

RECORD IS BUMPED

THRILLING DASH MADE BY G. E. PALMER'S FOUR-IN-HAND COACH AGAINST TIME

HORSE SHOW PROGRAMME CREATES ENTHUSIASM

Races Are the Best of the Week—Hidalgo Wins Fast Pacing Event in Straight Heats, Best Time 2:11—Show Will Continue Today in Answer to Many Demands.

Patrons of the horse show yesterday were treated to the uncommon spectacle of a mile race by a four-in-hand coach against time, and witnessed the breaking of the world's record for that distance, by a team owned and driven by G. E. Palmer, of Denver, Col.

Arrangements had been made on the previous evening for a race of four-in-hand coaches in which it was expected J. C. Duncan and Fred Laramie, of Minneapolis, and E. Hersey, of this city, as well as A. E. Ashbrook, of Kansas City, would participate; but for various reasons the other gentlemen were unable to start their teams, and Mr. Palmer, who has done much to make the show a grand success, it has been, obligingly consented to his team against time. The world's previous record for the mile was 3:58, and Mr. Palmer not only lowered that, but made the distance on the regular mile track which is standard measurement, in the remarkable time of 2:55 1/2, as was attested by as many as a dozen stop-watches. The time by quarters was 3:56, 1:17 1/2, 2:03, 2:55 1/2.

Mr. Palmer, as usual, drove his own coach and carried six passengers. The team used by him on this occasion consisted of Anthracite and Justine, wheelers; and El Capitán and Grey Ghost, leaders. All of these horses are of high breeding and by famous sires, Anthracite being by Rayon d'Or, Justine by Clown, who made a three-year-old record in Minneapolis; El Capitán by Charles Reed, and Grey Ghost by Markham, who has a half-mile record of 14 1/2.

Couldn't Believe Watches. With a short run to the wire, Mr. Palmer went away at a smashing pace, relying evidently upon the staying powers of his team, for he began urging them in the first quarter. The little group in the judges' stand and those on the track just beneath who were holding watches were astounded at the time of the first quarter and would not believe the evidence of their own eyes, pieces until they had compared notes. The second quarter also was traveled at a surprising pace, but in the third there was an apparent change of speed that was apparent to event the casual spectator, and although the finish was highly creditable the horses—one of the leaders especially—showed the effects of the sharp work in the first half mile.

At the head of the stretch A. E. Ashbrook, with his coach, met the Palmer team and paced them in the last quarter of the race, but in the last half mile the Palmer horses dropped dead the record had been "all shot to pieces." Before this race against time there was a competition between the four-in-hand class between the team driven by Mr. Palmer and the Ashbrook team, consisting of White Rock and Appolinaris and Hamundi and Red Raven Spits, in which Mr. Palmer was given first and Mr. Ashbrook second prize. This was the one event which had been postponed on the programme from Tuesday.

Carling Gets Prize. On the regular programme for yesterday the first class judged was the English dog-cart horses of 15 hands 2 inches and over, and G. C. Finch's gray gelding Dandy, which had been entered, was disqualified because he was not quite up to the standard of height. First prize went to Mr. Pickwick, exhibited by W. G. Carling; second to King, exhibited by W. W. Price, and third to Prince, exhibited by E. B. Holbert. Royal Flush, H. S. Judson, also competed.

LEARN HOW TO WORK

THIS IS THE NEGRO'S GREATEST PRACTICAL NEED SAYS BOOK—ER T. WASHINGTON.

GREAT LEADER SPEAKS BEFORE AFRO-AMERICANS

Convention Is Somewhat Troubled by a Dispute Over the Election of Officers and Bolt Is Threatened by Some Members—Will Be Settled at This Morning's Session.

The second day's session of the National Afro-American council was one filled with activity and packed with many distinguishing features. Some of the ablest representatives of the race delivered addresses of moment, officers for the ensuing year were elected, reports of important committees received, and to crown the day's work, Booker T. Washington, the greatest leader of his people, delivered an inspiring and practical speech at the evening session, which closed the day's work, so to speak, in a "blaze of glory." The distinguished president of Tuskegee Institute, who is recognized by white and black men alike as the most effective worker for negro progress along practical lines today, was at his best last night and he spoke with great power and wonderful effect.

Speaking before his own people he seemed inspired to great heights, if possible, than when he last spoke in this city before an altogether different body of people. There was the same direct, commonplace, simple method, the same practical strain in his remarks, but there was, if possible, more fire and more heart in the words he spoke to the people of his own blood, pointing out the possibilities of evolving a wonderful destiny, if patience, endurance, earnestness and worthy effort were made the stepping stones, not to power and place, but to worth and character, and to an achievement that should not alone contribute to the character of the country which they should serve. Eloquently he pointed out the dangers from following the lead of those who are setting too high values upon what is not vital. His message was not one couched in visionary poetic prophecy, but one of hard, common sense and every note of it optimistic, hopeful and serene. He said in part:

Booker Washington Speaks. I am sure that I voice the sentiments of the entire council when I say that, as a body, we represent the colored people of the United States, and as such, we are entitled to the same respect and consideration as the white people of the United States.

I am sure that I voice the sentiments of the entire council when I say that, as a body, we represent the colored people of the United States, and as such, we are entitled to the same respect and consideration as the white people of the United States. I am sure that I voice the sentiments of the entire council when I say that, as a body, we represent the colored people of the United States, and as such, we are entitled to the same respect and consideration as the white people of the United States.

