"Remember the Maine!"

Huerta could get a job as "come on" for a sideshow fake any time he drops his present occupation of baiting the United States.

A Mr. Noone has become a candidate for governor of New Hampshire, making an excellent chance for his enemies to syllabize his name.

The disposition not to rush pell-mell into warfare is commendable. We ought to go into it with both eyes open and plans well laid.

Coxey's "army" has followed the naval precedent and cut out the liquor—that is, cut it out officially and as far as the public knows.

That $1.58 per capita debt of Vermont does not seem large until it is taken in the aggregate and then compared with the wealth of the state.

Massachusetts people paraded themselves on Patriots' day yesterday, but there is reason to believe the people of other states are every bit as patriotic although they don't parade it.

Judging by the space given the conjectures and the persistency with which that space is given, New Yorkers rank the possibility of deferring the Vincent Astor wedding next in importance to the Mexican embroglio.

In the present hour of trouble of the United States, the British people are returning with interest some of the condolences extended to Great Britain during the Ulster "revolution." The condolences are accepted of necessity.

President Wilson ought to be told that Mexicans don't understand the niceties of the English language; they know it's a spade when they're told it's a spade. Otherwise, they think it's a mouth-organ or some other wind instrument.

Three of the eight men who rocked the boat on Lake Quinsigamond last Sunday thus introduced themselves to the Stygian boatman ahead of their natural time. Rocking the boat is one of the best methods of getting an introduction to the grim fellow.

The woolen mill at North Montpelier has passed through visitations by both fire and water. Now it ought to be free from further danger from the elements and able to go ahead and fulfill the promises which caused it to be established and then re-established.

It is literally true that President Wilson is not losing any sleep over the present trouble. Bryan and the other secretaries may sit up more than half the night but he (Wilson) goes to bed. Remarkable temperament that, which will permit a man to slumber through the tense moments of the present controversy. Nothing but a clear conscience could permit a man to do that.

Interest centers in speculation whether Villa would join his forces with Huerta in the event of hostilities by the United States in the already much troubled country, or whether he would hang to the flank of the provisional president's army, harassing it all the time the United States forces were in front. It is a two to one guess that actual invasion of Mexico by the United States would find the two belligerents united in front against the invader.

fortunate that the rivers and brooks of Vermont were not clogged with ice at the outset, for with great cakes of ice borne down on the bosom of the flood there would have been grave consequences. The high water would have sent the ice and debris crashing against bridges and dams in such force as to menace those structures severely; and, most likely, towns and villages would have been called upon to meet extraordinary expense to replace structures washed out. There was a huge quantity of snow in the mountain and hill regions which form the watersheds for the various streams, but luckily the snow did not become transformed into water until after the streams had been divested of their winter covering of ice, so that there was no hindrance as the flood swept down the valleys in the mad rush to the larger rivers. Nature is doing the job of snow removal in a most satisfactory and expeditious manner this spring, and with a minimum of loss. The cities and villages have found themselves thus far remarkably free from devastation from flood as the highways have not been subjected to the usual gouging and gullying of the rushing water, due to the fact that the removal of the snow has been more gradual than usual. Indeed, one could not have asked for a better handling of the spring snow problem than nature has provided during the weeks of the breaking up of a remarkably severe winter. That problem is not yet entirely past, inasmuch as there still is a great quantity of snow in the woods and hills, but the situation has become simplified to a large extent, giving rise to the expectation that the spring of 1914 will be passed without serious loss.

 The concert at the Congregational church Wednesday evening will commence at 7:30 o'clock.

A son was born Saturday to Mr. and Mrs. Richard Allen of 35 Park street. The child has been named Sherwood Lynn Allen.

Smith & Dasher, real estate agents, have sold for Mrs. E. M. Tynor her two tenement house and large lot of land known as 61 Warren street, this city. The purchaser is George Ciadalli, who will move to the place soon and will occupy one tenement and rent the other.

A number of the younger members of Ruth chapter, O. E. S., gave an enjoyable dancing party in the Masonic parlors last evening. Thirty-five couples were present and excellent music for the dancers was furnished by Miss Walker and Albert E. Scott. The party grew out of a supper given by St. Aldegar commandery last January when a deputation of young women from the Eastern Star order had charge of the table service. A buffet luncheon of punch and wafers, coffee and sandwiches, brought the affair to a close.
 Early this evening the Barre Board of Trade will meet in the Vincit club rooms for its annual business meeting. There will be an election of officers and other important business will be considered. Immediately after the business session there will be an entertainment and program of speech-making, to which members of the club as well as Board of Trade members have been invited. The principal speaker is President John M. Thomas of Middlebury college, who will reply to the critical report of the Carnegie Foundation on Vermont's educational system. It is expected that President Thomas will speak on the report and its relation to higher education in the state. During the evening a representative of the city council and members of semi-civic organizations will be called upon for five-minute talks. Music will be furnished by the Orpheus quartet and a buffet luncheon will bring the affair to a close.

