SALVINI IS SPLENDID.

He Charms a Large Audience With "Don Cæsar de Bazan."

Salvini gave almost an ideal presenta cion of the romantic drama at the Metropolitan last evening, and sent home a very delighted audience. It was a large and cultured house that greeted the young actor, and one that must have inyoung actor, and one that must have inspired him to the utmost, for from the time he recled into the market place of Madrid until he bowed his thanks to the king in the final scene, he was applieded at every turn. After each act he was called before the curtain, and with characteristic generosity always accompanied himself with those of his company who had assisted in the preceding good work. "Don Casar de Bazan" is the dramatization of the same story found in the opera of "Maritana," but offers a far wider field for forensic art, offers a far wider field for forensic art of which Salvina takes full advantage If there is one criticism to be offered, i is that Salvini talks too rapidly to be fol is that Salvini talks too rapidly to be fol-lowed, but it must be added that none of his counciation is a departure from nature. Romance is undoubtedly his forte, and his selection of "Don Cæsar de Bazan" to open in presumably showed him at his best. He is the ideal rollicking soldier of foreune, the tender lover, the brave man facing the tender lover, the brave man facing death, the patriot subject of the king, the defender of the weak and the bright mirror of the offenses of the great, all just as D'Ennery intended his hero to be. His best work is in the fine comedy bits, where acting counts for as much as delivery. No trace of the accent formerly noticeable in his Romeo is to be detected now except at rare intervals. detected now, except at rare intervals, when a long word contains combina-tions of vowels that are too much for him.

Of the supporting company much in praise must be said. Interest centered in Walter Hale, the St. Paul actor, who scored a great hit in the part of the King of Spain. It was a leading and difficult piece of work, and was admirably handled. Judith Berolde made a beguitful and aftracfive Maritana. and deserved the plaudits showered upon her. The rest of the company is of the same standard of merit.

Tonight will be given the dramatization of Dunas' great story of "The Three Gnardsmen."

Official Printer of the City to Be Selected Thursday by Councils.

Police Pension Roll Increased by Four-Round-Up of City News.

The board of fire commissioners last evening held their annual meeting and elected George Freeman president and J. C. Prendergast vice president. Eugene Stilwell, the new commissioner, was duly installed as a member of the board. The business outside of this was purely of a routine nature.

The old board was called to order by Vice President Freeman. A motion was immediately made that the board adjourn sine die; it was carried. The commissioners were at once called to order by Mr. Freeman. Commissioner Stilwell nominated Commissioner Martin for chairman pro tem. He was elected, and as he took his seat an nounced that nominations for president of the board were in order. Commissioner Stilwell nominated Commissioner Freeman, and Commissioner Prendergast seconded the nomination. No other nominations were made, and Mr. Freeman was elected unanimously. He took the chair and announced that nominations for vice president were in order. Commissioner Martin nominated Commissioner Prendergast, and Commissioner Stilwell seconded it. Mr. Prendergast was elected unanimously. The common council resolution for the placing of a fire alarm box, at the northwest corner of Summit and Cleve-land avenues was referred to the com-

The corporation attorney advised against placing Shields on the pension roll upon the ground that he was a poundmaster, and that does not constiute a police officer de jure, and he re-ported that Mrs. Costello, who has been before the council so long asking as-sistance upon the hypothesis that her husband had been a police officer, had no valid claim against the city, for the reason that Costello had not received s injuries while in the discharge of his duties as a police officer. The board thereupon rejected the petitions of both

A HOARY OLD CLAIM

Referred to the Corporation Attorney for an Opinion.

