A Resolution in the Senate Yesterday—The Blair Educational Bill is Discussed—No Important Business in the House.

WASHINGTON, February 5.—SENATE.—Mr. McMillan offered a resolution directing the sergeant at arms to procure, for the use of the committee on education, some suitable room or rooms in the vicinity of the capitol, at a rent not exceeding $100 per month, the lease to terminate with the present session. This resolution provoked a long discussion in the course of which it appeared that there are thirteen senate committees which have no place of meeting, and that there is not a single room in the senate wing of the capitol that is vacant. The rooms in the terrace outside the capitol on the west front are available because they have no windows except those opening on the area, and they do not get the direct light of the sun. Finally the resolution was referred to the committee on rules and administration, and the senate adjourned.

Mr. Adams, of Pennsylvania, offered an amendment to the Blair educational bill, but the amendment was finally incorporated by a vote of 76 to 24. The full code as it emerges from the caucus differs from the old rules in the following material points:

Under rule 11, the committee on invalid pensions is given the right to report at any time, as already stated under rule 13.

Three calendars are provided for, first, on committee of the whole to which shall be referred public bills; 2nd, house calendar for all bills of public character, not raising the revenue nor directly or indirectly appropriating money or property; 3rd, calendar of the committee of the whole for bills of private character.

Under rule 15, a new clause is added as follows:

On demand of any member, the names of the members present, but not voting on any call by the speaker of either house shall be noted by the clerk, under the supervision of the speaker, and shall be recorded in the journal and read immediately, to the names of those voting affirmatively and negative, under the lead "yeas and nays," and shall be followed by the names of the absent members, which shall be entered under the head of "absentees." This is in line with Speaker Reed's rule.

Under rule 16, clause 4 reads: "When a question is under debate no motion will be received but to adjourn, to lay on the table for previous question, (which motions shall be decided without debate), to postpone to a day certain, to refer to a committee, or to postpone indefinitely, which several motions shall have precedence in the foregoing order, and no motion to postpone to a day certain, to read or postpone indefinitely being decided shall be again allowed on the same day at the same stage of the proceeding."

The caucus is aimed at filibustering, and changes the old section by striking out of the motions which may be received those to fix a day to which the house shall adjourn and to take a recess. So, too, in section 5 of the same rule, to amend, or postpone indefinitely, which motions shall be in order is stricken out, but section 10 of the same rule carries the principle still further, for the new section reads: "No dilatory motions shall be entertained by the speaker."

The caucus remained in session until 7 o'clock, and the most inviolable secrecy in regard to the proceedings was preserved and every effort was made to prevent the action of the caucus becoming public. While it was stated that on every question presented at the caucus the unanimous length of the session and the known opposition of several prominent republicans to any radical change in the rules render the accuracy of this statement doubtful. In fact it has been gathered that far from being held in secret, the caucus was strongly worked up by the expression of totally divergent opinions, and that this proposition is a more probable one evidenced by the great care which was taken to prevent the facts being known.

HER USUAL PLACE.

The Self-Possession of an Experienced Bride at the Altar.

President Hyde, of Bowdoin College, tells a good story of the first marriage ceremony at which he officiated while occupying a pulpit in Jersey City. It seems that the bride, far from being an exting couple was rather timid and nervous, one of those men whose diffidence is in danger of leading them into some awkward blunder. The bride, on the contrary, was remarkably cool and self-possessed. As the couple presented themselves before the altar, the minister, in a friendly way, inquired of the bride whether she was ready to be united to the groom. "I am sure this is the side on which I have always been accustomed to stand," This solved the difficulty, and the timid groom and the young widow, who knew all about it from experience, were specially united.

The Fair Bill Lost.

ALBANY, February 5.—In the senate assembly the World's Fair bill was put upon its final passage as amended but only received 13 affirmative votes to 5 negative. The call for the yeas and nays ordered before the announcement of the vote in order to get the 17 necessary votes to pass the bill. The call failed to secure the needed votes and the bill was declared lost and a motion to reconsider was tabled.

West Virginia Contest Decided.

CHARLESTON, W. Va., February 4.—The Gull-Flaming contest was decided at noon today in favor of Fleming, the vote standing 43 for Gull and 43 for Fleming. Carr, the union-laborer, voted with the democrats. The republicans accept the situation gracefully.

Samson Treaty Ratified.

WASHINGTON, February 4.—The senate today ratified the Samson treaty with but twelve dissenting votes.

A maiden in New York suing for a breach of promise was awarded six cents as the amount of damage to her wounded affections.

THE NEW HOUSE RULES.

The Republicans Held a Caucus Yesterday to Consider Them.

WASHINGTON, February 5.—The purpose of the republican caucus this afternoon was to consider the new code of rules which was completed by the committee on rules this morning. The caucus was called together immediately after the adjournment, by Mr. Henderson, of Illinois, as chairman. The reason for the call was stated, and each member present was furnished in conference with a copy of the new code.

