Now we are out with one of the best Umbrella Sales for Saturday we can ever remember of. One dollar would come nearer to representing the real value of these than 69c. The covers are made of a good English twilled, mercerized cloth, with tape edge on a 26 inch paragon frame. The assortment of handles is very large, including imported horns, dresdens, stag horns, natural sticks, ivory and others. Each Umbrella comes in a case and has cord tassel on the handle.

The attention of the farmers of Barre and neighboring towns is called to the advertisement this week of A. W. Allen. A thoroughly appreciative audience of 600 people greeted Russell H. Conwell, the noted lecturer, at the opera house last evening, and heard his celebrated lecture on "The Silver Crown; or How Men Succeed." Mr. Conwell needed no introduction to the audience, as he has been heard here several times and is always given a large reception. For two hours he held his audience in raptures over his wonderful oratory. He created interest at once in his subject and throughout his discourse he interspersed wit and humor that amused as well as instructed his hearers. The lecture was given under the auspices of the Barre class of the Baptist church and was very successful in every way.