The old and long-disputed bills of the Minnesota l'acking company are once more before the council for adjudica-tion-or rather for rejection, qualification or payment. These bills run back to 1884, when the company was employed to remove dead animals. It seems that from time to time the council was not satisfied that this service had been efficiently done, and now and again bill was rejected. This went on for three years' and then the company's wagon was hired by the health officer for three years to be used by the sanita-tion company. For the latter a bill of $318 is rendered, and for the removal of dead animals $276 is claimed as a bal-ance due, aggregating $394. The assembly committee on claims yesterday refused to take any action in the matter. It was the opinion of Mr. Lightner that the company will be unable in any contingency to go back of the six-year statutory limitation for the ollection of bills, and moreover, he was not satisfied that any portion of the claim is valid. The matter was referred to the corporation attorney and

W. P. Warner on the Railroad in Kittson's Addition.

Attorney W. P. Warner yesterday ok exception to a communication which opened in the GLOBE of Sunday in relation to the scheme of building railway spur tracks through certain alleys of Kittson's addition in this city. Said Mr. Warner: "The author of that communication seems to regard the project as one of vital importance to the public, and broadly intimates that its accomplishment has been and is now being obstructed by some one person. Such publications, even when anonymous, are often assumed by the public to be true when not controverted. I have acted as legal adviser of some of the owners (including Mr. Schulze, Mr. Conowners (including Mr. Schulze, Mr. Conway, the Lamb estate, and others) of property abutting on the alleys through which this proposed spur would run; and none of them have hitherto done anything to obstruct accomplishment of this scheme, unless their insisting on something that will secure and assure performance of promises and assurances made by and on part of the railway company can be properly characterized as obstruction. These property owners are willing to facilitate accomplishment of this scheme, provided the matter be put in such shape as will compel the railway company to make good its assurances and promises. If the putting the matter in that shape has, or now does obstruct making this spur, then those assurances and promises were not made to be kept, and the judiciousness of the precautions hitherto taken by

of the precautions hitherto taken by the land owners is conclusively demon "But, however that may be, the author of that communication, and who-soever he represents, and everybody else may depend upon it that such pub-lications will not advance this scheme at all. The property owners will do just what appears to them right, and they will not be compelled by any newspaper publications to act injudiciously or without sufficient guarantees from the railway company. This course is necessary in all such cases, simply because corporate directors and simply because corporate directors and officers change and there comes in annually a race that knew not Joseph; and consequently it is now and always has been wise to obtain in such cases something that such new race will recongnize, because they must do so." GRAND INQUISITORS.

Alleged Overcharges of County Printer Burns Are Under Investigation.

That Official Maintains He Does Not Fear a Searching Inquiry.

The grand jury was in session for a half-day yesterday, and adjourned until Wednesday. It had members of the board of county commissioners before it in connection with the Burns matter, and it is expected by Mr. Burns himself that one or more indictments may be returned against him. Mr. Burns says he has nothing to fear from the results of a trial. He acted as he believed right in presenting his bills, and the fact that the expert printer figured his bill to be $57 greater than he presented it is evidence to his mind that he was not imposing on the county. He said that he is prepared to show that he saved the county money on the entire work, and did the printing and furnished the supplies cheaper than it was ever done before. He asserts that he cannot be convicted of wrong-doing. He referred to the fact that he asked that a committee of the council, as well as the board of county commissioners, investigate of a trial. He acted as he believed right to the committee on claims, to be audited and sent to the comptroller.

After the meeting the commissioners, chief and assistant chiefs, indulged in the customary quiet celebration, at which the newly elected officers and the new commissioner, Mr. Stilwell, performed the role of hosts. It lasted an hour or so had was a merry organism. county and city.

Mr. Burns also alluded to the fact that the charge of Judge Kelly did not refer to him singly but to all county officers and those having contracts, but if it was and those having contracts, out it is was decided to investigate him alone he will meet the charges. He stated also that if it is the purpose of some one to proceed against him for the purpose of ousting him from office, that person will not succeed, as such a proceeding against him as printer will not oust him from the office as auditor, as it will not from the office as auditor, as it will not have any bearing on the office he now holds, and is not for misfeasance or malfeasance of office. He drew attention to the fact that the board of county. commissioners directed a civil suit to be brought to recover the alleged amount of overcharge, but that the commissioners have not proceeded against him and his bondsmen in a civil suit, but seen-ingly leave action to some one who wants to oust him from office.

