SAINT PAUL. YOUTH FOR OLD MAIDS

WALKS AND TALKS.

The Hon. Sam Iverson is one of the shining lights of Company C First regiment. During the recent encampment at Lake City, Sergeant Iverwas detailed for picket duty-Col. Bend desiring to work out some newfaugled notion which had entered his stood at his post for six hours and became almost ravenous with hunger. He longingly conjured up the steaming dish of hot victuals which would have greeted him if only he was at home, and, with thinking about it the qualms of nature overabout it, the qualms of nature over-came his sense of duty. Quarter of a mile distant he espied a small hostelry, and at a break-neck pace he started for it. He landed, secured a pot of ale and some sausage, and without delay re-turned to his post, where he continued for another hour.

The proprietor of a prominent city millinery establishment returned this week from a visit to London and Paris, and, speaking of American shoppers abread, gives the following as coming from a Paris dressmaker: "Ze Boston lady. Oh! she is very easy; we sell ze things that ze English ladies have bought. Ze New York lady, we sell her ze things that the English lady have not bought, and which we offer to ze lady from that the English lady have not bought, and which we offer to ze lady from Lyons and Marseilles, what will you? Or to some New York ladies we sell ze fanciful thing, ze dress for ze chateau, and zey call it ze street dress, figure that to yourself! But to the Chicago lady we sell ze thing zat ze English lady will not look at, and which ze St. Paul lady regard with looks affright and at which ze Minneapolis lady scream. Ah, we know zem all." And they do, as all the returned "innocents abroad" will cheerfully testify.

Rev. Joseph Guernon, of the King's Own Brotherhood, despite his peculiar leanings, is a man of high intellectual attainments. He is well liked by his own little sect, which gives promise to increase than decline, as prophesied by its enemies. There are a large number of people ever ready to identify themselves with any religious fad—the more eccentric are its professors the greater is the charm to become affiliated with the sect. Mr. Guernon will leave for a short vacation to-morrow. leave for a short vacation to-morrow.

"It is," he says, "just as necessary for a clergyman to have a vacation as a business man. You will hear some business men say they never have vaca-tions, but they have every Sunday in which to rest, while a clergyman in a which to rest, while a clergyman in a large parish, must be busy all the seven days of the week. I do not, however, believe in taking a vacation from worship, and I should not like to think that any of my people would absent themselves from worship during their vacation. That would be like the little girl who prayed: 'Good by God, we are going into the country.'"

Secretary of State Mattson receives many strange applications for informa-tion. There was one the past week, coming from Capt. Brinkhimer, of Vancouver Barracks, who is investing the subject of martial law in this country. Col. Mattson was requested to supply him with information respecting the application of martial law in this state.

Mr. Brinkhimer, will, however, learnand it may interest the state to know—that in the history of Minnesota, both as a territory and a state, the occasion has never yet arisen for the application of such drastic measures as those covered ch drastic measures as those covered by the two words-martial law.

* * * When will the end come? The citizens of the state may well ask this question in regard to the source of the Missis-sippi and the investigations of Prof. J. sippl and the investigations of Prof. J. V. Browers. This gentleman has made four visits to the Itascan region, but still is unprepared to furnish the report which is to knock Capt. Willard Glazier into a cocked-hat. Meanwhile Prof. Fletcher Williams, of the historical society, is in a state of perpetual sweat. The object of his life is to unmask Capt. Glazier, and he chafes like a mosquito-worried hotel proprietor at the dilly-dallying of Dr. Browers. All this delay merely creates a distrust among the people, and lends color to Capt. Glazier's pretentious claim as the discoverer of the source of the Father of * * *

For a time, at least, ex-Deputy Insurance Commissioner Todd will quit troubling Gov. Merriam with his tongue or pen—"that bitter tongue and caustic pen," as his excellency puts it. Mr. Todd will bury himself in Minneapolis, where to-morrow he will launch his modest bark into the turgid waters of insurance policies.

Secretary Tallmadge, of the chamber of commerce, will find he has under-taken a by no means easy task to superintend the children's day at the State Fair. Fancy to superintend and eater for the wishes of 10,000 children! The suggestion has been made that the children should be massed on the grand stands and lull the wilds of Hamline with the harmony of songs. But line with the harmony of songs. But there is a great difficulty to this, in Mr. Tallmadge's mind. How is it possible to get the children to sing one tune without preparatory training or instruc-tion? Instead of lulling the wirds with harmony, the discord created would drive away what little vestige of crea-

In a window of a certain Wabasha street barber shop hangs a card em-belished with "Whiskers Died Here," in large gilt letters. Yesterday a well-dressed gentleman, a little the worse for booze, came swinging past the place and stopped directly in front of the window. "Whiskers died here," he

Since Oscar B. Hillis, clerk of the United States circuit court, received a visit from a burglar in the dead of the night he has been the recipient of innumerable letters containing advice of "How to keep off burglars." Yesterday a package was delivered by a messenge boy, which, when opened, was found to contain a large-sized English bull-dog revolver. Oscar wishes to extend his thanks to the unknown donor, and the whenever the occasion calls for it.

A Patent Medicine Circular Brings Patients by the Score.

Women Not Only Cured but Inoculated With Poetic Passion.

The Feminine Faith in Nostrums Is Beautiful and Sublime.

The new Elixir of Life has had a brief but eminently successful career in St. Paul. The ground is prepared, and some one with a good commercial talent can reap a rich harvest within the next few weeks. A slight knowledge of human nature and some of the "genuine" elixir are the only capital needed.

Last Monday two middle-aged ladies rented a couple of pretty furnished rooms at 490 West Fifth street. The rent being paid in advance the obliging landlady asked no questions, nor seeme surprised when a sign was hung out bearing the familiar legend:

> DRESSMAKING DONE BY THE TAYLOR SYSTEM.

The new tenants brought only an ordinary amount of luggage and seemed in every respect quite ordinary and inoffensive. By the afternoon mail 200 circulars went out, directed to ladies whose names were copied from the blue book of the Twin Cities. The circulars contained the following interesting announcement:

nouncement:

St. Paul, Minn., Aug. 19, 1889.—Dear Madam: Your attention is respectfully called to the fact that Mine. Marie Chicot, lately from Paris, is making a brief stay in each of the principal cities of the United States. She brings a limited quantity of Dr. Brown-Sequard's famous elixir of life, the secret of its composition having been obtained only at great risk and expense. This wonderful elixir makes the old young, the ugly beautiful, removes every trace of disease, also all physical or mental imperfections at the first application, and is perfectly harmless and safe in its operation. You will never have as good an opportunity to experience the wondrous effects of this true fountain of youth. All names and correspondence kept inviolably secret. Mme. Chicot and attendant will be at your service until Friday, Aug. 16, at———Office hours from 6 to 12 a. m., 2:30 to 9 p. m. Yours confidentially,

MME. MARIE CHICOT,

Wealthy ladies seem to have a taste for the mysterious, for by 2:30 Tuesday aft-ernoon the hall and waiting room were crowded with eager and curious visitors. Nearly all wore veils, seeming anxious to stay incog. themselves and yet find out who the others were. In the inner room sat madame, dressed in a semi-oriental costume of crimson satin the inner room sat madame, dressed in a semi-oriental costume of crimson satin and black lace, with a lace scarf covering her whole head and face save a narrow space about the eyes. The table at her side was covered with instruments and glasses of all descriptions. The curtains were drawn so as to leave the apartment in a sort of dim twilight. Madame couldn't speak any English and the attendant managed the visitors in a most haughty and dictatorial way. She asked just three questions: "What's your name?" "What do you want the elixir for?" "Will you try it now or make an appointment?" No statue of adamant was more silent than she about all the details of the business. The ladies trembled and stammered, but curiosity finally prevailed, especially as a sign on the wall announced that no charges would be made unless the patient reported a cure, when the amount would be left to her own discretion.

No. 1 was a victim of the opium habit, and the little hypodermic syringe was consequently no novelty to her. This patient was a little out of the regular order, but madame was finally persuaded to insert the elixir under one corner of his sooty muzzle. Fido immediately became so exhilarated that he jumped on the table and barked most fiercely. The cure must have been permanent, for the case was not again reported

She brought back some verses next day which faded the color out of the carpet, cracked the mirror and made the variety. which faded the color out of the carpet, cracked the mirror and made the varnish run off the chairs. The elixir was a thorough success in that case, and the young woman is now hunting for a publisher who will risk his presses printing the outpourings of her poetle soul.

years so she would have more time to prepare for heaven. After taking the elixir she skipped out declaring herself growing younger at the rate of about five years a minute.

