NEW LINGERIE.

A Midwinter Trousseau—
Flower Cockades—
Bayadere Effects.

Special Correspondence of the Globe.

NEW YORK, Dec. 30.—To linger among lingerie. The alliterativeness of this programme is not its only fascination. Let us begin with the most expensive; thus would I like to personally begin and finish. The best material of which to make the best underclothes is undoubtedly lawn; a linen lawn. I am not recommending this article to the attention of those women whom rheumatism or inclination leads to consider seriously the advantages of Jaeger (which are many), the charms of flannellette, the joys of Violette and the unquestionable durability of muslin. Having secured the finest quality of lawn—and what an exquisite thing it is when you get it, so soft to the touch—you should always cut waist to lie in the front. So that the Valenciennes yoke be real and the frills on the ends of the sleeves match it, this will not be found a very cheap possession. All the nightgowns of the most extravagant kind are made a little low in the neck, square or round, and I have seen nightgowns with their sleeves of the Grecian order, long at the elbow and quite open up to the shoulders at the top; these I venture to term ridiculous. Last season we had our best nightgowns accordion kilted, but this was an inconvenient process, for it had to be repeated every time the nightgown was cleaned or washed. Yet one more simple method of making an attractive nightgown is to cut it a little open at the neck and to supply it with a large sailor collar or tucks and lace, truth that all silken petticoats should be made with corsets to match them, and again I mean that this need not necessarily involve excessive expenditure. The possession of a pair of black broadcloth silk corsets, flowered in pink and blue, will enable us to wear a petticoat of the same material in the day time and a plain blue or pink lace silk in the evening, always supposing that expenditure be an object; for, if not, then I would recommend white satin broadcloth corsets for the evening, over a petticoat of white lace much frilled.

A MIDWINTER TROUSSEAU.
The exquisite models described above are in many of the outfits for January brides. Trousseau just finished gives valuable hints in regard to other details. For the bridal gown itself, broadcloth is still greatly in favor. The going away dress in this instance was of the old Parma violet shade, but made in a woolen fabric having the appearance of being poudré, that is, slightly flecked with white. It was made with a bodice tight fitting at the back, a fitted skirt, and a full skirt. The bodice was in a woolen fabric having the appearance of being poudré, that is, slightly flecked with white. FLOWER COCKADES.
Despite the Parisian call for flowers New York has been rather slow in responding. They are coming to the front now, however, as cockades in velvet, tulle, and satin. The chief trend is toward violet, those marvelous flowers that people never seem to tire of. This time the whole tone is violet in color, with a red and purple tinge. Never were so many whigs, quills, tails and breasts worn as there are today. Pheasant is here to stay, and wholesale millinery stores predict a revival next fall of this costly idea. This is what it would be well to take advantage of.

BAYADERE EFFECTS.
Many new designs have made their appearance. The majority consist of undulating lines produced by jacquard weaving. While these, however, at the beginning showed continuous lines they have now been developed into an endless variety of designs, some covering the ground entirely while others show many small covered with small spots in the color of the filling. The bayadere fashion has evidently not reached its full development yet, and is one of the features which will be taken up during the coming season.

LEGEND OF ORANGE BLOSSOMS.
This Will be Certain to Interest the January Bride.

Like all familiar customs whose origin is lost in antiquity, the wearing of orange blossoms at a wedding is accounted for in various ways. Among other stories is the following pretty legend from Spain:
An African king presented a Spanish king with a magnificent orange tree, whose branches, waving blossoms and wondrous fragrance excited the admiration of the whole court. Many begged in vain for a branch of the plant, but a foreign ambassador was so much charmed by the tree that he was tormented by the desire to introduce so great a curiosity to his native land. He used every possible means, fair or foul, to accomplish his purpose, but all his efforts coming to naught he gave up in despair.
The fair daughter of the court gardener was loved by a young artisan, but lacked the dowry which the family considered necessary in a bride. One day, chancing to break off a spray of orange blossoms, the gardener thoughtlessly gave it to this daughter.
Seeing the coveted prize in the girl's hair the wily ambassador offered her a sum sufficient for the desired dowry, provided she give him the branch and say nothing about it. Her marriage was soon celebrated, and on her way to the altar, in grateful remembrance of the source of all her happiness, she secretly broke off another bit of the lucky tree to adorn her hair.

ART IN FURNISHING.
It Can Be So Tame That It Becomes Positively Ugly.

The delicate tints of the average expensively furnished parlor are apt to be colorless unless there is some relief to them. One sees so many rooms with soft, pearly gray Wilton carpets, walls of very much the same shade, hangings of silvery plush, furniture largely in white and gold, even the sofa cushions of the palest hues in costly fabrics. The curious set expressions of such a room, as if it were arranged for an exhibition parlor of upholstery, is enhanced usually by the lack of any sort of color, except that of the open fireplace, a reading table, anything that suggests a drawing together of the room's occupants. It is this lack of suggestion of life which makes one stroll through one of these perfectly appointed rooms and come with a sigh of relief into the next apartment, which the family really use. Occasionally a house is entered whose mistress boldly banishes the so-called parlor, letting it be simply an extension of the library. Books line its walls, a long table with chairs drawn around it is piled with fresh magazines, the latest books, and a writing service. All these may be as elegant as one's purse admits, but their very presence confers a charm and effect by their suggestion of use, that is not found in the handsomest stretches of upholstery and woodwork.

