THE STATE'S HIGHEST LAW Laid Down by the Supreme Court

-Four Land Decisions Yester-Four decisions, the first batch of the present term, were filed by the supreme court yesterday, as follows:

Anna Michaelis, respondent, vs. Fred Michaelis, appellant. Order reversed.

VANDERBURGH, J. A deserted wife left in possession of a homestead, and recognized by the land department as having a right to contest the entry thereof by a subsequent notice, will be protected in her possession pending such contest, and possession pending such contest, and may recover damages against such claimant for his wrongful acts in dispossessing her and removing and destroying the improvements left in her possession. And she may, in such case, recover punitive damages, if such acts are willful and malicious, or accompanied with circumstances of aggravation. The laws of the state in relation to conveyances of exempt homesteads do not apply to the relinquishment of homestead entries of United States lands. Certain exceptions to the receplands. Certain exceptions to the recep-tion of evidence and to the charge of the court sustained.

Cyrus E. Brown, respondent, vs. Ida J. Still-man, appellant. Order reversed. VANDERBURGH, J. A mortgaged a certain lot to B, and then conveyed the same to C, subject to the mortgage, without any assumption clause in the deed. C thereupon conveyed the same to D subject to the same and a second mortgage, by war-ranty deed, and thereby also expressly agreed to pay and discharge the second mortgage, his grantee assuming the first mortgage. Held that the land passed to D, charged with the incum-brance of the mortgage made by A, as the primary fund for its payment, but that C, not being personally liable to pay the same, the covenanants in the deed between him and his grantee must be construed as mutual covenants of same and a second mortgage, by warbe construed as mutual covenants of indemnity as respects the incumbrances upon the land, and did not make D personally liable, legally or equitably to B, the first mortgagee, as principal debtor

Heber Hanford et al., respondents, vs. the St.
Paul & Duluth Railroad company, appellant. Order reversed. Dickinson, J. The right of a riparian proprietor upon navigable waters to improve, reclaim and occupy the submerged lands out to the point of navigability, although out to the point of navigability, atmospheric priginally incident to the riparian estate, may be separated therefrom and transferred to and enjoyed by persons having no interest in the original riparian estate; overruling Lake Superior Land company vs. Emerson, 38 Minn. 406.

A condemnation by a railroad corpora-tion of the upland abutting upon the water held to embrace also the riparian water held to embrace also the riparian right of improvement and occupancy of the submerged lands, although no specific mention is made of riparian rights. The specific mention and including in the same petition of riparian rights in respect to other lands belonging to other persons held not to affect this construction of the petition and proceedings in respect to the land in question.

Andreas M. Miller, appellant, ys Luther Men denhall, respondent. Order affrmed. VANDERBURGH, J.

The state holds the title to the soil in navigable waters to low water mark, in trust for the people, and chiefly for the protection of the rights of navigation. The riparian owner is entitled to fill in and make improvements in the shallow waters in front of his land to the line of navigability, and such improvements in aid of navigation are recognized as a public as well as a private benefit. These rights pertain to the use and occupancy of the soil below low water mark, and are valuable property rights, and the exercise thereof, though subject to state regulation can only be interfered with by the state for public purposes.

The establishment of a dock or harbor line in pursuance of legislative authority-is to be considered as giving to the dwners of the upland, the privilege of filling in and building out to such line. Where the owners of and and hordering on the bay of Suof upland bordering on the bay of Su-perior in this state, after the establish-ment of the dock line, adopted a survey and plan of improvement for the use and occupation to such line of the sub-merged land abreast of the upland owned by them, in connection with the navigation of the lake, held that they might not only possess, occupy and improve the same themselves in connection with the dry land, but might concede to other parties the same rights within the dock line, and might, by the appropriate covenants and stipulations in the deeds to their grantees of the upand the deeds to their grantees of the up-land, and of sites used or to be used and improved under low water mark, obligate each and all to respect and recognize the validity of such grants made in conformity with the general plan of improvement of the premises within the dock line, all such grantees thus becoming a party thereto. And in thus becoming a party thereto, And in such case a court of equity will not interpose in favor of a grantee of the upland to set aside prior deeds to grantees of sites in the submerged land.

JINGLE OF THE GUINEA.

Three Damage Suits for Accident, One for Slander and One for Malpractice.

Clara M. Hill, as administratrlx of the estate of Samuel J. Hill, has commenced an action against the St. Paul & Duluth Railroad company to recover $5,000 damages for the death of S. J. Hill, who was a locomotive engineer. He lost his life by colliding with a train of cars left standing on the track, there being such a dense fog that he could not see the standing train in time to avoid the col-

McCloud, as the father of Lillian McCloud, a minor, has com-menced an action against the Babcockmeneed an action against the Babcock-Drake Transfer company and John Matheis to recover $3,000 damages by reason of boxes tumbling over and breaking the leg of Lillian McCloud and otherwise injuring her. It is claimed that the boxes were piled upon the side walk in a careless manner and carelessly allowed to tumble down upon the girl while nassing the girl while passing.

The cause of Frank Hopkins against Dr. Henry Roman to recover $5,200 for malpractice is still on trial. Roman, maipractice is stin on trial. Roman, while on the stand yesterday, was detailing a conversation between Hopkins' mother and a minister at such length that Judge Kerr became tired of the verboseness of the witness and said: "Can't you keep the ministers out of the case?"

The cause of Roderick J. Bailey The cause of Roderick J. Bailey against the St. Paul & Duluth Railroad company to recover $10,000 damages for personal injuries is on trial before a jury in Judge Otis' court. Bailey claims a train was carelessly handled while he was coupling cars, and he was permanently injured.

The jury yesterday gave Michael Gerrity $1 damages against Edward Mehl. The action was brought to recover damages to character for being called a swindler and for being dismissed from service at the Union depot restaurant.
