IDA MAY IS AT HOME

Return of the Minneapolis Girl About Whom There Was So Much Talk.

She Is Soon to Be Married to Henry J. Mylius, of Milan, Italy.

He Has Banker Brothers at Adrian, Minn., and Is Himself Wealthy.

A Friend of the Family Asserts That Miss Wilcox Did Not Elope at All.

Special to the Globe. NEW YORK, Aug. 4 .- Among the passengers by the French steamship La Bretaque to-day were two ladies, both so ill and exhausted from their voyage that they had to be supported and almost carried to a carriage by an elderly gentleman, who stood waiting at the pier. The ladies were Mrs. Charles Wilcox and her daughter Miss Ida May Wilcox, and the gentleman was the husband of one and the father of the other. There is nothing in Miss Wilcox's appear ance to suggest the heroine of a scandal, which caused the gossips of two countries to wag their tongues. She was dressed upon her arrival in sober gray, and paid little attention to the ADMIRING GLANCES of the crowd on the pier. The party took a carriage for the Grand hotel, where the ladies at once retired. Although several friends called to see them during the day, they excused themselves to everybody. Mrs. Wilcox declined to say anything for publication. The party will leave for Minneapolis to-morrow or Tuesday. Three big trunks, the property of Miss Wilcox, explained the object of the return from Europe. They contain Miss Wil-cox's trousseau. She is to be married in October at her father's home in Minneapolis, and it is to prepare for that event that the young lady and her mother have forsaken Paris. The bridegroom-to-be, as reported by the family, is Henry J. Mylius, of Milan, Italy. He is a young Englishman who lived once at Adrian, Minn., where his BROTHERS ARE BANKERS. He is reported to have an interest in their business, and to be wealthy, and unexceptionable socially. A friend of Mr. Wilcox said to-day that the scandal was caused by malicious people, and had no foundation in truth. "There never any elopement at all," he said, "and I am surprised at the way the papers have persisted in misrepresenting this young girl. The young man to whom she is going to be married knows all about this matter, and if he is satisfied now to make her his wife that ought to be satisfactory. Miss Wilcox is a splendid woman, and the girl was little more than a child when the story was first published. People in Minnesota who have known Ida since she was a child will give her a hearty welcome, as none of them believe the stories published OIL IN MICHIGAN. A Discovery of Importance in the Grand River.

PORTLAND, Mich., Aug. 4 .- Fer son time past the presence of a considerable quantity of oil has been noticed in Grand river, and a discovery was made this week that throws the town into excitement. WATER IN AUSTRALIA. The Country Changed by Streams From Underground Rivers.

Macmillan's Magazine.

Some years ago I ventured to assert in these pages that the future of Australia for the next thirty years rested with the engineers. The recent discoveries of underground rivers in the most arid portions of the continent, have given those words a greater significance. The difficulty of Australia has always been the fear that the land will not support a large population. These discoveries of water dispel that fear. It now appears that the volumes of rain which fall about once in five years over the greater part of the Australian continent, covering with floods the plains which for four years previously have, not known more moisture than might be given in England by a good fall of dew, find their way through the porous soils into channels and chambers beneath the surface, where, at a depth of one or two thousand feet, they provide an inexhaustible store of the most precious commodity known to the Australian squatter. It is impossible to say at present how the use of these underground supplies of water may change always been the fear that the land ground supplies of water may change the face of the Australian continent. The overflow from one bore, at a place called Kerribree, has already cut a channel of several feet in depth through the sand, and now forms a permanent river of several miles in length in what used to be an absolutely waterless country. It is only to be expected that as more water is brought to the surface, the clouds will take up more moisture by evaporation and the rains will increase. Then, with regular rainfall and inexhaustible tanks and creeks, even the Australian squatter might even the Australian squatter might begin to be contented. OLD HICKORY'S DUEL. An Account of the Fight Between Sevier and Jackson. Nashville American. The duel between Jackson and Sevier seems to have escaped history and biography. Sevier was Jackson's equal as a soldier, and during his Indian fights of over a quarter-century he never lost a battle, because he always charged into the natives when in a body, and the Indian could fight with a tree in front of him. In 1796 Sevier was the first governor of Tennessee, and for twelve years. During the first term Jackson was on the supreme bench of the state. The two way to could men had a difficulty about a military election, both being candidates. On the day when Jack on arrived at Knoxville to hold court Sevier came also, mounted a block in the square and denounced Jackson in unmeasured terms, calling him all the names in the early vocabu-There could be but one result,

ROBBED A PULLMAN.