As Our Grandmothers Did.
Copying a scheme utilized by our grandmothers, it is not uncommon to see the valances around iron and brass bedsteads held in place by being shirred on to a piece of thin lath. A wide hem is made in the fabric and the lath inserted. Organdie hangings are better kept in place in this way than with rings and hooks.

How to Enhance Gibson Sketches.
An Eastern paper notes that college boys and girls are decorating their rooms with Gibson pictures, a fashion which has rather to be met with, one out of ten possesses an unmistakable covering of down on the upper lip. In the capital of Spain, again, the proportion of ladies with the masculine characteristic is said to be quite equal to that observable in the Golden Horn. An American medical man states that in Philadelphia fully 3 per cent of the adult fair sex are similarly adorned, and probably the proportion would be still larger but that many women take the trouble to eradicate the unwelcome growth by the application of depilatory preparations.

Boiled Duck.
Dress duck; rub well inside with salt and pepper, and turn drawing legs close to the body. Place a couple of sage leaves, a finely chopped onion and a little jelly stock of gravy. Rub with salt and pepper; make a paste in the proportion of half a pound of butter to a pound of flour and cover the duck; tie a cloth around all and boil two hours, or until tender, keeping well covered with boiling water. Serve with brown gravy, made by cooking a tablespoonful of butter and a tablespoonful of minced onion together until brown, adding a small tablespoonful of flour and a half pint of

NEW FUR OVER-BLOUSE.

Our elegant visiting costume is of pink cloth, the skirt, and astrakhan. The cloth skirt is trimmed with bands of astrakhan. The white satin blouse is party covered by an over-blouse of aspen cloth, the skirt, and astrakhan. The cloth skirt is trimmed with bands of astrakhan. The white satin blouse is superseded the poster fad. To vary the monotony of the oblong sheets and which, as a rule, the pictures are presented, some original and artistic genius tried the experiment of burning the edges. The paper is lighted with a match, care being taken to keep a very small flame. This is blown carefully around the picture in uneven lines. When finished the effect is exceedingly good. The slender thread of shaded brown which remains after the flame has gone out is useful in bringing out the picture; and the irregular shapes of dozens of such pictures tacked on the wall can be made very effective if a little care is taken in their arrangement.

Mustaches Common on Women.
A learned German, who has devoted himself to the study of physiology, anthropology and allied sciences, makes the rather startling assertion that mustaches are becoming commoner among women of the present day than in the past. He says that in Constantinople, among the unveiled women that are seasoned stock or water. Strain and add to chopped giblets, previously stewed till tender.

The Safety of Elderdown.
Do the wearers of elderdown dressing sacks and wrappers know that this peculiar and beautiful fabric will not blaze when held to the fire? It will only smolder, being made of an animal fibre. Mothers will do well to remember this when they are buying warm garments for their little ones.

VAN WYCK INDUCTED

NOW THE MAYOR OF THE SECOND CITY OF THE WORLD.

WITHOUT MUCH CEREMONY.

LARGE CROWD GATHERED AT THE CITY HALL TO SEE THE SHOW.

HE WILL ANSWER TO THE PEOPLE.

The New Executive's Pledge Upon Assuming the Duties of His Office—Appointments Made.

NEW YORK, Jan. 1.—New York today became the second city of the world, with Robert A. Van Wyck as its mayor. At the city hall a large crowd gathered early to witness the introduction of the new mayor. Mayor Strong transacted a few last matters of routine. Nearly all the old members of Mayor Strong's cabinet dropped in to say good-bye. Floral pieces were strewn in every direction. A tiger, in yellow and black immortelles, resting in a bed of roses, was one of the most noticeable decorations. At ten minutes to 12 o'clock Mr. Van Wyck entered the office. He was greeted by Mayor Strong, and Messrs. Gleason and Wurster. The four men chatted some time and the big crowd of officeholders and ex-officeholders made a circle around them. Shortly before 12 o'clock Mayor Strong said: "Mr. Van Wyck, the people of this new city, made up of five boroughs and 3,500,000 people, have decided that you shall be the first mayor and second from your position as judge to assume the position of magistrate. My impression is that this old city in which you and I have lived for about the same number of years—this old city of New York that is passing away, will contribute $3,000,000,000 worth of property to the new city of which you will be mayor; $230,000,000 of banking stock and $1,000,000,000 of deposits. And you will take charge of this little borough along with the others, and you will always feel, I know, that it is the brightest little jewel in the cluster of five. You have been chosen to be mayor of one of the largest cities in the world. I congratulate you and welcome you as mayor of Greater New York."

