Short Story of The Day, Romance of the Cathedral

The musical festival, which had caused the whole city to hum with unwonted life and gayety, was over; but the narrow streets, usually so dull and sleepy, were fuller of carriages than on the opening day, and the pavements were crowded with well dressed people. Groups of cler-ics from far and near, clusters of ladies in fashionable silks and lace, and crowds of country people, with all that was best in the musical world, were shaking hands at street corners, flocking into shops, or dispersing to their homes.

The cathedral was about to close its doors. A few strangers still lingered in the nave gazing stolidly about them. The verger was locking up noisily as a warning to loiterers that the church was closing, and half a dozen choir boys, glad to be off to play, scampered out. Still a few lingered. A clergyman, obviously a stranger, came from the ambulatory, crossed the nave, and turning with leisurely step, passed through a narrow doorway out of the cathedral into

He was a curate of one of the outlying churches in the diocese, a man of ath-letic build, with a face keen and strong, and, though young, known already for his scholarship, his zeal and his plety. After facing the cloisters more than once, he sat on the broad stone sill of one of the arches and looked up at the sunlit spire, his eyes lingering on the late Norman tracery in the tower, his hands clasped in the attitude of a man deep in A child with her elder sister tripped gay-ly through. A group of country folk look-ed in, stared about uncomfortably, and "There is one way," he replied, with quiet emphasis, as he laid his hand on hers. "Believe me, there is no nobler sphere for a good woman. The first lady sphere for a good woman. The list lay in the parish has greater scope for influencing the lives of men than the vicar himself. The career has its humdrum side—Dorcas meetings, parish missions, and afternoon calls—but life is made up of everyday affairs, and a consecrated life is but the ennobling of common things.' "Of what do you speak? I do not under-

Or rather, let me say it reverently, has the providence of God given your life to mine." She looked up-looking into his manly, resolute face. Then she faltered in an agitated voice, "I cannot answer. I cannot think. Take me from here." "Only to cloister you in my soul," he

"Only to cloister you in my soul," he answered in a fervent whisper, as he drew her to his heart.

Things Women

Want to Know.

UTILITY OF SCREENS.

Some Hints as to Their Arrange ment and Decoration. The possibilities of the clothes horse in the way of screen development are numerous. One way to arrange the panels is to remove the middle bars in the sections and shift them to a position nearer the top. Take one fold of a two-fold screen and fill it with a panel of striped brocade, and place above it an autotypa

In the open arches opposite him he discerned a figure through the antique mullions, clad in a fashionable dress. Her face was upraised in a prolonged appreciation of the grandeur of the architect ure, which is nowhere more picturesque than in the view obtainable through the silence and gloom of the cloisters. But he was intent on the architecture no longer, the strains of Mendelssohn ceased to haunt his ears; all he was aware of now was a keenly human and strangely unaccountable interest in the solitary lady whose face was framed under the trefoils and quatrefoils of the old incrusted tracery. It was her face mingling with the stern shadows and dark moldings that now made those hoary flowers of stone blossom into new

He watched her pass the door of the transept. It was locked. He heard her endeavors upon the clanking iron, heard her light footfalls as she again descended into the cloister and saw her approaching the arcade, where she sat obscure

"Through the south gate," he replied, studying her face attentively. "I will show you. Come." He took hold of the heavy ring handle and tried to turn the lock. "The gate is closed," he said, "and the other, too.

'We are locked in?" she exclaimed,

"I don't know. I have never been in the cathedral before. I came here to the

"O," she rejoined, "has it not been plorious—superb—magnificent?"
"Superb, you say. Yes, and magnificent. Never have I heard Mendelssohn's "Hymn of Praise' so finely rendered. But hear thing is leading." "What was that?"

"Devotion, religion, the sense of sacrifice, the presence of the spirit of God."
"I know your meaning," she responded, earnestly. "The monks of old, when they chanted early mass, while the common workday people knelt on the bare stone, remained to may and the present. remained to pray and to penance, or went to fast-"

"True! And where have all these tickst-holders gone?—to dance and to dine."
His lip curled contemptuously.

"The superstition—the iniquity—"
"I heard her," he continued, inconseon another line. "That beautiful sop ane, Her voice was like an angel's." She blushed, and, looking around, moved uneasily.

"Can we not get out?" she asked. "We must find a door," he stammered. "Excuse my-my abrupt confidence. In TEXCUSE my—my abrupt confidence. In truth, I am under her spell. But listen. I know my folly. Whose is this voice? Her name was in the programme—Luini It was Luini, a singer, probably at the opera; a certain 'draw' with the aid, perhaps, of a ballet. As likely as not she plays the heroine in 'Don Glovanna.'" framed in glass, the shape being that of the panel. On the other fold of the screen in the deep panel show a fluting of China in the deep panel show a fluting of China graniteware pan, cover with a syrup of silk in the upper half with a pocket of brocade, and have the small oblong panel Lay the fruit in a glass serving dish, a repetition of the opposite side or simply a panel of brocade. Repeat the arrangement on the reverse side of the screen, with this difference. Have the screen, with this difference. Have the right fold treated after the fashion of the left and vice versa. Bars of ribbon stretched across the upper half of one of the deep panels make convenient recepta-cles for cards or photographs.

Instead of removing the center bars from the clothes horse another idea that is likely to find favor with the home constructor is to panel only the lower half with silk, and in the upper panel place a framed autotype, or a panel of cathedral glass with sprays of flowers painted in seal.

