

BROOKS IS BEATEN.

Maden, Gladstonian, Wins the Rosendale Seat With Plenty to Spare.

Victors Rejoice Exceedingly at This Great Advance of the Liberals.

Both Sides Agreed That the Rosendale Result Would Be Decisive.

The English Nobility Is Fearful That Life's Wife May Yet Reign.

LONDON, Jan. 23.—An election was held today to fill the parliamentary vacancy in the Rosendale division caused by the recent elevation to the peerage of Lord Hartington, leader of the Liberal-Unionist party in the house of commons, who became Duke of Devonshire on the death of his father. The result of the contest is the election of the Gladstonian candidate, and the almost complete reversal of the vote cast in the last previous election. The voting is announced as follows: Maden 6,066, Brooks 4,841, Maden's majority 1,225. In the preceding election the vote was: Lord Hartington 5,399, T. Newbiger (home ruler) 3,949, Lord Hartington's majority 1,450.

Victors Crazed With Joy.
The result was not announced until midnight, but the news that Mr. Maden was elected was greeted with the most uproarious cheering by his delighted supporters, and when the extent of the Liberal victory was learned a scene of the wildest enthusiasm ensued among the thousands of people waiting. Hats and canes were flung into the air, and Mr. Maden's partisans cheered and shouted until their voices became almost inaudible from hoarseness.

When the crowd had calmed down somewhat, Michael Davitt, who had energetically assisted in the campaign, made a speech. He said that he most sincerely thanked the electors of Rosendale for the message of hope and confidence conveyed through the election of Mr. Maden, which they had to send to the Irish people. The victorious candidate, who has been confined to his house by illness, was still too sick to venture out today. Many messages of congratulation were sent to him on his success. The largeness of the majority obtained by the Gladstonian candidate proved a great surprise to both the contending parties.

A Decisive Contest.
This is looked upon as the most important election in the recent history of English politics, and has been the most fiercely fought in England for many years. Both the Conservatives and the Liberals have opened up a new era in the next election is liable to go as Rosendale goes today. Sir Thomas Brooks, the Unionist candidate, also received the hearty support from the Conservatives. Sir Thomas is the owner of Crawshaw hall, Harton, and is a well-known man in Rosendale. He was before the Irish question came prominently to the fore in English politics, a sturdy worker in the Liberal cause. He was made a baron a short time ago.

Mr. Maden is a member of a famous cotton-spinning firm, a large employer of labor, a good public speaker, and worth about $100,000 at least. For some time past he has been confined to his bed, suffering from a severe attack of rheumatism. On the other hand, the Unionist candidate, Michael Davitt, is a man of energy and drawing out every vote possible. The Liberals also had many carriages, cabs, and carts at work, and the lieutenants of both candidates distinguished themselves by their feverish activity in this direction.

Some Great Work Done.
The polling today was most brisk, and the excitement greater than is usually seen at the most important election in England. Some of the factories actually stopped work in order to enable the hands to give the whole day to election work, and others only worked till noon. The weather was dull and wet, a fact which was looked upon as being against the chances of the Unionist (Conservative) candidate, for in dull, wet weather, it is difficult to prevail upon some of the crusty old Tories to turn out and do their duty at the polls. One of the features of the election was the immense amount of money bet upon the result. This led many sharp professional betters to come to Rosendale and work like beavers in their own interests.

Michael Davitt was in the thick of the fight, hurrying to and from the Rosendale division noted for its cotton factories, and was found by Mr. Davitt, in former years, worked at Haslingden and is popular with the workmen.

FEARFUL OF FIFE.
British Nobility Stirred by His Possible Rise.

LONDON, Jan. 23.—The fear that the Duchess of Fife, through a concatenation of events, might succeed to the throne, continues to excite the English people, particularly those of the nobility and upper classes. A well-informed correspondent says that Prince George of Wales, who, through his brother's death, becomes heir presumptive to the throne, will almost immediately be made Duke of Sussex, and that his engagement to some princess will be announced before the end of the season. It is earnestly hoped that the very greatest precautions will be taken with regard to the health of Prince George, for it is said he is not gifted with a much stronger constitution than that possessed by his brother.

It was generally understood that, when Princess Louise married the Earl of Fife, whom the queen afterwards created a duke, she renounced her rights of succession; but it is now known that she did not. In the event of the Duchess of Fife becoming queen the Duke of Fife would, of course, be made prince consort, and the idea of his holding that most exalted position is not at all acceptable to the nobility. Such a succession might have unfortunate results.

THE LONDON THEATERS.
Beerbohm Tree's "Hamlet"—Gilbert Charged With Plagiarism.

LONDON, Jan. 23.—The ordering of the court into mourning because of the death of the Duke of Clarence has had a serious effect upon the theaters. Many persons outside the court and official circles will be going to the mourning period, with the result that the managers will probably lose a good round sum of money. On Wednesday, the day of the duke's funeral, the theaters were not opened, and this entailed quite a severe loss to the managers. The poor attendance at the various performances since then has evidenced that the receipts of the week will show an important reduction. Without the splendor of the scenery and costumes which characterize the staging of productions at Henry Irving's Lyceum theater, "Hamlet," as produced by Beerbohm Tree for the first time at the Haymarket theater Thursday night, should hold the stage at that place of amusement for a long time. In the opening scenes Thursday night Mr. Tree, who played the part of Hamlet, acted with a quiet effectiveness. Afterward, especially in the play scene and the closet scene, his acting displayed intense passion. Mr. Tree presented an altogether original and noteworthy performance. He invests the character of Hamlet with new attributes, and presents him as never mad, but with his mind subjected to such strain as to make him scarcely responsible for his actions in moments of such frenzy as resulted in the death of Polonius and the dismissal of Ophelia. Mrs. Tree's Ophelia was a most graceful and pathetic portrayal. All the daily papers devote much space to long and careful criticisms of the play. The Time says: "Judged by the standard of the Garricks and the Kembles, the coveted certificate of proficiency is Mr. Tree's. He has given us a 'Hamlet' with such distinctive marks as come only from an actor of the highest resources." A similar tone pervades all the other criticisms.