Mayor Van Wyck, in reply, said: "The people have chosen me to be mayor. I received the office from them and to them I will answer."

Then after a great shaking of hands the ceremony was completed and the administration of Mayor Strong was a thing of the past.

A good contingent of Brooklynites accompanied Bird S. Coler when he took charge of the comptroller's office. Mr. Coler announced several minor appointments and got through the ceremony of induction with little ado.

Coroners Hoerber and Tuthill held that their term of office has not expired and refused to give possession to Messrs. Bausch, Fitzpatrick and Hart, elected coroners, under the new charter. The new officials, however, obtained entrance to the offices and assumed the functions of the place. Messrs. Hoerber and Tuthill say they will appeal to the courts.

Mayor Van Wyck has announced the following appointments: John Whalen, corporation counsel; Thomas J. Brady, commissioner of buildings; James P. Keating, commissioner of highways; Henry L. Kearney, commissioner of public buildings, lighting and supplies; William L. Dalton, commissioner of water supply; James Kane, commissioner of sewers; Thomas J. Lantry, commissioner of corrections; George C. Clausen, president of the park board; August J. Moebius and George L. Brewster, park commissioners; Peter F. Meyer, J. Sargent Cram and Charles F. Murphy, members of the dock board; Thomas L. Feltner, president of the tax board; Bernard J. York, John B. Sexton, Thomas L. Hamilton and William E. Phillips were appointed police commissioners. York and Sexton are the Democratic members of the board, while Hamilton and Phillips represent the Republican party. York and Phillips come from Brooklyn, Sexton and Hamilton from New York. The salary is $5,000 per annum.

GOVERNOR INAUGURATED.
RICHMOND, Va., Jan. 1.—J. Hoge Tyler was inaugurated governor of the Old Dominion today in the presence of the two houses of the general assembly convened in the hall of the house. The capital was crowded with ladies and gentlemen, and the hall was packed to its utmost capacity. Nearly a many ladies as gentlemen were on the floor and the majority of the spectators in the gallery wore of the fair sex.

Rev. Dr. Moses D. Hoge made the prayer. The oath of office was administered by Judge R. H. Cardwell, of the supreme court of appeals. Gov. Tyler read a short address, dealing mainly with state issues and recommending certain legislation. The entire ceremony of the inauguration consumed about forty minutes. Immediately after the oath of office was administered to the governor and lieutenant governor, Senator Daniel, who was present, was loudly called upon for a speech, but replied by making a graceful excuse.

GRATIFYING RESULTS.

INTERESTING EXPERIMENTS WITH THE NEW STOMACH REMEDY.

Not a Patent Medicine, but a Safe Cure for All Forms of Indigestion.

The results of recent investigation have established, beyond question, the great value of the new preparation for indigestion and stomach troubles; it is composed of the digestive acids, pepsin, bismuth, Golden Seal and similar stomachics, prepared in the form of 20 grain lozenges, pleasant to the taste, convenient to carry when traveling, harmless to the most delicate stomach, and probably the safest, most effective cure yet discovered for indigestion, sour stomach, loss of appetite and flesh, nausea, sick headaches, palpitation of heart, and the many symptoms arising from imperfect digestion of food. They cure because they cause the food to be promptly and thoroughly digested before it has time to sour, ferment and poison the blood and nervous system. Over six thousand people in the state of Michigan alone in 1894 were cured of stomach troubles by Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets.

Full sized packages may be found at all druggists at 50c., or sent by mail on receipt of price from Stuart Co., Marshall, Mich. Send for free book on stomach diseases.

For Example.

In case we adopt these books, said the Director of School District No. 27, Hazelnet township, how much do I—ah—get out of it, you know.

The reply of the publisher's agent was given in a whisper.

But the books were adopted.

The question is: Does education diminish crime?—Chicago Tribune.

She Didn't Call.

Tom—Will you call for help if I attempt to kiss you?

Mary—Yes, if necessary; but I don't see why a big, strong man like you should require any help.—Chicago News.

NERVOUS PROSTRATION.

A New Jersey Woman Expresses Her Gratitude to Mrs. Pinkham for Relief.

"Will you kindly allow me," writes Miss Mary E. Saidt to Mrs. Pinkham, "the pleasure of expressing my gratitude for the wonderful relief I have experienced by taking your Compound? I suffered for a long time with nervous prostration and general debility, caused by falling of the womb. It seemed as though my back would never stop aching. I could not sleep. I had dull headaches. I was weary all the time, and life was a burden to me. I sought the seashore for relief, but all in vain. On my return I resolved to give your medicine a trial. I took two bottles and was cured. I can cheerfully state, if more ladies would only give your medicine a fair trial they would bless the day they saw the advertisement, and there would be happier homes. I mean to do all I can for you in the future. I have you alone to thank for my recovery, for which I am very grateful."

—MISS MARY E. SAIDT, Johnston, N. J.
