ST. PAUL'S POLICE FORCE FIFTY YEARS AGO

It Then Consisted of One Man, Who Had to Deal With the Bad Characters Who Drifted to This Outpost of Civilization—Some Men Still on the Force Who Began Service 32 Years Ago

From a village with a single marshal fifty years ago, to the best police city in the United States at present, is a record of development in which St. Paul may justly take pride.

While statistics of crime show that there now is less lawlessness in this city than in any other in proportion to size at present, fifty years ago, when "Bill" Miller was the sole representative of law and order in the village, the settlers were constantly at the mercy of marauding red skins and more dangerous thieves and murderers of white skin, who had drifted to the confines of civilization.

The steamboat landing in the early days of St. Paul was the scene of frequent brawls and disturbances, and the pioneers, whenever necessary, required them to move about the village, took the precaution of going well armed. Tough characters swarmed up the river from the South and East, and it was not till several years after the police force was organized that the village was rid of the dangerous element.

"Bill" Miller, town marshal and first chief of police, had his hands full in protecting the lives and property of the early citizens. In 1856 the first organized force was established, and it consisted of Miller as chief, with four patrolmen—John Gobel, Nicholas Miller, M. C. Hardwing and Edward Maher. The patrolmen at that time received $150 per day.

With the expansion of the town the force was increased. The 1858 system was reorganized and the city was divided into districts, each being placed under a captain.

The force then consisted of twelve men disposed among three districts. Capt. Solomon Walters, who had charge of the first district, had under him William H. Spitzer, Smith McAuley and Joseph Fadden. The second district was in charge of Capt. Bert Miller and patrolled by William Tonika, Andrew Sanberg, Aspinwall Corvauil, Capt. James Gooding and Policemen M. C. Hardwing, Henry Galvin and Ed Hahner protected the third district. Henry Galvin died in St. Paul a few months ago; he was at the time of his death the only survivor of the early guard.

Police Force Is Abolished.

The force remained unchanged from 1858 till 1862, when three of the patrolmen enlisted in the volunteer regiments and left the force so crippled that Mayor Prince was obliged to call a meeting of the citizens to devise some expedient. He suggested that the police force be abolished entirely and that the citizens organize themselves into a home guard to protect themselves. This suggestion was adopted.

Some of the old residents of the city may have a recollection of the old home guard which for nearly a year enforced order in the small town. Citizens organized themselves into bodies and patrolled the streets in turns during the night time. The guard duty, which at first was disagreeable to many, soon became popular, so much so that the wives became alarmed at the "night-hawking" habits their husbands were acquiring.

The home guard was finally abandoned.

the country that they give it a wide berth in their migrations from city to city.

Though the city receives the best of protection, it is one of the few in the United States in which a pension system has not been established. Through a mere technicality the law enacted at the last legislature has been pronounced invalid. There are a number of men on the force who, on account of long and faithful service, are deserving of the benefits sought to be given by the law.

PRESIDENT OF MINERS' UNION IS ARRESTED

Soldiers Will Not Tell What the Charge Against Him Is.

CRIPPLE CREEK, Col., Sept. 26.—William Dodsword, president of Union No. 32, was arrested today at his home in Goldfield by the military and thrown in the "bull pen." He asked the soldiers with what crime he was charged, but they refused to reply. Dodsword was but recently elected president of the Victor union. He is a large property owner in the town of Goldfield. It is said that the military heard that Dodsword was expressing strong opinions against their presence in the district and for this reason it was deemed fit to place him in the "bull pen."

Adj. Gen. Bell said that Dodsword would be prosecuted on the charge of having threatened and intimidated James Boyle, a driver in the employ of the Colorado Trading and Transfer company. No charges have yet been made against the five other prisoners held by the military.

Plans for the importation of 1,200 strike breakers are said to have been made by the Mine Owners' association.

Finish of the Odd Fellows.

BALTIMORE, Md., Sept. 26.—The sovereign grand lodge of Odd Fellows adjourned sine die today to meet in San Francisco next year. The chief business transacted was the appointment of standing committees and making provision for compensation of the grand sire of the order, and the commander of the patriarchs militant. Committees were also appointed on transfers of membership by card or certificate, on printing supplies and securing transportation rates for the next convention.