Every race which gets upon its feet has got to pass through a material and industrial age. First, comes the clearing of the land, planting of the soil, construction of machinery and building of houses, and with these for a foundation comes in later years the development of the arts and sciences. Sometimes an objection has come to this form of training from those who contend that the negro is not a material man. That is true, but the great lesson which we as a race want to learn at the present time is that the negro is not a material man. That is a vast difference from being worked and working—that being worked means degradation, working means civilization. I want to see a large proportion of the negro population of this country begin planting themselves in the fundamental and wealth producing industries. I want to see more of them engaged in the arts and sciences. I want to see more of them engaged in the arts and sciences. I want to see more of them engaged in the arts and sciences.

Progress Has Been Great.

With all her disadvantages, there is an opportunity for industrial and business development for the negro in the South that is scarcely presented in any other part of this country. The negro, more and more, is learning to take advantage of the opportunities which he is surrounded. George Kennan, the great Russian traveler, who has traveled extensively through the South, makes the statement that notwithstanding the fact that the Russian serfs were freed about the same period as the negro, and notwithstanding the further fact that the negro was given land by the Russian government, and that the negro had to buy any land of which he has become possessed, that the negro in the South is today equal to or greater than that made by the Russian serf. In Georgia alone, according to official statistics gathered by Dr. DuBois, the negro owns 1,400,000 acres of land and pays taxes upon property valued at over $15,000,000.

I have heard it stated more than once within recent months that the relations between the two races are more strained now than ever. To this statement I can hardly subscribe. In making it one should bear in mind the relations which existed in the South between the two races fifty years ago. There was but one relation, that of master and slave, that of a master and a servant. During the last thirty-five years the two races have been adjusting themselves to new relations, and while this adjustment is taking place there is friction and unrest, but it is not becoming alarmed or discouraged. The negro in recent years is assuming the relation of a free man of a tenant, or a purchaser of land, or a bank depositor, or a contractor, or a client in court. All this is new, and we must not be impatient, I repeat, while the new adjustment is taking place.

Tribute to White Friends.

As a race, I am glad to see in this council so many evidences of harmony, so many evidences of the fact that we can sink the color line and unite our efforts in the one direction of uplifting the race. In this connection we must bear in mind that the great body of the race lives in the South and is so remote from the North for all time, and we who live in the South must not become estranged from those of our race who live in the North. We must not live in the North as a work of common good. You must not take it as a sign of cowardice if some of us who live in the South see gleams of hope and encouragement for the race in that part of the country which you are in this section cannot see. I should prove myself a coward and a traitor if I did not assert, while we have strong, helpful friends in the North, the race in the North, we have strong, helpful white friends in the South at the same time. I cannot exhibit that kind of ingratitude which would make me forget the white men who, in the little town of Tuskegee, when I was struggling, found that institution, without a dollar, a hundred dollars out of their own pockets and loaned it to me, without a guaranty that it would be returned, in order that that institution might be built up for the benefit of our race. Such white men are not enemies to the negro, whether they live in the North or whether they live in the South.

Gospel of Optimism.

In a large degree such organizations as this should bear in mind that we cannot by ourselves help forward the race in any large degree by depending too much on fault finding, condemning or criticizing. We must bear in mind that destruction is easy, construction is difficult, but it is by construction that the race can be helped. We must not be discouraged and disheartened as a race. I see nothing, I repeat, which I do not underestimate the seriousness of the tremendous problem that is before us. The influence of property, education and high character are universal, are everlasting, and these influences cannot be nullified in any part of our country.

Trouble Over Election.

Early yesterday afternoon the following officers were elected: President, T. F. Fortune; Vice President, C. T. Fortune; Secretary, C. T. Fortune; Treasurer, C. T. Fortune; Corresponding Secretary, C. T. Fortune; Resolving Secretary, C. T. Fortune; Executive Committee, C. T. Fortune; and a number of other officers.

The election of officers occurred early yesterday afternoon, while the delegates were in session, and as a result considerable opposition to the way the election was carried out developed. When the insurgent forces arrived at the meeting yesterday afternoon, it was found that the slate, as offered by the nominating committee, had been declared elected. The delegates, however, who were opposed to the slate, started the ball rolling and led the attack. In speaking of the election last night, he said:

We don't believe Mr. Fortune is a fit man for the place, because he has not only taken advantage to abuse us to our enemies, but he is driving our people to the city of St. Paul, two-thirds of the population are people from the South, and I fail to remember the time in my business life that I have not been given the very fairest opportunity to make a name for myself. I claim the election of the council as a body. I claim the election of officers was illegal, and unless they rescind their action there will be a new election. The delegates who will not use the funds of the council to make trips to Hayti when the money is needed in defense of the American people, 25,145.31 pounds; cream sold, 370,899 gallons; butter sold, 41,176.47 pounds; cheese sold, 3,289.00 pounds.

According to these figures the product amounts to $5 for every inhabitant of the state.

Animal Buries Teat in Man's Throat, Badly Hurting Him.

George M. Fisher, a night watchman, was bitten about the face and neck by a dog at Third and Wabasha while making his rounds early yesterday morning. Fisher noticed the dog, and after patting it on the head, stooped lower to caress the animal, which suddenly sank its teeth into his neck. When the dog dropped his hold Fisher attempted to kick it, and was again bitten on the leg. He was removed to the city hospital in the central patrol wagon.
