Senator Hawley, in discussing the bill the object of which is to protect the president, said he would give $1,000 to get a good shot at an anarchist. Here is a good chance for some enterprising Yankee to get some spending money, simply by rounding up a bunch of "reds" and driving them down Senator Hawley's way.

William Jennings Bryan is not in the habit of mincing words when speaking of Ex-President Grover Cleveland. In a recent issue of his paper he refers to the ex-president as "a traitor to his party, an ingrate and a political nonentity." The editor of the "Commoner" is more bitter against Grover than the Republicans ever were, as they had always given him credit for being a man of no mean proportions (physically) and a keen hunter of marked ability.

The death last week of Edward Green, wife of Hotty Green, supposed to be the richest woman in the United States, was the first intimation to most of us that Hotty had a husband. But Mr. Green was not an obscure nonentity. He had shown marked ability of accumulating wealth, but was displaced by his wife in the capacity of holding onto it. While a resident of Manila it is said that he made a million dollars, but lost it all. This is probably why he has since been occupying a back seat.

The Legal Date.

There seems to be an uncertainty in the minds of some of our citizens as to the legal day for holding the city election this year. The general impression is that the polls close the day as the first Tuesday in April, and Mayor Hunt has named Tuesday, April 1, as the day. Others contend the law says the Tuesday after the first Monday, which would put it a week later. From the laws of the state, we quote the following:
A general election for the elective officers of each city of the fourth class shall be held on the first Tuesday in April next after the organization of such city under the provisions of this act, and every two years thereafter."

This would make Tuesday, April 1, the correct date.

What Constitutes a Gentleman?

Most of us have always supposed that it was possible for any man to so conduct himself as to be entitled to the rank of "gentleman." But up rises Mrs. Astor, of New York's 400, with the assertion that "Gentlemen are only to be found in the ranks of the illegals." This is a stunner to many of us who have been endeavoring to act the part of gentlemen.

However, this lady's conclusions are doubtless the result of a wrong conception of the real meaning of the word "gentleman." This fact has caused a general discussion throughout the country, of what the word really stand for. Here is a very good definition of the word from the pen of Mrs. Helmut, also a New York woman:

"The man whose politeness does not spring from kindness is not a gentleman. Bowing and scraping, rising and giving up his car seat to a woman does not entitle a man to the name. These things are often matters of policy or assumption. Men sometimes do them because they look well, with no real feeling to prompt them."

In other words, the gentleman is not solely the product of the college, nor is he confined to any other particular sphere of life. He may be a wood-sawyer or a ditch digger, and yet be a gentleman of the highest type. The man whose acts of kindness spring from a warm heart, "who is incapable of wounding others deliberately, whose courtesy is extended to his servants as well as to his guest, who guards his tongue from slander and who acts decently from principle, not from fear of being found out"—may be entitled to consider himself a gentleman, whether he has a trunk full of diplomas, or whether his eyes have ever beheld a college.

So, from Mrs. Helmut's point of view the unnumbered thousands who cannot claim the distinction of being "college bred," can take heart and continue the cultivation of the homely virtues, with the assurance that the lack of college breeding will not bar any man from being a gentleman in the highest sense of the word.

Having a Run on Chamberlain's Cough Remedy.

Between the hours of 11 o'clock a. m. and closing time at night on Jan. 25th, 1902, A. F. Clark, druggist, Glade Springs, Va., sold twelve bottles of Chamberlain's cough remedy. He says: "I never handled a medicine that sold better or gave better satisfaction to my customers." This remedy has been in general use in Virginia for many years, and the people there are well acquainted with its excellent qualities. Many of them have testified to the remarkable cures which it has effected. When you need a good, reliable medicine for a cough or cold, or attack of the grip, use Chamberlain's cough remedy and you are certain to be more than pleased with the quick cure which it affords. For sale by Webb Drug & Hdw. Co.

LAYING A FOUNDATION.

Valuable Hints for Farmers Who Think of Building a Small Residence or Big Barn.

To build foundation walls, dig a trench to the frost line. Fill with loose stones. Now set up a plank on each side and hold them in place by stakes as shown in the cut. Fill in now to the top of the planks with loose stones and soft mortar—soft enough to fill all the spaces between the stones. Allow the planks to remain until the mortar has set, then move along and build on another section. When the wall is hard, lay a little soft mortar along the top and imbed the sill in it. The wall will then be air tight.—Farm Journal.

COWPEAS FOR SEED.

A Profitable Crop in the Central South Where the Demand is Steadily on the Increase.

As the great value of the cowpeas has become more generally known, its cultivation has increased until it has become a staple crop all over the southern half of the United States. Each year the demand for seed increases and the price is uniformly high. In view of these facts it will no doubt pay many farmers who have never grown any seed to do so this year.

The cowpea, like the other legumes, has the ability to furnish the nitrogen for its own growth and to turn up much in the soil beside. This enables it to make large crops on soils deficient in nitrogen. But it requires plenty of phosphoric acid and potash to grow a good crop of seed.

On some trial plots I had last summer the application of from 500 to 600 pounds of acid phosphate per acre increased the yield on an average 60% per cent over the unfertilized plots. When 100 to 200 pounds of muriate of potash was added to the phosphate, the average increase was 71 per cent, over the unfertilized plot. The greatest profit came from the use of 300 pounds of acid phosphate. The soil was a clay dolomite formation. Of course these results will not apply to all soils; but nearly all will pay a profit on the use of acid phosphate for this crop.
Peas for seed should be planted thickly in rows 18 inches or 2 feet apart, when the soil has become thoroughly warm. They should be kept clean of weeds by several shallow cultivations. A yield of 10 to 15 bushels per acre might be expected on average soil in an average season. Twenty bushels per acre is a good yield, although I have heard of 30 bushels being grown. As they are sure to bring from $1.50 to $2 per bushel in the spring, the crop is a very profitable one, especially when the seed is hard to get, as it usually is.—E. E. Miller, in Country Gentleman.

TIMBER CONSUMPTION.

It is So Enormous That Systematic Forest Culture Must Soon Be Resorted To.

In the United States 4,000,000 feet of pine lumber are used every year for matches, or the equivalent of the product of 400 acres of good virgin forest. About 620,000,000 cross ties are now laid on American railroads, and 60,000,000 new ties are required annually for renewals. The amount of timber used every year for ties alone is equivalent to 3,000,000 feet of lumber. There are now standing 7,500,000 telegraph poles. The average life of a telegraph pole is about ten years, so that nearly 750,000 new poles are required every year for renewals. These figures do not include telephone poles, and the poles required on new railway lines. The total annual consumption of timber for ties and poles is equivalent to the amount of timber grown on 100,000 acres of good virgin forest. For making shoe pegs the amount of wood used in a single year is equal to the product of fully 3,500 acres of good second-growth hardwood land. Lasts and boot trees require at least 300,000 cords more. Most newspaper and packing paper is made from wood. Although this industry has been decimated only within the last 40 years, yet the amount of wood consumed for paper during that time has been enormous. The total annual consumption of wood for paper pulp is equivalent to over 800,000,000 board feet of timber, for which it would be necessary, were the trees all growing together, to cut some 80,000 acres of prime woods.—Yale Review.

New Industry is Lively.

The beet-sugar industry is the most important feature of agricultural development now in progress in this country. It means much more than the money involved in sugar consumption, in intensive culture, fertilization, rotation, increased value of lands, and advanced wealth of national production. Mr. Nathaniel Stewart represents the investments in this industry in Michigan in three years to amount to $7,700,000. The sugar expert of the department of agriculture says that annual rentals of sugar lands are from $5 to $15 per acre, and that the output of the present campaign will exceed 150,000 tons of sugar. Some estimates are higher. It will ultimately be a source of much income and profit to growers, though they often are and have been discouraged to abandonment of culture.

A Printer Greatly Surprised.

"I never was so much surprised in my life, as I was with the results of using Chamberlain's Pain Balm," says Henry T. Crook, pressman of the Asheville (N. C.) Gazette. "I contracted a severe case of rheumatism early last winter by getting my feet wet. I tried several things for it without success. One day while looking over the Gazette, I noticed that pain balm was positively guaranteed for rheumatism, so bought a bottle of it and before using two-thirds of it my rheumatism had taken its flight and I have not had a rheumatic pain since."