Two Robbers Go Through the St. Paul "Sleeper" on the Wabash Western.

Five Passengers, Conductor and Porter Frightened Almost to Death.

Fight With the Train Conductor and a Leap in the Dark.

The Daring Pair Elude the Sheriff and Posse and Are Still at Large.

KANSAS CITY, Aug. 4 .- "Hold up your hands." Such was the command that astonished the passengers on the St. Paul "sleeper" attached to the rear of the Wabash Western express as it pulled out of Harlem at 8:50 o'clock last evening. The command was spoken by one of two men whose faces were concealed behind handkerchiefs, who had entered the rear of the coach. The passengers turned to ascertain the ource of the command and looked into the threatening muzzles of two revolvers. Hands went up. The cautionary words that followed were not necessary 'The first one that offers resistance will be shot by our man on the platform." There was no man on the platform, but the passengers submitted as quietly as if there had been a legion. There were seven people in the coach, five passengers, the sleeping-car conductor and the porter. Of the passengers one was a lac y. At the first command her face blanched with fear, her hands went up for a moment, then fell lifelessly into her lap. She had fainted. 'I guess they won't bother us," remarked one of the robbers, and, satisfied that no resistance would be offered, they commenced their work of plunder.

One man "went through" the passen-

In this way the plunderer got all the booty he could in his haste, and when it was all over and the robbers had escaped the passengers found they had been relieved of $175 in cash and two gold watches. The Wabash Western train left Kansas City at 8:20 o'clock last night. It was composed of the baggage, express and smoking cars, one day coach, two Mann boudoir cars and three Pullman cars. The last car was the St. Paul sleeper, where the robbers commenced their work. When the train reached the Missouri river bridge two men were seen to get off he forward end of and disappear behind a lumber pite. The train hands thought they were tramps who had stolen a ride from Kansas City, and paid no attention to the incident. They are now convinced that they are the robbers, and that they caught the rear end of the last sleeper as it passed the lumber pile. Just as the train pulled out of Harlem the rob bers entered the car and went through the passengers as described. It was evident that their intention was to rob the passengers in all the coaches. "WORKING" THE TRAIN from the rear, for as they left the St. Paul sleeper they again cautioned its occupants to not give the alarm under penalty of being shot by "the man on the platform." Leaving the St. Paul coach, they started for the next one ahead. On the platform they met the conductor of the train, John Roach. One of the robbers pushed his revolver under the conductor's nose, and, with an oath, ordered him to hold up his hands. The conductor supposed from the nature of their disguise that a numthe nature of their disguise that a num-ber of railroad men, who had taken passage on the train, were playing a practical joke on him, and with a laugh he attempted to push past them into the sleeper. Just then a gust of wind swept aside the masks of the robbers, and then he knew that the affair was one of dead earnest. He had no weapon, but he earnest. He had no weapon, but he carried his lantern in his hand, and with that he dealt one of the men a vicious blow on the head, smashing the lantern's glass and extinguishing the light. Simultaneously with his assault, the other robber fired a shot at him from his revolver. The aim was bad and the bullet missed its mark. The first robber had by this time recovered himself, and he, too, took a shot at the conductor. His aim was no more precise than his partner's. The robbers then, whith one more parting shot, swung off from the steps of the car. As they did so the conductor hurled his lantern after them, determined to have the "last tag" on them. The train was running at the rate of twenty-five miles an hour, too fast for any one, except under desperate chances, to jump off without risking his life, and Conduc-tor Roach did not attempt it. He swung out beyond the side of the car, how-arise and make with all haste for the dirt road that leads to Kansas City. That was the last seen of them. In the meantime the passengers in the St. Paul coach had been so completely terrorized that they