Mr. McKinley then took the floor and proceeded to explain in detail the scope and purpose of each of the rules. The reading consumed a great deal of time. The code was read in full and as each rule was read its provisions were explained by Mr. McKinley or Mr. Cannon. There were frequent inquiries for more detailed information as to the effect of changes and for the reasons therefor and the work the caucus progressed slowly. Generally the report of the committee was adopted without material amendment, but there was at least one important addition.

Mr. Adams, of Pennsylvania, offered an amendment to the Blair educational bill, but the amendment was finally incorporated by a vote of 76 to 24. The full code as it emerges from the caucus differs from the old rules in the following material points:

Under rule 11, the committee on invalid pensions is given the right to report at any time, as already stated under rule 13.

AN IMPRESSIVE FUNERAL.

THE VICTIMS OF THE WASHINGTON FIRE BURIED.

Secretary Tracy is Able to Attend—The Funeral is Held From the Executive Mansion—A Description of the Rites.

WASHINGTON, February 5.—The beautiful historic room of the Executive Mansion, the scene of so many varied spectacles of brilliant ceremony or social gaiety, was today devoted to the sadly contrasted and solemnly impressive purpose of a funeral.

Very seldom has any similar scene been witnessed in the Executive Mansion, and never, since 1865, when the remains of the lamented Lincoln reposed amid the same surroundings.

The services over the remains of the wife and daughter of the secretary of the navy were appointed for 11 o'clock, but long before that hour the East Room was crowded with people desirous of paying the last tribute to their departed friend. It was a most distinguished gathering, and included nearly everybody of prominence in Washington. Arrangements had been made for seating the hundred and fifty persons, but over five hundred managed to gain entrance. All the doorways leading to the East Room were also thronged with people, and it is estimated that there were nearly one thousand persons in the house, as far as possible admission was confined to personal and official friends of Secretary Tracy and his family, and consequently very few strangers were present. A great crowd gathered outside, however, and watched the carriages as they drove into the grounds. It was found necessary to station policemen at the gates to keep out the crowd.

The caskets containing the dead were placed side by side under the central chandelier, directly opposite the main corridor. They were distinguishable only by the greater size of the one containing the body of Mrs. Tracy.

A large Sago palm with graceful spreading branches was placed between them at the foot, and a number of draperies of the caskets were also entirely concealed by beautiful designs of emblematic flowers, white roses, carnations, hyacinths, lilies of the valley, etc. Garlands and wreaths were also banked against the sides of each casket. These floral tributes were sent by Secretary and Mrs. Blaine, the German Minister, Senator Stanford, Senator Hale, Vice-President and Mrs. Morton, Secretary and Mrs. Wincom, Mr. Jas. C. Bergen, Mr. John R. McCue, Admiral Porter, Mrs. John Lee Carroll, Mr. H. C. White, the British minister, Representative Hill, Judge Bancroft Davis, Paymaster-General Fulton U. S. N., and Representative Lodge. One particularly beautiful wreath was placed on Mrs. Tracy's casket by her young friends Misses Proctor, Miller, Knammaker and Rusk and Misses Wincom.

Seats were arranged on three sides of a square, the open space being used for the entrance of the mourners and presidential party who were assigned seats fronting the caskets. Vice-President and Mrs. Morton, who were among the earliest arrivals, were seated opposite. Near by were seated the British minister and family, the German minister, the Chinese and Korean legations, the Brazilian minister, and many other members of the diplomatic corps. Army and naval officers were present in great numbers, and nearly all were in full uniform.

Shortly before 11 o'clock the Schubert quartette stationed just within the entrance to the East room from the main corridor, sang the hymn—"I cannot always trace the way."

The members of the cabinet, with the exception of Secretary Blaine, acting as pall bearers, soon after entered and took seats at the right of the caskets. They were soon followed by the funeral procession, Secretary Tracy and his son, Frank, walking arm and arm at its head. They were followed by General J. S. Canby, Mr. A. B. Catlin, Mr. Robert Graves and daughter, and other relatives. A short space behind them came the President and Mrs. Harrison, Mr. and Mrs. McKee, Secretary and Mrs. Blaine, Rev. Dr. Scott, the President's father-in-law, Mr. H. B. Raymond and Lieutenant Mason and Mr. E. H. Hallford. As soon as they were seated the choir of St. John's Episcopal Church, consisting of sixteen white surpliced boys and four men, under the direction of Wm. H. Daniel, preacher, entered the main corridor from the far end, and as they passed along its length with slow and measured steps sang the procession hymn—"Lead us, O Lord, we pray, to the resurrection and the life." At its conclusion the choir sang the hymn, "Jesus Lover of My Soul." The Scripture lesson was read by Rev. Mr. Elliot. It began at the 20th verse of the 13th chapter of 1 Corinthians: "But now is Christ risen from the dead, and became the first fruits of them that slept, for since by man came death, by man also the resurrection of the dead." The choir then sang "Rock of Ages Cleft for Me." A prayer read by Mr. Douglas concluded the service. The President with Secretary Tracy on his arm first passed out of the room, and next to them came Mr. