapolis, the finest lot of saddle and combined horses ever shipped to the state. Also one fine bay carriage team, one fancy light team and several first-class single drivers and fast green pacers. Every horse guaranteed strictly as represented. F. G. tainty of the weather and the liability of the pipes freezing up.

The action of these sprinklers was as prompt and efficient as as though they had been upon the wet pipe system. We have every confidence in them and recommend them to any one contemplating a fire protection that never sleeps. We should not feel safe without them. Yours very truly,