No. 6 was auburn-haired, cross-eyed, freckled, stoop-shouldered, and aged forty-five, wanted to be young and pretty. The attendant politely hinted that there is a limit even to miracles. But the lady insisted, took the elixir on two succeeding days, and on the third reported her engagement to a young reported her engagement to a young and penniless suitor. So the crowd surged in and out all the afternoon and evening. It would revive a cynic's faith in human nature to see how trustfully those women came to gain all sorts of benefits from some substance of which they knew absolutely, nothing.

Madame had all the business she could attend to. The patients reported wonderful cures, but out of seventy-three cases treated, only two were grateful enough to offer any pay for their restoration. So madame moved to treat folds and pastures new. The tertheir restoration. So madame moved to fresh fields and pastures new. The territory of St. Paul is now open for her successor. A few facts gleaned from Mme. Chicot's experience are presented for the benefit of her former patients.

The record of names shows all the patients to be unmarried ladies or widows, which fact might be of some use to

The elixir used was only a mixture of corn starch and cold water, so that faith must have been a large agent in performing the wonderful cures. The Amphion Club's First Effort to Be The Martyr Placida.

Gossip of the St. Paul People Devoted to the Gay Science.

Art Matters Now Centering About the State Fair Exhibit.

The reaction has begun. The charms of summer sauntering pall upon the saunterers, and the return flight of sustained pleasure-seekers to their quarters in the city has been fairly inaugurated. The musical people are among the first to whom summer frivolities become irksome, and many of these have already returned, and are installed once more in their city quarters. The revival of interest in musical matters for the two weeks past has been surprising, in consideration of the quiet which has prevailed for some time past. Among the most active musical organizations now in the field is the Amphion club, and the announcements made by the club of entertainments this season show that the members have not been idle, even though absent from the scene of their past and future activity. The first production by the Amphion club this season, will be the dramatic cantata "Placida," the Christian Martyr, composed by William Carter, the well known English author, and dedicated to her royal highness the Princess Mary Adelaide, duchess of Teck. This work has been performed on several occasions at the Crystal palace and the Royal Albert hall, with wonderful and complete successions. which has prevailed for some time past. the Crystal palace and the Royal Albert hall, with wonderful and complete success. The story of Placida is so well known that but a sketch will be sufficient to remind the reader of those portions specially alluded to in the cantata. The scenes are laid in and near Rome, the period the reign of the Emperor Nero, during which reign, it will be remembered, a great portion of the city was destroyed by fire and the firing of the city attributed to the Christians, who were subsequently brought to trial and condemned to torture and death. Placida is shown as having been awak-Placida is shown as having been awak-ened to the light of Christianity by ob-serving the devotion of her slave who has embraced the Christian faith. She has embraced the Christian faith. She accompanies the slave girl to the catacombs, where she is baptised by a Christian priest. During the baptism the Christians are surprised by soldiery and made prisoners. In the meantime, the father of Placida, who has heard of his daughter's captivity, hastens to her, and pleads hard that she will renounce her adopted religion. Placida's refusal to entertain such a proposition procures for her her father's curse, under the ban of which she is brought, together with the priest and other converts, before the imperial tribunal. Again her refusal to renounce the faith of her adoption is heard ringing through the halls and corridors of the justice hall, and she is condemned to die, in company with her brother and sister martyrs. While the procession is en-route to the place of torture and execu-tion an attempt is made by a small force of patricians to rescue Placida, and during the excitement of the strug-and during the excitement of the struggle the martyred heroine falls in a faint and dies by the roadside. The patricians, moved by the sight of her fair, lifeless form, and dreading that an indignity should be offered her, order the body thrown into the Tiber.

The scene has been most beautifully represented by the famous artist, Paul Delaroche. Placida's lifeless form is seen floating on the murky surface of the river of a million tragedies, the martyr's glory wreathing her head in an aureole of golden light. Mr. Carter, in setting the music to the beautiful story, has shown great depth of musical feeling and wonderful skill. In the hands of the Amphion club the cantata can but be the success it should be.