A letter has been published from Mr. McNulty, the Irish music critic, which is likely to make some stir in dramatic circles. Mr. McNulty insinuates that the principal features in Mr. Gilbert's "The Mountebanks" were taken from the libretto of an opera written by Mr. McNulty, which he sent to the late Arthur Collier last summer. The principal characters in this libretto were a magician who, with an elixir, changes a peasant into the character he strifes wishes to be, and a clockwork man who jerks language is similar to that used by Mr. Gilbert in "The Mountebanks." Mr. McNulty also claims that his libretto had a son, "Drop a Penny in the Slot," while Gilbert's version has it "Put a Penny in the Slot." Mr. McNulty concludes his letter by saying that Gilbert will probably make thousands of pounds from his opera, while he himself, who spent his time and used his brains in composing the libretto of his opera, will get nothing.

GATHERED AT ROME.
Rudini's Policy—Two Congregations of Cardinals.

ROME, Jan. 23.—Signor Rudini, president of the council, speaking with an opponent of the ministry, said recently that it was intended as soon as the financial estimates were approved to re-organize the central administration, and added that the government would always pursue a liberal policy which could not alienate the support of the left.

The first lot of new guns for the army is expected soon to be ready for distribution. The estimates for 1891-2, 4,000,000 lire were included for the manufacture of the new guns. Fifty thousand were to be made the first year, and after that 10,000 annually, so as to equip the entire army in three or four years.

The committee has been organized for the Episcopal jubilee of the pope intended to issue an appeal to Italian Catholics to collect 1,000,000 lire to defray the expenses. Many of the pope will celebrate in St. Peter's.

The general congregations of cardinals will be convoked in a few days, under the presidency of the pope himself, to consider the subject of two beatifications which will be proclaimed on the occasion of his episcopal jubilee. Quite a number of propositions for beatification and canonization are under discussion by the "congregation of rites," among which may be mentioned the canonization of the late pope, Pius IX. The New Year's greetings to the pope from Emperor William contained these words: "I pray the eternal that he will preserve a life so precious to the interests of religion, and to the maintenance of friendly relations with the empire."

Among the prominent Americans who have lately arrived in Rome are Prof. Fairman Rogers and family, of Newport, R. I., and Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Miller, of the Hotel Europa, and the wife and daughter of Senator Warner Miller, of New York, who have taken rooms at the Quirinal hotel.

Among those who have been attacked with influenza are the wife and son of United States Consul General Bourne. They have, however, entirely recovered from the attack.

Mrs. Annie Porter, of Franklin county, Ia., died here a few days ago of heart failure, and was buried in St. Paul's cemetery. Her mother died of the same trouble two years ago in this city.

All the Roman newspapers today contained favorable accounts of the pope's condition. The Reform, commenting on the subject of the next convocation, says there are signs that the struggle between those who desire an Italian pope and those who advocate the enthronement of a foreigner as pontiff will be a severe one.

THE GRIP EPIDEMIC.
It Baffles the Skill of Physicians of England.

LONDON, Jan. 23.—The frequent declaration of the medical profession that the cause and prevention of "grip" are things beyond the ken of medical science, do not satisfy the public on this important point. There is a growing demand for the appointment of a special commission to inquire into the possibility of relieving mankind from the scourge. The epidemic is more widespread in its ravages, so that on the whole the visitation is more burdensome than before. There are thousands of victims among the employees of underground railways and thousands more among the postoffice clerks. These diseases are so widespread as to cause public inconvenience, but where nearly every business is affected it is hardly worth while to specify particular cases. The number of members of parliament prostrated by the disease is so large and the sanitary condition of the house of commons so bad that the ministers are likely to postpone the session until the wave of illness shall have subsided. Funeral directors are, of course, reaping a golden harvest. It might seem that at such a time there would be less occasion than usual to advertise their business, but, in fact, the increase in the demand for their services has had the effect of stimulating competition among them. A novel method of attracting custom has been adopted by one undertaker in the East end. He causes a large sign to be drawn through the streets bearing a large sign with his name and address, and the announcement that he charges for conducting funerals only 24 shillings and 6 pence upward. The hearse is accompanied by three black-looking individuals dressed completely in black, and the device succeeds in attracting much attention.

ROMANS RAZZLED.
Earthquake Shocks Drive Them to the Open Places.

ROME, Jan. 23.—There were several quite severe shocks of earthquake felt here last night, which caused a panic in the more crowded quarters of the city. The inhabitants of the houses in some places thought their dwellings were about to fall and they rushed into the streets, many of them in their night clothing, not waiting to save any of their personal effects. So thoroughly frightened were they, and so much did they fear a repetition of the shocks, that nothing could induce them to return to their dwellings, and they remained on the streets all night, seeking for better security. The operation of the earthquake would be out of the reach of falling buildings.

The theaters shook with the violence of the shocks, and the audiences were greatly frightened. The panic soon subsided, however. Most of the shocks were felt in the city, and the ground shook so violently that the street lamps were extinguished, and it is feared that damage may perhaps have been done to the underground pipes. The pope was aroused by the earthquake, and immediately sent to the Vatican observatory to inquire if the news was assured that there was no danger.
