 The most important game of the Western football schedule for today will be played by the Minnesota and Illinois teams on Northrop field this afternoon. Wisconsin and Michigan play this afternoon, but their games are with minor teams, and the Western football world impatiently awaits the result of the clash between the Gophers and the Illini.

University of Virginia vs. Lehigh,

Gophers and the Illini.

The football world of the West is interested, for on this game hangs the future of the 1902 Gophers. Minnesota has claimed the right to be recognized as one of the possible winners of the Western championship, and she must win the game this afternoon to make good her claim. If the Gophers lose they are out of the running as far as the championship is concerned.

The Minnesota rooters are confident that their team will win, so confident that they were offering 2 and even 3 to 1 on the Gophers yesterday afternoon. The Iowa and Grinnell games are responsible for this enthusiasm on the part of the Maroon and Gold supporters, but the wins from Iowa and Grin-nell are not enough for the cold-blood-They are waiting for the final score this afternoon.

The critics are right. Iowa was defeated by a good-sized score, but Iowa has shown as a weak team since the season started. It is the same with the Grinnell score, but with the Illini it is different Ahead of Chicago.

If football dope is worth anything, a good win from Illinois this afternoon brings Minnesota out as the most dangerous team in Michigan's path. The University of Chicago team has been mentioned by many of the critics as the gerous team in Michigan's path. The University of Chicago team has been mentioned by many of the critics as the team with a chance to stop Michigan and Wisconsin, but a score better than 6 to 0 gives Minnesota place ahead of Chicago. The Illini met Chicago and played the Maroons almost to a standstill. Stagg's men won by the score 6 to 0, but their only touchdown started on a fumble. Perkins, the Maroon fullback, got the ball and ran thirty yards to the goal line. And Minnesota is to meet this same team this afternoon. Illinois has one of the strongest teams in its history, and the Gophers have real trouble cut out for their share of the afternoon's work.

The Illinois squad, eighteen players and Coach Holt, Assistant Coach Mattis, Trainer Connibear and Manager Huff, reached Minneapolis yesterday morning and registered at the West hotel. The team looks to an ounce as heavy as the Gophers, and every player expressed himself confident of winning. According to Coach Holt, the team will average 169 pounds. Manager Huff placed the figure at 172 pounds.

Coach Holt, the team will average 169 pounds. Manager Huff placed the figure at 172 pounds.

Manager Huff declared that his team expected to win and should win. Coach Holt. while hopeful, insisted that the condition of a few of his men might make it harder to finish first. According to the coach, one of the ends has a bad ankle, and Halfback Pitts is far from being in good condition. Despite all this, the Champaign coach declares that with a dry field the Gophers will have to declever work to keep his team from scoring.

Rooters Are Confident. The rooters are willing to admit that the game will be a hard one for the maroon and gold, but the feeling is almost general that the Gophers will triumph. The men realize the value of this game, and if Minnesota goes down the blame cannot be laid to overconfidence.

Members of both teams took life easy yesterday. The Illinois coaches took their men for a long walk and ended the day's work with a light signal practice.

Referee Claims Briggs Hit New Yorker

n the Stomach.

BOSTON, Mass., Nov. 7.—Dave Sullivan, of New York, was awarded the decision on a foul over Jimmy Briggs, of Chelsea, in the eighth round before the Criterion Athletic club tonight, and the boxing wound up on the verge of a free fight, in which most of the spectators were jostling Dan Donnelley, the referee, and Sullivan. Briggs had all the batter of the match, repeatedly staggering Sullivan with punches in the jaw. In the sixth and seventh rounds Sullivan had to clinch to save himself. In the eighth Briggs landed blows at will, and after one to the stomach Sullivan doubled up, claiming he was fouled. He staggered to his corner and sat down. Before a decision was given Sullivan rushed back and resumed the fight. Briggs again landed a heavy blow and Sullivan eried foul and was given the decision. Sullivan went to his corner

Dr. Rothrock Makes a Startling Discovery in the Case of Miss Mae

The autopsy held on the remains of Mae Moore at the city hospital yesterday, revealed the fact that the young woman did not die of epilepsy, but from a fracture at the base of her skull. Dr. Rothrock conducted the post mortem examination and was surprised to learn of the cause of death.

Whether or not the fracture was caused by foul play is unknown, but Mike Kelley, who spent the night with the woman at the Yukon hotel, is held by the police, awaiting further investigation by the police and coroner.

Mae Moore was taken to the city hospital early Thursday morning. She was suffering from epileptic fits, having had several during the previous night. Thursday afternoon, shortly after 4 o'clock, the woman died. It was then thought that epilepsy had caused death. But yesterday, when Dr. Rothrock discovered the fracture, he at once announced that her demise resulted from the fractured skull.

The question now is whether the woman's skull was fractured first, bringing on the convulsions, or whether the fracture was caused by the Moore woman striking her head while suffering from the epileptic fit.

Kelley emphatically denied to the police and Acting Coroner Whitcomb yesterday that he had any trouble with the woman. He says that she became sick shortly after they went to their room and that during the night had several fits. He also claims that when he met the woman she told him that she was ill.

Kelley will be held until the case is thoroughly investigated, although Chief O'Connor places but little credence in the foul play theory.

FIGHT FOR CONTROL OF NEXT REPUBLICAN STATE CONVENTION

VAN SANT IS AFER SCALP LOCKS OF CLAPP AND DUNN

Governor Did Not Give Up the Hunt for a Seat in the Senate or Purpose of Dictating Selection of Next Gubernatorial Candidate When His Congressional Carry-all Broke Down.

A campaign far more bitter than the state fight just closed is already well under way. The dictatorship of Van Sant and his managers fell through so far as the congressional nominations were concerned, and now the fight for possession of a big machine is on in earnest earnest. earnest.