THE VALUE OF CHARCOAL.

Few People Know How Useful It Is in Preserving Health and Beauty.

Nearly everybody knows that charcoal is the safest and most efficient disinfectant in and about the home. But few realize its value when taken into the human system for the same cleansing purpose. Charcoal is a remedy that the more you take of it the better; it is not a drug at all, but simply absorbs the gases and impurities always present in the stomach and intestines and carries them out of the system.

Charcoal sweetens the breath after smoking, drinking or after eating onions and other odorous vegetables. Charcoal effectively cleans and improves the complexion. It whitens the teeth and further acts as a natural and eminently safe cathartic.

It absorbs the injurious gases which collect in the stomach and bowels; it disinfects the mouth and throat from the poison of catarrh.

All druggists sell charcoal in one form or another, but probably the best charcoal and the most for the money is in Stuart's Absorbent Lozenges. It is a fine powder of Willow charcoal and other harmless antiseptics in tablet form, for use in the form of large, pleasant tasting lozenges, the charcoal being mixed with honey.

The daily use of these lozenges will soon lead to a much improved condition of the general health, better complexion, sweeter breath and purer blood, and the beauty of it is, that no possible harm can result from their continued use, but on the contrary great benefit.

A Buffalo physician in speaking of the benefits of charcoal, says: "I advise Stuart's Absorbent Lozenges to all patients suffering from gas in stomach and bowels, and to clear the complexion and purify the breath, mouth and throat; I also believe the liver is greatly benefited by their use; they cost but twenty-five cents a box at drug stores, and although in some sense a patent preparation, yet I believe I get more and better charcoal in Stuart's Absorbent Lozenges than in any of the ordinary charcoal tablets."

Mgr. Ravoux Is Bishop-Elect Says Father Pax of Glencoe.

The coming jubilee anniversary of St. Peter's church at Mendota, which will be celebrated Tuesday, has recalled to Father George Pax, pastor of St. Peter and Paul's church at Glencoe, that Mgr. Augustin Ravoux, who for many years was closely affiliated with the Little Mendota parish, is a bishop-elect of the Catholic church.

Father Pax, in a letter to The Globe, tells of the appointment of Mgr. Ravoux in these words: "As the venerable prelates of the papal court, Mgr. Ravoux is most intimately connected with the foundation of the city of St. Paul. He may be a living witness of the fiftieth anniversary of the origin of the city of St. Paul, Joseph's hospital. Prelates of the papal household cease with the pope's death."

In that country, as an unconsecrated bishop could not and cannot give what he had not, viz., episcopal consecration. In ordaining or consecrating the new clergy Archbishop Parker could not hand over to others what he did not possess himself. As a new departure at that time, the charter, the diploma, the right to govern, to teach, to feed the sheep and the lambs was no longer taken from St. Peter's successor, but from the ruler of England.

—George Pax, Catholic Rector of St. Peter and St. Paul's Church, Glencoe, Minn.

and are usually renewed by his successors.

For Mgr. Ravoux this is different, for he has been a "bishop-elect" since March 3, 1883. This election on the part of the pope has never been revoked. In the Catalogus Hierarchicus, Order No. 344, in the list of bishops of the Catholic church he stands as "Augustus Ravoux, Lincolniensis, in partibus infidelium, promotus 3 Marti, 1883."

Named Bishop of Linmyra. He was therefore named bishop of Linmyra, a former episcopal see, and transferred to the apostolic prefecture of Montana, in the United States of America. He can show the bull of appointment in perfect order. He wished to have different questions settled before his consecration; correspondences were slow and "gradually" the whole matter was left in statu quo, and is there yet.

Father and Mother of Mgr. Ravoux is an unconsecrated bishop in the American hierarchy. St. Peter's parish in the metropolis is the meaning of theologians, and they have never been taken from him directly or indirectly.

