

JERSEY WOMEN'S CLUBS TO OPEN MEET TOMORROW

"Organization" Will Be Keynote at Annual Session of Federation.

"Organization" will be the keynote at the semi-annual meeting tomorrow of the New Jersey State Federation of Women's Clubs, to be held in Haddonfield, where the club women are to be entertained through the hospitality of the Haddon Fortnightly Club. Officers of the State body, delegates and guests, will depart on early morning trains tomorrow, arriving just in time for the opening session at 11 o'clock in the First Presbyterian Church, of Haddonfield.

Many of the club women will leave late this afternoon in preference to making such an early start. Mrs. Howard Crosby Warren, of Princeton, who was elected at the annual meeting last spring in Asbury Park, will formally assume office and preside for first time. Mrs. Warren has not planned a formal address, but will speak instead on "The Use of the Federation Year Book." The newly created district vice-presidents, of which there are ten, are expected to give three-minute talks on the general theme, "Organization," preceded by a brief address by Mrs. William T. Ropes, of Montclair, vice-president-at-large, who will confine her remarks to the endowment fund of the federation, which was put on a substantial basis last year.

Calvin N. Kendall, State superintendent of education, will make an address on "The Value of the Public School." Miss Elizabeth B. Vermilye, of Montclair, will speak on the employers' liability law, and Mrs. John Gill Willets, of Haddonfield, will be among the speakers. An executive meeting of the board of directors of the State Federation will be held tonight, and it is hoped to adjourn the closing session tomorrow afternoon early enough to permit the clubwomen to be the guests of the Haddon Fortnightly Club at an informal tea to be held in the attractive club-house, the Indian King Tavern, on the King's Highway. Mrs. Ephraim Tomlinson Gill, president of the entertaining club, will extend a welcome to the visiting clubwomen. Opportunity and arrangements have been made to visit historic spots in Haddonfield, among them the garden where yew trees were planted by Elizabeth Haddon, Longfellow's heroine in his poem "Elizabeth." The club-house is reputed to be the only historic building owned by the State, and was used as the meeting place for the State Legislature in 1777, and where the great seal was officially accepted when the word "State" was adopted instead of the word "colony."

BIG EXPOSITIONS ARE PLANNED TO BOOST NEWARK

ished in that time, will be in course of construction. Newark will be on the threshold of a new era. The City Industrial will be a seaport, with many miles of deep-water docks.

In the exhibition of 1916 the New Jersey Historical Society will necessarily play an important part, emphasizing the progress Newark has made in its two centuries and a half.

A committee of five has already been appointed to arrange for suitable exercises and to cooperate in whatever other celebration the city may inaugurate.

One of the most interesting features of the proposed exhibition is expected to be a historical pageant, showing in a number of elaborate floats the historic progress of Newark industrial and civic life.

The exhibition, so opportune and appropriate for a city so preeminently industrial as Newark, will be a means of advertising of almost incalculable value. Not only will factory sites be sold in record-breaking numbers, but the wares of every established industry will be widely advertised throughout the country.

Some time ago the City Planning Commission endorsed the following:

"It has been suggested that the commission lay out as soon as possible certain specific plans which may be brought to conclusion at the 250th anniversary of the city's settlement, in 1916. The suggestion is a very fortunate one. Newark might wisely show by the completion, five years from now, of some public improvement of commanding importance, that after two and a half centuries of life it is still a city of progress."

"The proposition will appeal to all citizens and to carry it out will be to justify for all time the city plan idea."

MONTCLAIR BIRD SHOOTER'S APPEAL IS ARGUED TODAY.

The hearing of the appeal of Peter Stevens, an employee of the town of Montclair, is in progress before Judge Thomas A. Davis in Common Pleas Court.

Stevens is the man who was placed under arrest on August 17 on a charge of killing five starlings by firing a shotgun into a tree on The Crescent, Montclair.

Stevens was dismissed on a suspended sentence by Recorder H. L. Yost, of Montclair, but later was placed on trial before Justice of the Peace Cadmus on complaint of Fred B. Hall, a deputy game warden. Cadmus fined Stevens $100.

It is to set aside this fine that an appeal was taken from Stevens by William H. Boyd, town counsel of Montclair.

Judge Davis will render a decision later.

DIES AFTER NIGHT IN POLICE ROOM

ective Sergeants Tuttle and Fagan have been made ill by sleeping in it.

Titus was arrested at his home at 9 o'clock last night by Detective Sergeant Meehan, on a warrant sworn out by Michael L. Welsh, of 118 Market street, who alleged that Titus had embezzled $438 since July 7.

"I won't come with you!" Titus said. Meehan told him that he would have to, but the detective sergeant, accompanied by his prisoner, made a long search for a judge who could accept bail.

Failing in this, Meehan took him to headquarters at 1 o'clock and gave him one of the three witness-rooms.

Titus has a wife and two children, a daughter 16 years old and a son 14.

Employed as Flour Salesman.

Titus was a salesman for the flour and feed concern of F. W. Stock & Sons, of Hillsdale, Mich. He worked under the supervision of Michael L. Welsh, the local representative of the concern, and his alleged embezzlements were discovered by means of an elaborate checking employed by Mr. Welsh in conducting the business.

Titus worked for Welsh from March until August 18, when he was discharged and the bonding company notified that his accounts were short by about $500. Titus, it is alleged, collected the payments of his customers, withheld their cash, and when their bills came from the Newark office he told them it was a bookkeeper's error, which he would correct. He made no denial, it is said, when Mr. Welsh confronted him with the charge of embezzling the funds.

The Empire State Surety Company had bonded Titus for $1,000, and both the flour company and its customers are amply protected. It is believed.

The account of D. Cirincione, of 221 Eighth avenue, for $103, was the only local account collected by Titus. The others were in Brooklyn, Atlantic City and other points of the State.

Titus is survived by a widow and two children, Earl, his 17-year-old son, now taking an art course in a New York university; Roxana, the girl, is a student at the High School.

By his friends and neighbors Titus was esteemed as a very quiet and respectable family man. He was a flour salesman. He is said to have admitted that there was a deficiency in his accounts, but that this only amounted to a little over $100, and that he had given ten lots owned by him in Maryland to the American Surety Company, who provided his bond, to cover the loss.

He was arrested May 3 for embezzlement on the complaint of Cornelius Smith. From May 3 to June 21 his case was before the courts, when Judge Hahn paroled him for the grand jury.

Mrs. Titus, who is on the verge of prostration at her husband's death, has telephoned to his brother, Clarence Titus, of Roselle, to come to Newark.

NEGRO PORTER PLEADS GUILTY TO SUIT THEFTS.

Pleas of guilty were entered by three prisoners in Special Sessions Court today before Judge Thomas A. Davis. Royal Jones, a negro, admitted stealing five suits of clothes and two overcoats from the National Clothing Company, 227 Springfield avenue, where he was employed as a porter. William Hunter, who, when arrested on October 17, had a razor in his possession, and Mary Boyer, a 19-year-old girl, who on October 15, stole clothing to the value of $17 from her roommate, Catherine Pistna, 77 Clay street, were the others pleaders. The trio were remanded to jail for sentence Monday.
