Home-Cured Meats Mould in Damp Weather.

A Missouri housewife recently wrote to the College of Agriculture at Columbia making the following inquiry: "I would appreciate very much any advice you can give me on what is the best thing I can do to keep our summer hams. We kept them in salt until thoroughly salted, then hung them up to dry and smoked. Now they are molding."

"P. F. Trowbridge, of the Department of Agricultural Chemistry, in replying, said: It should be emphasized that mold does not spoil cured meats. Some persons in purchasing country-cured hams insist that the mold shall be left on as a proof that the meat is genuine country cured meat. Some recommend dipping the meat in boiling hot water to stop the molding. This is only temporary, as the mold will start to grow again if the damp weather continues."

In prolonged seasons of wet, muggy weather, cured meats are certain to mold. This molding of cured meat can be checked by hanging the meat where there is a good circulation of air. Cured meats should never be hung in a damp basement. If the smokehouse is tight enough to keep out the skipper fly so that the meat is left hanging in the smokehouse, a smudge built every week during damp weather helps keep down the mold. Sacking of meat does not stop the molding. If meats are wrapped tight to keep out the skippers the wrapping should be done first with cloth and then with paper. If paper is used first it will stick badly to the meat after it molds. We find it a very good practice to encase the meat in a paper flour sack, tying the neck of the sack very tightly around the string by which the meat hangs. The meat is then hung so that the pieces do not touch each other. Moulding is reduced to a minimum and the meat is protected from skippers."

In the Air.

The aeroplane is daily becoming a more powerful factor in war. Recent dispatches tell of serious blows inflicted by one enemy upon another by the blowing up of lines of communication, destruction of ammunition trains, food stores and gasoline supplies.

In the early phase of the great European conflict the air machines brought momentous changes in military operations through their usefulness as scouts, becoming as it were the eyes of the army.

They made it impossible for one side to hurl a large force against a weak point of the other. This brought on the frontal attack which had heretofore been tabooed by military tactics. Not only did the aeroplane take the place of the cavalry in reconnaissance, but it greatly assisted the artillery in locating the guns and vital spots in the enemy's line.

Experience has developed an air craft that is capable of becoming an instrument of attack through its power of carrying a heavy weight of explosives, which, judiciously distributed, inflict great damage.

Air navigation has reached a development that Daedalus in his wildest flights of fancy never dreamed of.

While the imagination has been centered on the daring exploits of aviators, there has been a constant improvement in the mechanism of air machines toward safety. Engines have been perfected in hard-won experience, and pilots have become proficient. Out of the war will come a vast increase in the safety of aerial flight.

Two Ways.

In Missouri, Tuesday and Wednesday of last week county officials and farmers were engaged in fixing up the roads of the State. In Illinois, last Tuesday, the State Senate, by a vote of 31 to 0, passed a bill appropriating $250,000 for work on the "Dixie Highway."

Here we have two ways of doing one and the same thing—bettering state roads. We like the idea of Gov. Major which has resulted in the annual good roads movement, but it must be remembered that two days in the year are not enough for the proper maintenance of good roads. Unless Missouri does something more than set aside two days each year for this purpose, other neighboring states will step ahead of us and leave us in the lurch in the matter of roads. We favor a general workday for road purposes, but we would not object to a little fund for proper road construction. We will have to get to it sooner or later.

Annual Outing.

The O. C. C. club, composed of a bunch of very dear young misses, namely: Pauline Raley, Blanche and Marie Hodgins, Grace McDonald, Mildred Tochtermann, Esther Kelley, and E. Hel Greene, have been enjoying their annual outing in the Headley timber, near this city, during the week. They are nicely fixed, having the necessary camping outfit, sleeping and cooking tents, and they are having a most delightful time.

They do their own cooking, working in pairs, and between the meals they devote a part of the time in "nature study," tanning, a d. crocheting, reading and singing. Miss Iryd Peret, of our public school corps, is their chaperon. Miss Lou Petree, who will be a member of our High school staff the coming school year was their guest, the latter end of the week.

For 13 Times.

The many friends and former school-mates of Mrs. Myrtle Steinel will be glad to learn that she is now able to be returned to her home where she is convalescing after confinement in a hospital for some four weeks, whereas she underwent her 13th operation. Mrs. Steinel congratulates herself that the surgeons in charge of years of suffering have generously left her with a pair of arms and lower limbs. Mrs. Steinel was formerly Myrtle Greene, of this city, and attended the old school here. Her mother, Mrs. A. W. Mohler, of Fort Worth, Texas, is with her. Archie Steinel, is now a grown-up and most promising young man, and has much journalistic talent. Mr. Steinel is a member of the Reimer-Woodbury Hat company, of Kansas City. The family is nicely situated in a cozy bungalow at No. 3734 Montgall street, Kansas City.

His Final Summons.

Arthur Clyde Baker, the youngest son of Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Baker, of this city, died in St. Joseph, Wednesday, June 16, after an illness of several months. He was of industrious habits, and a painter by trade, and for several months he suffered greatly from a complication of diseases, and finally became non compos mentis, and was taken to the St. Joseph asylum, where he lingered, and finally answered the summons that called him hence. He was born in Savannah, September 8, 1883, and was therefore in his 33d year at the time of his death. He is survived by his aged parents, and three brothers—George, Harry and Lewis.

The body was brought to this city, Thursday, the 17th, and taken to the M. E. church, where funeral services were held, conducted by the pastor, Rev. J. W. Anderson, the interment being in the Maple Grove cemetery.

(Delayed Letter.)

—Miss Minnie Stout left Monday morning for her work in St. Joseph.

—Maude Norris was in Oregon, Saturday, doing some 4th of July shopping.

—Ed. Foster and daughter, Fern, were seen in Forbes, Friday evening of last week.

—Miss Gertie Stadler has been very sick, but now is improving, we are more than glad to state.

—The Children's Day was well attended at Richville. Crowds from everywhere were there, and a nice program was rendered.

—Misses Emma and Mollie Stadler, Stella and Frank Brohan attended a party in Andrew county, June 8. A large crowd and a good time was had.

—Another surprise party was given at John Schank's, last Monday week, June 7. It certainly was a surprise to all, although a large number of friends were there to enjoy the evening.

—Sunday evening, while driving around, Misses Minnie and Goldie Stout, Frank Sommer and Patrick Brohan stopped at Ed. Foster's to visit Miss Maude and friends. The evening was spent pleasantly.

—A party was given at Ed. Foster's, Saturday night, June 5, in honor of Miss Maude and Herman Schank. A large crowd was there and an enjoyable time had. Those present were: Misses Maude and Ina Mahon, Gertie, Emma, Mollie and Carrie Stadler, Goldie Stout, Grace and Effie Kneale, Anna and Nelle Sommer, Grace and Maude Wilson, Elnora and Katherine Norris, Stella Heckman, Alice and Stella Brohan; Messrs. Sherman Brett, Joe Lentz, Henry Heckman, Frank and Walter Sommer, Floyd Grimes, Verne Dreher, Albert Bender, Earl Murry, Pat and Frank Brohan, Ernest Womack. When we want another good time we will call and see Miss Maude for another party. After a late hour all left except Jim Foster and son, Max, who stayed and visited over Sunday.
