SOFT ORES SOLD OUT.

Very Small Amount of Bessemers Left Unsold on Cleveland Docks.

Men With Hard Bessemer Ores to Sell Take a More Hopeful View of the Situation.

CLEVELAND, Nov. 25 .- In its weekly review of iron and ore business, the Iron Trade Review says: The conditions surrounding the iron trade today are such as to give the warrant of solidity to every symptoms that counts for the better. Whatever uncertianty there is as to industrial legislation will effectually repress speculative enterprises; in the iron trade it will tend to hold production in close touch with demand, thus antidoting the unhealthful conditions that have ruled through the year. 1892 will have been made up.

The probability that the shipping season's close would show a very small amount of unsold soft Bessemers on the docks was suggested some time ago. The fact is now appreciated by buyers that a round lot of soft ore of Bessemer quality could not be had, and it is very questionable is a 5,000 ton order for standard-ores of this description could be filled. The price has been $4.50 for some weeks. This condition, in the opinion of ore men who have hard Bes-seners to sell, will make a steady mar-ket for them throughout the winter and ket for them throughout the winter and spring. Moreover, they are not disposed to regard the preference for soft ores, so marked this year, as more than a "fad," and look fer a return to hard ores against the coming of another season. More than the usual amount of ore at the closing stage has been put on being in the neighborhood of

MORAL SUASION.

It Is a Very Good Thing, But It Is Often Well to Have a Little Force Back of It.

A party of ladies were drinking their Dolong and Orange Pekoe in a luxurious out homelike drawing-room in Harlem, when the arrival of a friend changed he tenor of their talk, says the New York Recorder. The newcomer was evidently in distress. Her soft brown eyes were suffused with unshed tears, as the novelists say, and soom sympathetic listeners beguiled her into relating the cause of her trouble.

It was all about a boy—a boy who wouldn't mind his mother—a boy who corned parental advice and mocked at parental commands, but after all "such a nice boy." "It must be all my fault," sighed the poor mother, "I'm sure I don't know what course to take."

"Cane him," said the hostess briefly. Now, this hostess was one one of the latest members of Sorois—a progress—a progress—a. Now, this nostess was one of the latest members of Sorosis—a progressive woman, but one who believed in sticking to first principles in some things and in the matter of training children was not so progressive as to attempt to subvert the wisdom of Solomon.

As a shining light in Sorosis, her dictions are writted to a respectful hear.

As a shining light in Sorosis, her dictum was entitled to a respectful hearing, but the brown eyes only looked horrified and the load was not lifted.

"Send him to boarding school." said one meditatively as she examined the old college fence on her souvenir spoon from the City of Eims.

But this remedy was unanimously voted worse than the disease.

eyes, who had, all this while, seemed absorbed in the contemplation of her Boston spoon with its picture of Paul Revere galloping madly on the end of the handle.

"Let me tell you a little story," said she, and six pairs of feminine boots dis-posed themselves cosily on the fender while six pairs of eyes were turned attentively on the speaker.

"Tom came home the other evening with a new theory. That was no unusual thing, for he is given to theories, bless him, but this particular theory was startling in its conception and its results. He announced quite resolutely and calmly at the dinner table that punishment of all sorts and conditions was to be ruled out of the family code of gov-erning. There were to be no whippings, no deprivations, no scoldings.

"Now never in my life had I raised my hand to offer corporal punishment to Tom Jr., nor had his father ever used physical force. That youth had been made to feel the weight of our dismatched to pleasure by forfeiting some pleasure trip, some valued possession or coveted dessert, and even in these instances Tom often made vicarious atonement for the sins of his son. Indeed, I had thought our reign was of the mildest, and this new regime astonished me uite as much as it seemed to tickle the fancy of the heir.

"For a couple of weeks everything went beautifully. Tom impressed it upon our boy that he was to be good from a high sense of honor, and to prove himself worthy of the great mark of confidence we had placed in him by trying, under all circumstances, to do as nearly what he knew to be right as possible. But alas! this living on a pedestal proved wearisome. Tom is a boy, and a most mischievous one, and the boy nature had to assert itself. Complaints began to come in from the janitor, from the neighbors, from the grocers on the avenue. It was not that Tom meant to be bad, but the new government was too much for him. Like Ireland, he was not ready or able to rule himself, and eeded the wholesome restraints of a mited monarchy.