MONTPELIER.

Roads About City Somewhat Damaged by the High Water.

About ten feet of state road on the Worcester branch was washed out yesterday and the school barge from Wrightsville was unable to make the trip. A temporary bridge will be put in. In Montpelier little damage was done by the high water although for a time there was a prospect that trouble might result from the going out of the dams at North Montpelier and many people gathered on the bridge to watch the result. The Winoski, however, did not rise perceptibly and although there was from one to three feet of water in cellars along the river bank, the merchants removed their goods to higher levels and met with no loss. Teachers were notified in the afternoon that there was danger of the streets becoming flooded and ordered to dismiss schools for the day, but most of the youngsters, instead of going to their homes, joined the crowd on the bridges to watch the excitement, which failed to materialize. Meadows bordering the roads leading to this city are mostly covered with water, which stood several feet deep over the Middlesex road yesterday, making passage almost impossible.

The funeral of John Herbert, who died Sunday in Middlesex, was held from St. Augustine's church this morning at 9 o'clock.

At a special meeting of the city council last evening, the members voted to accept the resignation of Alderman Martin E. McKenna as the member from ward two. The council will later appoint his successor and it is possible that, in case he should fail to secure a license to sell liquor, which is the reason he has resigned from the board, he might be re-appointed to the aldermanic position.

Joseph Chiquette, who was arrested Sunday on a charge of intoxication, pleaded not guilty in city court yesterday to a charge of third offense, but was found guilty and fined $15 and costs of $7.34, making a total of $22.34. He appealed to county court and bail was fixed at $100, which he furnished.

The Montpelier senior ball team announced its schedule for the season as follows: April 25, Randolph high at Montpelier; May 1, Spaulding high at Barre; May 6, Northfield high at Northfield; May 14, Middlebury high at Montpelier; May 16, Middlebury high at Montpelier; May 19, Middlebury high at Burlington; May 20, Burlington high at Burlington; May 26, Spaulding at Montpelier; May 30, Montpelier high at Inverity park; June 1, Randolph high at Randolph; June 6, Burlington high at Montpelier.

The teachers' retirement fund is to take a big boost in this city April 30 if the plans formulated are carried out. A food sale has been arranged, the largest ever held in this city, it being planned to serve 1,500 people during the afternoon and evening. A short play is to be given in the afternoon, under the direction of Mrs. Kate Terrill, the Woman's club is to conduct a Japanese tea room, the proceeds to be turned into the retirement fund, and in the evening a humorous play will be given, followed by folk dancing. There are also to be booths with a good display of novelties, food, popcorn and other articles, which will represent a county fair.

Charles M. Trombly of this city and Miss Honora G. McCarthy, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Daniel McCarthy, of Northfield, were married yesterday at St. John's church in Northfield by Rev. Fr. J. B. McGarry. After the ceremony a wedding breakfast was served at the home of the bride's parents. After a two weeks' honeymoon, Mr. and Mrs. Trombly will reside in Barre, where the groom is employed as a polisher in a granite shed.

"The Club Women on Social Betterment" will be the subject of a lecture by Miss Caroline Crawford of New York, formerly dean of women at Middlebury college, before the Barre Woman's club in Howland hall this evening (Tuesday) at 8 o'clock. The club extends a cordial invitation to all teachers of the city schools to attend this lecture. The date announced in Monday's Times was incorrect.

At the funeral services of Mrs. Alexio De Battista, which were held at 20 George street Monday afternoon, the following young men from Barre Town acted as bearers: Mario Gemmi, Antonio Gronco, Giovanni, Coluccio, Domenico Catti, R. Compagna and Giovanni Gronco. There was a large offering of flowers and many attended from the deceased's home in East Barre. Burial was in the Catholic cemetery on Beckley street.

The cautious critic, whose anonymous letter takes The Times to task for ending with a preposition a certain sentence in the day's news, is reminded that this newspaper, any newspaper, or any individual has ample precedent in so completing a sentence. For authority the purist is referred to the works of Pollock, Coleridge, Dr. Johnson, Thaddeus Stevens, and Horace Greeley, and a very considerable following of contemporary grammarians. These precedents are cited solely for the purpose of justifying the prepositional ending wherever it may be used in other places. In connection with The Times item, it may be mentioned in passing that a preposition was not used in the sentence ending.