did not regain their senses until they heard the firing on the platform. Then one of them pulled the cord that connects with the air brake. cord that connects with the air brake, and the train came to a standstill. By this time the train had run a mile beyond the place where the robbers had escaped. W. H. Bonnell, special agent of the road, was a passenger in the smoking car. When the train came to a sudden stop he rushed out to ascer-tain the cause. Learning from the conductor the occurrence of the robbery he immediately set to work to begin the chase for the robbers. He ordered the chase for the robbers. He ordered the engineer to run the train to Randolph, a few miles ahead, and there he uncoupled the engine and ran it back to Harlem. There he found Deputy Sheriff Tomlinson. Guards were stationed at the approaches on the bridge to prevent the robbers' entrance into Kansas City, and two posses were creatived to scour the country for were organized to scour the country for the fugitives. Sheriff Tomlinson then walked back to Kansas City, arriv-ing here at 2:30 o'clock this morning, and reported the case to the police, who are keeping a lookout in the city for the road agents. he received no definite impression of their features. Sheriff Tominson's posse returned this morning after an almost frutless search for the robbers. They succeeded in tracing the men to a farm house on the dir road, where it is known they stole a horse from a farmer named Evans. It is supposed they forced the horse to carry double. The tracks of the animal, at least, were traced to a bend in the river, where the footprints in the sand show that the two men had dismounted. At this this point all traces of the bandits were lost. It is very likely they crossed the river and boarded a train for Leavenworth on the Kansas City & Northwestern road and escaped by that means to Leavenworth and thence to some point in Nebraska. Until to-night the names of none of the passengers in the St. Paul car were known, no record having been kept of them at the Pullman office. Two of the passengers were Mr. and Mrs. Charles P. Denham, of this city. Mr. Denham telegraphed to a business associate here that he and his wife were among the losers by the oil laws' raid, and asking for money. The train was the regular St. Louis express, and the St. Paul car was carried only as far as Moberly, where it was switched train was the regular St. Louis express, and the St. Paul car was carried only as far as Moberly, where it was switched into the St. Paul train. Kansas City people are beginning to wonder if the days of Jesse James have not come again. Two robberles which would have done him credit in his palmiest days have occurred recently. One was the train curred recently. One was the train robbery of last night. The other was the theft of a handful of diamonds from a jewelry store in broad daylight, the keeping at bay at the point of a re-volver of the pursuing crowd and the escape of the thief. Whether the two crimes have any connection in their principals or not is a question. They both were extraordmarily bold and very successful. The poor aim of the train robbers is the only thing of which Jesse might have been ashamed.

THE BOSTON ON A ROCK. Narrow Escape of One of the Government's New Ships.

NEWPORT, R. I., Aug. 4 .- The navy has just escaped losing one of the finest of its new ships. The Boston was this evening run on a rock on the southern end of Rose island, in this harbor. The Boston had just completed the last of a series of most important speed and maneuvering trials in Narrangansett bay, and was returning to her anchorage off Goat island when the accident occurred. No sooner did the cruiser strike than off she slid. In an instant all the water-tight compartments were banged tight shut, but not before the compartments of the double bottom under the engine room were completely flooded. The Boston was at once headed close in shore, and now, with all her compartments tightly shut, she appears to keep the water confined. If nothing worse develops by morning she will be able to reach New York by steaming slowly. As soon as she makes the navy yard, not a moment will be lost in getting her into the dry dock, and until this is done Boston had just completed the last of a not a moment will be lost in getting her into the dry dock, and until this is done no idea can be formed of the extent of her injuries. RAPE AND MURDER.