"The teacher of his class sent for me to come to school to tell me that within two weeks a change had seemed to come over the spirit of Tom's dreams, and hinted that unless a very marked reform took place it would be better for me to remove him." "What did you do?" queried several of the audience.

"What I did was very quickly done. that I did was very quickly done. I cleared the moral atmosphere with a thunder storm. First, I reasoned gently but firmly with Tom Jr., and required him to bring back a better report the next day. Next day the report read very unsatisfactory.' I ordered the culprit to betake himself to the solitude of his own room and think our these of his own room and think ou these things till dinner time. As I left him he pouted, 'Papa said I was not to be punished.

"I replied that I hoped it would not be necessary to break papa's rule, when the door was violently slammed and a shower of heavy shoes threatened to break it down. Then," and here the sweet gray eyes grew black, "I tied together three lithe new whalebones—you may imagine the rest, but there is peace once more at No. 90. Tom lives in love and harmony with the junifor the and harmony with the janitor, the neighbors, his teacher and his parents.' A look of determination came into the brown eyes, and the assembly dispersed. WHERE WOMEN PROPOSE.

(Cut this out and get your friends to sign it.) Petition to Congress to Open the Gates of the World's Columbian Expo-

To the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States in Congress Assembled:

We, the undersigned citizens of the United States, do hereby respectfully pray and memorialize your honorable body to repeat that portion of the act entitled "An act to aid in carrying out the act of congress, approved April 25, 1892, entitled 'An act to provide for celebrating the four-hundredth anniversary of the discovery of America by the holding of an international exposition in the city of Chicago"—approved Aug. 5, 1892, which reads as follows: "That it is hereby declared that all appropriations herein made for or pertaining to the World's Columbian exposition are made upon the condition that the said exposition shall not be opened to the public on the first day of the week, commonly called sunday; and if the said appropriations be accepted by the corporation of the state of Illinois known as the World's Columbian exposition, upon that condition it shall be, and it is hereby made the duty of the World's Columbian commission, created by the act of congress of April 25, 1890, to make such rules or modifications of the rules of said corporation as shall require the closing of the exposition on the said first day of the week, commonly called Sunday."

Also, to repeal that portion of the act entitled, "An act making appropriations for the sundry, civil expenses of the government for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1893, and for other purposes"—approved Ang. 5, 1892, which reads as follows:

"And it is hereby declared that all appropriations herein made for, or pertaining to the World's Columbian exposition, are made upon the condition that the said exposition shall not be opened to the public on the first day of the week, commonly called Sunday, and if the said appropriations be accepted by the corporation of the state of Illinois known as the World's Columbian Exposition, not hat condition it shall be, and it is hereby, made the World's Columbian Exposition upon that condition it shall be, and it is hereby, made the World's Columbian exposition, are made upon the condition that the said exposition shall not be opened to the public on the first day of the week, commonly called Sunday, and if the said appropriations be accepted by the corporation of the state of Illinois known as the World's Columbian Exposition, upon that condition, it shall be, and it is hereby, made the duty of the World's Columbian commission, created by act of congress of April 25, 189), to make such rules or modifications of the rules of said corporation as shall require the closing of the exposition on the said first day of the week, commonly called Sunday."

In presenting this memorial to your consideration we believe that—

The World's Columbian exposition is calculated to promote education, awaken high ideals, stimulate healthy imagination, and store the mind with memories which will be a source of happy and inspiring reflection during the life of those who may have the privilege of studying the manifold treasures which there will be presented. Thus looked at, it becomes the handmaid of all that operates to advance man in his higher nature, and is a real promoter of pure religion.

That those who most need the beneficent influences which will flow from the exposition are the men, women and children whose lives are oppressed by poverty, and whose opportunities for travel and study are most meager. Confronted each day with the question of physical sustenance, the closing of the fair on Sunday means a substantial denial to them of its larger benefits.

That to close the gates of the exposition on Sunday is against the interest of the social order, as it would throw upon the city of Chicago several, hundred thousands of visitors each Sunday, who, being without occupation, would crowd all places of evil resort in that city, multiplying crime to such an extent that the police department, even though managed in the most efficient manner, could with great difficulty cope with the situation.

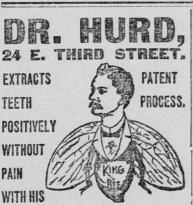

That the largest opportunity should be given for admission to the