It was such a "bishop-elect," or unconsecrated bishop, with the name of Barlow, who consecrated Matthew Parker for the metropolitan see of Canterbury, in England, and with him closed the line of apostolical succession the jubilee service at St. Peter's church Tuesday.

Father Ravoux's labor among the Indians began in 1841, shortly after he was ordained a priest. From then until the red man was driven westward by the approach of civilization he worked among the Indians in the Mississippi and Missouri river valleys. His greatest work, however, was with the Sioux Indians.

Mgr. M. Loras, who ordained Father Ravoux, sent him on his first mission—any expedition in September, 1841. He was commissioned to establish missions among the Sioux Indian tribe. As soon as assigned to his field of labor, Mgr. Ravoux set out for Mendota.

An Interesting Narrative.

In an interesting and instructive narrative, Mgr. Ravoux tells of his missionary work. He says: "Before leaving Prairie du Chien, in 1841, I had received much information regarding the Sioux Indians from persons who knew their character and their disposition towards the Christian religion. From the beginning I knew that I could accomplish little until I could speak their language."

"A few words regarding the winter of 1841-1842. It was a hard winter, the snow was deep, the cold intense and provisions were scarce. In the beginning of January I left for the Little Lac qui Parle to Mendota for the necessities of life. So cold was the weather that when returning from Mendota, the men lost one of their horses, and the others almost starved."

"In the spring of 1842, while at the foot of a hill near the log church at Mendota, I saw several Sioux Indians carrying their guns and running as fast as possible. 'Whither dost thou go?' I asked. 'The Chippewas are killing the Sioux,' was the reply, as they continued their wild flight."

"A little later I was told that the Chippewa warriors had come in great numbers and had killed several of the Sioux Indians who lived in Little Crow village, and that the fight was not yet over. I also learned that all the Indians of the village were in danger of being massacred, as the men were under the influence of liquor. Some messengers, however, had been sent to Black Dog village, and to other places farther up the Minnesota river, to let them know of the sad state of affairs at Kaposia. Such news electrified the Sioux and they ran immediately to the place of slaughter to repulse the common enemy or to die with their friends and relations."

Hastened to Their Aid.

"At once hastened to Kaposia to aid the poor men and women injured in the attack. Many of the poor unfortunate were unbaptized and my spiritual assistance was greatly needed. When I arrived I found that my services were needed."

In April, 1843, a mail carrier and myself left for the river, to let them know of the sad state of affairs at Kaposia. Such news electrified the Sioux and they ran immediately to the place of slaughter to repulse the common enemy or to die with their friends and relations."

started again, and after six or seven hours' navigation we arrived at Prairie du Chien.

"When I reached the church the first mass was over, and I said the high mass at the request of the Very Rev. Father Grotin, with whom I had the great pleasure of spending one day. The following morning I left for DuBuque."

FIRM ORDERS, 1,000 PIANOS.

Foster & Waldo, of Minneapolis, Make Biggest Deal of Kind Ever Known.

By the purchase in one spot cash order of 1,000 Crown pianos by Foster & Waldo, Nicollet avenue and Fifth street, another world's record has just been broken in Minneapolis. The order is for the greatest grain market, the largest flour mill, the fastest race horse and other "bigger things" in the world.

This remarkable transaction is so far in advance of others of its class that it must long stand as a world beater and monument to the enterprise and nerve of a Minneapolis business firm.

It requires a moment's thought on the part of the reader who is not a piano expert to realize what this immense order means.

Something of the enormous size of this order may be realized from the following figures: To move these pianos it requires 100 cars, with three engines to pull them.

If placed end to end they would make a line of pianos over a mile in length, and set out on top of the highest mountain over three-fourths of a mile high.

Placed as closely together as it would be possible to pack them it would cover a square floor space of more than 125 feet each way.

It is needless to go into the manifold meanings and interests which this immense transaction will arouse in the thinking mind. It enough to say that such a deal has been made, that it easily and widely breaks the world's record, that very few dealers in the United States sell 1,000 high grade pianos in a year and that very few manufacturers could supply 1,000 high grade pianos within that time.