The small fire screens with their won-derfully embroidered panels are not seen much nowadays, but an effective substimuch nowadays, but an effective substi-tute may be evolved by one clever with tools from bamboo sticks, and the panels might be of rich brocaded silk or satin or fluted China silk. These pretty accesso-ries in room furnishing look well in most any ordinary sized sitting room, but are particularly attractive in a room with an open fireplace and wood or grate fire.

If the shop manufactured screen is desired the list is comprehensive enough to suit the most exacting taste, and the Japanese stores are the specialty place Large screens form a pretty and useful wing to a cosy corner, or to a sofa, and a four-fold or three-fold screen, with effective design, looks extremely well stretched to its full length against the back of the lounge.

MY LADY'S GLOVES.

Cool Covering for Slim White Fingers.

There have been many days, yes, many weeks, this summer, when it was a positive discomfort to wear gloves on one's hands, so great has been the heat and humidity of the atmosphere. When it has been necessary to cover the hands we have generally taken refuge in "summer gloves" of white silk. These wash pure white if one uses castle soap with them, and if one has been clever enough to choose gloves without stitching on the backs or the hands, or at any rate with only white silk stitching.

Black "pointing," as it is called, looks well on a white glove, but it is a disadvantage in case one wants to wash it. The black is apt to run a little and discolor the white. Do not wear atight slik glove. It is then as hot as a kid glove. Choose loose-fitting gloves, with fingers wide enough, but not too long. Loose-fitting gloves are fashionable now.

THAT DAINTY CHATELAINE.

It Now Matches the Belt of Black Patent Leather.

A very late development in the chatelaine bag is made of black patent leather to match the belt, from which it should swing. As a usual thing the weight of a chatelaine bag that holds a purse will drag down the waistband of a dress skirt
so that a glimpse of white shows beneath the bodice, unless the hook of the bag is put through a piece of belting. The bag is shinness itself, and really handsome.
You must treat it with rather more respect than if it were of "seal" or alligator leather, both of which wear well with little sign of the hard usage they receive. The belt worn with this bag is especially narrow, but sufficiently strong.

The white chatelyine has also metaken is especially narrow, but summently strong.

The white chatchine bag also matches the white kid belt. They look well with the gown of khaki linen or navy blue duck, or of black pique. Discard from the first moment they show signs of soil. Dirty white is not among the possibilities for a lady to wear.

If I could live in an age when we women might be servants of the sanctuary—ordained to the Most High. If I might so devote myself to service—ahl how I could sing then!"

He stood electrified.
"But I am a woman," she added sadly.

"Strictly waterproof" is claimed for a new cloth, gray in color, which is used to make a painty dress for the lady angler in inland waters. Its friends also claim that the gray cloth can be laundered! A two-piece suit with a tolerably short skirt is the pattern worn in the Adirondacks. There is nothing remark—

NO SWEET SIXTEEN THERE.

There Is But a Brief Step From Childhood to Wifehood.

Childhood to Wifehood.

London Mail.

In China there is nothing of the sweet girlhood which is enjoyed in this country—in fact, one rarely sees girls in China.

They marry so young that they appear to spring from childhood to maturity without any intermediate stage of girlhood. There is no blushing "fifteen" or "sweet sixtees." no firitations, no balls, no plenics, no billet-doux. The child has not ceased to play with her doll before she has a baby to dandle.

The only joy of a woman's life is in dressing her hair. This is done with an elaborate, artistic science curious to see. Their hair is invariably black, and very long. It is drawn tightly from the face and stiffened with gum. It is then piled up in colls and wings and loops that stand alone without the aid of pads, roulets, pugs or hairpins.

There are no spinsters in China except the nuns who dedicate their virginity to Buddha. These ladies shave their heads like priests, and thus deprive themselves of the only Chinese sign of gender—the hair dressed a la teapot.

Easy Fitting House Shoe of Black Linen Duck.

Black linen duck is used to make the soft shoe for trained nurses. They are noiseless in a sick room, because they have the soft sole that does not squeak. The linen shoe is low cut and will be found extremely cool in summer time. Of course it is only a house shoe, and is not meant to be worn out of doors.

Apples for the Aerves.

Apples are useful in nervous dyspepsia. They are nutritious, medicinal and vitalizing; they aid digestion, clear the voice, correct the acidity of the stomach, are invaluable in rheumatism, insomnia and liver trouble. An apple contains as much nutriment as a potato, in a pleasanter and more wholesome form.

STATE OF MINNESOTA, County of Ramsey, ss. In Probate Court.

In the Matter of the Application for License to Sell the Real Estate of Clara Kuhl, an Insane Person.

On reading and filing the petition of William Hamm, Guardian of the above named ward, praying that license be to him granted to sell at private sale the real estate belorging to said ward, and it appearing by said petition, to the satisfaction of the Court, that it is necessary for the comfortable and suitable maintenance and support of said ward, and that it would be for the benefit of said ward to sell said real estate:

It is therefore ordered, That all persons interested in said estate appear before said Probate Court, at a special term thereof to be held on Saturday, the first day of September, A. D. 1900, at 10 o'clock in the forenoon, at the Court House, in said county, then and there to show cause (if any there be) why license should not be granted to said Guardian to sell said real estate according to the prayer of said petition.

And it is further ordered that notice of such hearing be given to all persons interested, by publishing this order once in each week for three successive weeks prior to said day of hearing, on Friday of each week, in the St. Paul Globe, a daily newspaper printed and published in said county.

Dated at St. Paul, this ninth day of August, 1900.

By the Court:
