Here are some samples of the good tidings with which Billy Sunday is elevating the moral tone of Joplin: "The man who says every woman has her price is a dirty, stinking, contemptible, black hearted liar, and the fellow who makes such an assertion to me will get licked so bad they can't get him to gether on a dust pan. I have heard so many dirty, stinking, rotten things about you old geezers here in Joplin that I can hardly wait until I get my hands on you to skin you alive."

LOST—A brown fur between the M. E. church and Claud Boyer's on Grand Ave. Please leave at News office.

The open session of the high school literary society at the opera house Friday night was attended by a good crowd though perhaps not so many as heard the first session three week ago. There was the usual program of recitations, songs and orchestra music, and a debate the subject of which was: Resolved, that the great men of ancient times were greater than those of today. The ancients got the better of the argument in the opinion of the judges, who gave the affirmative the decision. Messrs. Harvey, Trimble and Covert represented the affirmative side, while the negative was taken by three girls, Misses Powell, Yates and Covert.