Last spring the policy of the conservative Republicans who urged that it would be cheaper to renominate and re-elect Van Sant and then see him make a peaceful and definite finish at the end of two years prevailed. That policy does not appeal to the genial governor who sees bigger things in politics for himself than the-mere chief executive of the Bread and Butter state.

Immediately after his nomination, his managers began a systematic campaign for the nomination of selected congressional candidates. The successful building of a congressional delegation would put Mr. Van Sant in possession of the entire Benchlier organisms. session of the entire Republican organ-ization of Minnesota, and not only per-mit him to elect himself United States senator, but control the Minnesota delegation to the national convention. Chosen Come to Grief.

In the Second district, where James McCleary, otherwise the "Little Schoolmaster," has an eye on Clapp's job, the genial governor and his managers failed to bring out a candidate at the primaries, and the Fourth district did not look like a fruitful field of operations. Not so in the other districts. Knatvold, in the First; Ives, in the Third; Peterson, in the Fifth; Foster, in the Sixth; Dowling, in the Seventh; Judge William Edson, in the Eighth, and Senator Grindeland, in the Ninth congressional districts, were righted to will the ator Grindeland, in the Ninth congressional districts, were picked to pull the administration chestnuts out of the administration chestnuts out of the fire and backed to win. That they all fell down is no fault of the administration; nor does it relieve the minds of the Fletcher men, who charge Van Sant and his organ in Minneapolis with "Your Lucle Loren's" defeat

"Your Uncle Loren's" defeat.

Defeat at the primaries damped but did not extinguish the ardor of the statesman from Winona and his managers. They landed in a few instances in the legislative fights, and now that the state campaign is off their hands they are again on the warneth Robert they are again on the warpath. Robert C. C. Dunn and Moses E. Clapp were the objects of the hair-hunting quest. Dunn is feared as the leading candidate for gubernatorial nomination in 1904, and Clapp has the seat in the senate that looks so good to Van Sant.

Jacobson in Evidence.

Jacobson in Evidence.

Jacob F. Jacobson, of whom a suitable tool was made when Van Sant had legislative chestnuts to pull, now shines as the gentleman selected to make the front in the fight against Dunn. Jacobson could do it with some show of grace, as he is popularly believed to cherish a real or fancied grievance against Dunn for the Princeton man's alleged control of the last convention and the nomination of Samuel G. Iverson as Dunn's successor. According to his supporters, Jacobson then thought or pretended to think there was something rotten in Denmark, and that Dunn made the fight for Iverson to insure against the expansion of the last of the supporters, Jacobson then thought or pretended to think there was something rotten in Denmark, and that Dunn made the fight for Iverson to insure against the expansion of the last of the supporters, Jacobson then thought or pretended to think there was something rotten in Denmark, and that Dunn made the fight for Iverson to insure against the expansion of the least of the supporters, Jacobson then thought or pretended to think there was something rotten in Denmark, and that Dunn made the fight for Iverson to insure against the expansion of the least of the supporters, Jacobson then thought or pretended to think there was something rotten in Denmark, and that Dunn made the fight for Iverson to insure against the expansion of the last of the last of the supporters, Jacobson the support carry kind of friends in the new sen-ate, and, though they are comparative-ly few, control of the next house would put the key to the senatorial situation in the hands of the genial governor

REAPERS ARE MANY.

Speakership of Next House Looks Good to Several Solons.

With the election out of the way and almost a closed incident, the mind of the practical politician, or that portion of his legion with a possible change of breaking in, turns to the question of organization of the next legislature. The Thirty-third legislature prom-ises to be an interesting body of states. ises to be an interesting body of states-men. The Populistic element is wiped out, and the Republican majority in both branches will be so large that the state will again be presented with the spectacle of Republicans fighting Republicans, instead of a partisan division of the solons.

The speakership of the house now holds the center of the stage, and the fight promises to be interesting, if it does not get top heavy before the question comes to a caucus. On the face of the latest returns a clean majority of the re-elected members of the house are candidates for the gavel. Until the combinations that will in the very nature of things be set up develop, the strength of any or all of them is purely problematical strength of any or all of them is purely problematical.

John H. "Bobby" Burns, of Fillmore; James Morley, of Steele; Dr. Babcock, of Wadena; Robert Wells, of Wilkin; L. C. Stevenson, of Hennepin, and Stark, of Chisago, are in the field, each with some showing or claim of support. C. S. Schurman, of St. Paul, would have been a candidate had he landed a third term from the Sixth ward, and support generally accredited to him is now adrift. Schurman is, however, a candidate for second assistant secretary of the senate and may be able to play a decent trading hand. So far Babcock and Wells seem to hold the leading positions. the leading positions.

GRIST OF THE POLITICAL MILL.

Boiler Inspector Johnson and friends yesterday called on the governor of Minnesota. Mr. Johnson early in his official career acquired fame and some ducats by insisting on the inspection of the fire engine boilers and the decision that steam heated houses domiciling a roomer or two are hotels.

John L. Gieske, the Democrat who made a fine run for congress in the Fourth district, says he is perfectly satisfied with the showing he made under adverse circumstances. Mr. Gleske made a fine personal campaign and thoroughly appreciates the support given him by the common people, whose cause he championed.

If Van Sant did not promise Fred Schiffmann's berth to George Matchan, Matchan was certainly laboring under a misapprehension at convention time last

That telegram of congratulation from President Roosevelt is still overdue at the governor's office. Some one should men-tion the oversight to the president.

If Col. Trowbridge only had the private telegraph line with which he had half nourly communication with Milburn house, in working order now, he might get quick service for those delayed congratulations. Schiffmann must go, but he knows it. Several other appointees are slated for the ax and they do not even suspet it.