In speaking of the matter yesterday Commissioner Lavallee said that there seems to be some criticism on the action of the board in not proceeding against Burns sooner. He stated that the board had relied on the capability of the county expert printer, and aid not know of any overcharges until it was brought to its attention, and that as the matter was called to its notice it acted. The board had acted on the reports of the expert printer, and was not aware of any overcharges, and therefore should not be blamed for not acting sooner.

NATIONAL GUARDSMEN.

Minnesota Association Meets at the Capitol Today.

The National Guard Association of Minnesota will ask the legislature for certain changes in the act constituting the organization and maintenance of the department. This is one of the reasons why the association has selected today for its annual convention. The meeting will be held at the state capitol in conjunction with the legislative ommittee upon national guard affairs.
But this feature of the convention is, n a sense, an incidental phase. The isual annual business of the association will be transacted, as a matter of course. The officers will read papers upon themes of interest to the national guard, and these will be discussed.

In the evening the visiting officers will be the guests of the local officers. They will be taken to the Metropolitan theater, and later supper will be served at the Commercial club. While the lat-ter will be unconventional, there will be toasts and songs.

One project to be advocated today is a provision for twelve companies for each regiment, instead of ten, as at present.

The Fifth Ward Transfer Company Wants Additional Franchise

The company Munn and C. H. Petsch. The company asked for an exclusive right to build and maintain one or two tracks and wanted to build a second or third track, to be used jointly by such other roads as might desire to avail themselves of the privilege. The proposition was to build one track from South St. Paul during the year. The line laid out is to enter the city over the lower levee, going westerly from the intersection of State westerly from the intersection of State and Annapolis streets, along the leveecrossing over Robert street at grade, then going to the center line of Hyde street on a line to be designated by the city engineer. The proposed ordinance provides that one line be laid beyond

He believed one track enough for any road to have the exclusive franchise for, and he would be opposed to grant any company a right so valuable—actually giving them miles of right of way over valuable city property, and with it a right to lay two or three and with it a right to lay two or three tracks. He wanted to know if Mr. Munn would be willing to incorporate a proviso in the ordinance giving other roads

UNDERGROUND WIRES. Considering an Ordinance to Meet the Clashing Interests. The committee on streets of the as-sembly and board of aldermen met in joint session last night to consider the conduit system. There was a full meeting of the committeemen, and several representatives of the telegraph eral representatives of the telegraph and electric lines were present. A former proposed ordinance was revived and ordered printed, so that action may be taken at a future meeting, looking to requiring all the over-head wires to be placed under ground.

A lengthy communication was received from the city engineer accompanied by a proposed ordinance. The communication of Mr. Rundlett reviewed the history of the efforts to establish a conduit system. It referred to the grant by ordinance on the Na-tablish a conduit system. It referred to the grant by ordinance on the National Subway company of the right to place conduits in the streets, on the assumption that the various companies would avail themselves of the opportunity to place their wires under ground. It was expected by the city that this company, which had no lines in the city, would properly provide for all the wires in the city when they should be ordered underground. The National Subway company did lay two separate conduits, having separate systems and separate manholes, one for high and the other for low tension wires, but no company has availed itselves but no company has availed itselves of the conduits and there are no wires in them except the city fire alarm wires, As the electric companies have asked for authority to go under ground, they have claimed that the conduit of the National Subway, as constructed is not what they want, and that they cannot get into it without great danger of readering their service inoperative. The National Subway company system provides for leat pipes to be drawn in This is a general system, employed by most electric companies, but the Edison company places its wires an iron tubes, and claims the National Subway company is impracticable. Mr. Rundlett thinks one conduit not sufficient. His objection to allowing all companies to place conduits in the street would not be so great on account of room for the conduits as lack of room for manholes. He recommends a general ordinance giving any electric company the right