One of the most charming musical One of the most charming musical events of the part week was the musicale given by Mr. and Mrs. Dorr at their residence on Crocus Hill. Among the vocal lights present, the Misses Harris and Johnson were the leaders, and their singing was quite the feature of the evening. The selec-tions by the Mendelssohn quartette were as well received as the efforts of that very deservedly popular organiza-tiou always are, and the event must go down to history as having been one of the most pleasant gatherings of the early season. The Friday evening concert at the Hotel St. Louis, Miunetonka, was attended by as large an audience as could possibly be seated or crowded into the apartments in any manner whatsoever. The singing of "Margarita" by Mr. Colville and "The Shadows Deepen" by J. F. Merrill were very fine and added fresh laurels to the already weighty wreaths earned by both singers. There were present on the occasion many comwere present on the occasion many com-petent critics, who have heard the gentlemen sing innumerable times, assert that they never sang as well previously as on the occasion mentioned. will also be placed on exhibition, and will doubtless attract a great deal of attention. A large number of works by Eilkins are now stored in St. Paul, and the managers of the exhibit are now in correspondence with Mrs. Eilkins, the wife of the deceased painter, who resides in Chicago, with the object of securing permission to exhibit the paintings. The works are landscapes, and are painted in Eilkins' best style, though since the painter's death they have not seen the light of day. Speaking of flower painting, there is a little girl named Myrtle Varner, the child of Italian parents, fruit hucksters at that, who reside on East Seventh street, whose work in this line is a surprise to all who have seen it. The girl is but sixteen years old, but is provided by her parents, who regard her talent as a future fortune for the family, with the best of material for the pursuit of her chosen calling. Several of the girl's paintings have been placed on exhibition at the art stores in the past, and some of these now grace the walls of St. Anthony hill mansions, having been purchased by their present owners without the least idea as to who the artist was. MEN OF MARK.

Philip Gleich, a member of the firm of Gleich & Krause, was born at Shades ville, O., May 20, 1860. His early years were spent on a farm. At the age of fourteen he was apprenticed to learn gasfitting with J. Wilcox & Co., Columbus, O. After learning gasfitting he spent five years at the plumbers' trade with Charles A. Klie, of the same city.

Leaving there for Chicago in 1882, spent a year and a half with Irons & Co. Nextworking a year for Davis Bros., Rockland Ill. After making short stays in Atlantis and Council Bluffs, Io., and Omaha, Neb., arrived in St. Paul July, 1884 working as a journeyman for A. lants and Council Bluffs, Io., and Omaha, Neb., arrived in St. Paul July, 1884, working as a journeyman for A. G. Kinslow, M. H.Ward & Co. and J. C. Johnston, until January, 1887, when he and H. S. Krause opened up a plumbing business at 385 St. Peter street, from where they moved in October, 1888, to 100 West Sixth street, where they are now doing a fairly prosperous business. One day while watching the firemen couple house, he remarked to his partner "There is a good opportunity for an invention," which resulted in their putting before the public a coupling of hose is not equaled the world over. Another day, while at work at bis trade, he experienced great difficulty in making a joint tight on soil pipe, and this difficulty he overcame by the invention of a corrugated soil pipe, known as the Gleich-Krause company's patent soil pipe, the joint becoming tighter by either contraction or expansion. The invention is a valuable one, as the pipe will in time undoubtedly be used universally, as it is a sure preventive against sewer gas in buildings, and remedies one of the most defective points of our plumbing system.

What a Physician Says. M. Loose Red Clover Co., Detroit: I cheerfully furnish the following for pub

I cheerfully furnish the following for pub lication:

Mrs. S., age 36, cancerous face (cell cancer), had tried many physicians, and on presentation to me was a horrible sight to look upon. Nose partly eaten away, deep pits in cheeks, forehead and chin. As a last hope I put her on Loose's Extract Red Clover—large doses internally, and as a local application I used the Solid Extract in plaster form. She improved rapidly from the first week, and in four months was entirely well. Now eighteen months since treatment, and no signs of return.

Ulceration of the leg (Indolent Ulcer). Recovered entirely after three months' treatment with Red Clover Extract and Solid Extract Dressing. Now one year since treatment, and no sign of return.

WALTER W. HUME.

Cancer of Lip and Skin Disease. Entirely cured with three months' treatment with Red Clover Tomic and Solid Extract Dressing. Now over year and no sign of return.

Secondary Syphilis was entirely cured by Ped Clover Extract in three months with