A Most Fiendish Crime Com mitted in Texas. BERKVILLE, Tex., Aug. 4.-Mamie E Allison, a young girl of fifteen, was found dead in her bed Tuesday morning by her sister, nine years of age, who failed to notify the neighbors of the fact, although friends were living not 1.000 feet away. The young lady's parents were gone from home, having left Sunday, not to return until Wednesday. Standay, not to return than weahestay.

The physicians who exam-ined the body found that the most ter-rible crime had been first committed and that the fiend had added murder by deliberately, glocking, his victim with deliberately choking his victim with both hands, clasping her throat until death ensued. Great clots of blood were found under the skin, which was blackened and disfigured terribly from her throat down over her breast and shoulders. From the testimony it de veloped that the younger sister was threatened with death if she gave the alarm, and was terror-stricken. Officers are working on a clue, with little chance

STANDING ROCK, Dak., Aug. 4.—The Indians are in council again to-day, but there has been no excitement since Sitting Bull and his followers attempted to drive John Grass, Mad Bear and Big Head from the conference. The latest development is an effort on the part of many to have Gen. Crook remove Sitting Bull to Fort Leavenworth, or some other military prison, and it is believed this will be done unless the old autagonizer changes his tactics. Success is considered an absolute certainty here, as there will now be no difficulty in securing the necessary 600 names. VICTORY OR DEATH.

This the Issue in the Great Fight With Desperate Dervishes in Egypt.

They Hurl Themselves Upon Their Foes and Are Mowed Down in Swaths.

Wad-el-N'Jumi Falls in the Forlorn Hope With a Bullet in His Brain.

Gen. Grenfell's Report of the Fight--The Dervishes Are Wiped Out.

London, Aug. 4.—England is drawing long breath of relief to-day after the news of the complete rout of her ene mies in Egypt, on the banks of the Nile, early yesterday morning. Further details of the battle received here to-day describe it as a scene of revolting slaughter, such as could scarcely occur where both combatants are civilized soldiers. Nor does the responsibility for the butchery rest upon the English soldiers and their Egyptian allies. Long after the fate of the day had been de cided, after all hope of recovering their lost ground had been abandoned by the fanatical dervishes they continued to hurl themselves upon their foes, only to be mercilessly mowed down as ripe grain before the reaper. They refused all quarter and gave none, but with a grim determination that knew but two issues to a fight -victory or death-they fought as bravely and stubbornly when the deadly fire of their enemies had cut great swaths in their ranks, and when every movement was hampered by the piled-up bodies of their own dead, as when first with unbroken front, and confident of victory, they faced their foes. It was while leading the scattered remnants of his brave warriors in this forlorn hope that the dervish leader. Wad-el N'Jumi fell pierced by a bullet in his brain. His followers, nothing daunted by his fate, dashed themselves over and over again upon the pitiless and unbroken line of rifle-barrels in front of them and kept up the fight long after every vestige of after every vestige of organization among them had been destroyed and when nothing was left for the scattered fanatics but to sell their lives as dearly as possible. So it came that fully one-half of the invaders' force was left dead on the field. The small number of fighting men which Wad-el-N'Jumi brought into the engagement is a complete surprise. All estimates heretofore credited him with an available force of no less than 6,000 men, while it turns out that he could not, at any time, have had more than half that number. The whole dervish force is now completely whole dervish force is now completely wiped out, and all immediate danger of an invasion from that quarter is at an DESPERATE DERVISHES. Gen. Grenfell Reports on the Bat tle of Saturday.

CAIRO, Aug. 4.-Gen. Grenfell, in phis official report of yesterday's battle, says that the dervishes made repeated and desperate charges upon his men. They were met by the infantry in line of battle, supported by the Twentieth hussars and the Egyptian cavalry. The Egyp tian horse artillery did excellent service. The dervishes numbered 3,000 fighting men. The British troops will now return to Cairo. The Egyptians killed and wounded number about 100. The khedive has sent congratulations to Gen. Greenfell. It has been decided that a permanent occupation of Sarras is necssary for the protection of the frontier. A movement upon Dongola is deemed useless unless the government assent to the views of the English generals that Berber should be held as the true key to
