BASE BALL SUNDAY

Mast occurred the first game of the season at Walden. The only ground big enough clear of snow was Sam Brownlee Corner lot, so the big Kentuckian was selected to umpire, being the largest man in the crowd, and he laid out the Diamond.

The original casus belli was a fuss between the Dirty Shirts and the Khaki Dudes; and the result justified expectation of a certain reasonable amount of the amber where it ornament your anterior elevation to the best advantage, by a score of 34 to 10; there being present 34 of the Soiled Toilet to 10 of the Clay bank Yellow Immaculates. Incidentally some first class material was discovered in rather surprising sources for the great team North Park is going to produce this summer against the Wyoming, Northern Colorado, and Western leagues. Two good solid heads and one patent double action reversible never-tire jaw appearing prominently among even the excellent class of material preparing to win the western championship for North Park.

MAY HAVE RIGHT MAN

POLICE OFFICER OF BAKER CITY SENDS PHOTOGRAPH OF SUSPECT IN PRISON THERE.

Pictures bear close resemblance to pictures of Summers, wanted here for killing Sheriff Bath last May—Asked to send better pictures and fuller descriptions.

County Attorney Downey and Sheriff Bower were yesterday handed a letter from J. F. Anderson, a police officer of Baker City, Ore., who writes that he has a man under arrest there whom he believes closely resembles Summers, wanted here for the murder of Sheriff Bath May 29, 1908, and whom he is holding on a charge of vagrancy, for twenty days that his case may be investigated. Mr. Anderson enclosed a couple of photographs of the suspect, taken after his arrest there, and which lead men here who knew Summers to find many points of resemblance between the Baker City pictures and the pictures of Summers in possession of the officials.

Same Scars and Peculiarities

Mr. Anderson writes that his man has the same scars as those that Summers had and which are included in the printed description of him mailed broadcast. There is the same twitching of the muscles of the face, the same missing upper teeth, the mole on the shoulder and the peculiarity of the ears, one of them lying flat to the head and the other standing out. He says his man is very nervous, giving him the impressions of a hunted man, and that there are other things to indicate that he knows more than he has told about himself.

Asks for Better Pictures.

Mr. Downey, who has taken hold of the matter directly, has asked Mr. Anderson to have better photographs of the man made and forwarded to Laramie, with a fuller description, and if these bear out the belief that he has Summers, the sheriff will send a man to Baker City to investigate. Some who knew Summers here assert that the man at Baker City is he, others holding to a different view.

Can Identify Summers.

J. E. Winslow told the officers yesterday that one man, Herman Winters, at whose house Summers stopped the afternoon that sheriff Bath was killed, could positively identify the man if he be Summers. Winters furnished Summers with a meal and also a lunch tied up in a piece of cloth. This lunch, still unopened, was found beside the body of Bath in the road above Woods Landing, and is expected to form the strongest link in the chain of evidence against Summers if he is ever taken. Frank Loucks of Walden could also positively identify Summers. Both men will be communicated with.

For Memorial to L'Enfant.

After having reposed for almost a century in an obscure burial place of the outskirts of Washington, the government shortly will pay tardy recognition to the memory of Maj. Pierre Charles L'Enfant, French engineer and captain and brevet major in the revolutionary army, who had an important part under the direction of Gen. George Washington in designing the original plan of the city of Washington. Arrangements are now being made for the removal of L'Enfant's body to Arlington, where a suitable memorial to him will be erected.

GAVE BIRTH TO MICE IN TRAP.

Male Parent's Devotion Rewarded by Freedom of Brood.

A Manayunk woman, going to her mouse trap the other morning, found a mouse in it, with six little mice as well.

They had, of course, been born after their mother's capture—an amazing thing. But more amazing still was the fact that they lay in a small round nest like a bird's, a nest made of bits of paper, thread, straw and shreds of linen and flannel.

The woman, instead of drowning forthwith the mother and her brood, retired, and from the next room watched the trap secretly. Her watch soon was rewarded. Another mouse trotted up with great caution, thrust a straw through the bars, and a few moments later returned with a shred of pink calico. The captive mother, with these contributions, proceeded to complete her nest.

This incident so moved the woman that on retiring that night she put a handsome piece of cheese in the trap and opened the tiny door. When she came down in the morning mother and young and cheese were gone—the nest alone remained to witness to the truth of her tale.

Blucher's Lost Opportunity.

M. Arthur Chuquet tells, in L'Opinion, a story of Napoleon and Blucher. The emperor received the general at the Castle of Finkenstein while he was preparing for the siege of Danzig. He drew him to a window in an upper story and paid him compliments on his military gifts, and Blucher, going away delighted, described the interview to his aide-de-camp. "What a chance you missed!" exclaimed the latter. "You might have changed the whole course of history." "How?" "Why, you might have thrown him out of the window!" "Confound it!" replied Blucher. "So I might! If only I had thought of it."

Crusty Old Gentleman.

"Some people are so queer," said the young mother with a pout. "Now, I think there is nothing that should be more appreciated than a generous child." "What are you referring to, my dear?" asked her neighbor. "Why, the baby. I had him in the car the other day and right in front sat a crusty old gentleman with side whiskers. Four times the baby offered him a stick of candy and each time he only frowned. When the soft candy got stuck in his side whiskers he became very fiery and told the conductor. Wasn't he rude?"

A Remarkable Race.

The Lapps are very fond of stimulating drinks; they think nothing of drinking fifteen or twenty cups of coffee a day, while their consumption of punch is on a vast scale. It is no uncommon thing to see numbers of helplessly-drunk natives in the streets of Tromso, especially when the sale of reindeer flesh has been profitable. Yet robbery and, indeed, crime in general are practically unknown among them; the innate honesty of the people is quite extraordinary.—Wide Awake Magazine.

Football in Olden Times.

What would be thought to-day of a game of football in which 500 or 600 players were engaged on each side, and how would we like to be in the thick of it when teams of this number were rushing after the ball? When we remember also that few rules governed the play, and that, moreover, a proportion of the players were horsemen, the events that marked the progress of the game must have been of sufficiently stirring a character to satisfy the most greedy seeker after excitement.

His Opinion of It.

"Did I understand you to say," asked Miss Woodby, "that you don't go in for society—at all?" "Quite so," replied Crabbe. "Society is simply a silly school in which every nobody is taught to try to be somebody."—Catholic Standard and Times.

The Appreciation of Music.

If we would appreciate music aright, we must remember that its beauty depends, not upon the composer alone, but upon ourselves also. Deep calls upon deep; and the harmony of sound, though appealing primarily to the outward ear, must be answered by a harmony from within ourselves. The more culture we bring to the hearing of music, the wider our sympathy, the more exquisite will be the echoes which it awakens in the soul. If we would understand the composer's message, we must co-operate with him. We must reach out to him with all our faculties. If we do that, the revelation of music will ceaselessly renew its beauty, ever turning unimagined aspects to gladden us.—Redfern Mason. In Atlantic.

EXPOSITION AT DENVER

Extensive and elaborate preparations have been under way since last fall, for holding the second annual Colorado Inter-State Fair and Exposition, which will take place on the permanent grounds of this institution at Overland Park, Denver, the coming September 12 to 18, inclusive. Mr. G. C. Fuller, the secretary of the Exposition, advises there will be liberal prizes offered for exhibits of the product of every industry, for the purpose of encouraging their growth, development and improvement, and that the fair of this year promises to equal if not eclipse the most successful of similar exhibitions held throughout the middle and eastern states. The premium list will be ready for distribution the latter part of May, and copies of the same may be had by addressing Mr. Fuller at Denver.

Exhibitions of this character, when ever held, reach and benefit every avenue of industrial life, and are institutions to be fostered and encouraged. That they are accomplishing a great deal of good in an educational way, as well as interesting investors in Colorado propositions, and attracting immigration to the State, will be appreciated by a visit to any of them; a registry kept at one of the exhibits at the Denver fair last year showing visitors from every state in the union, except six, and from nearly every foreign country.
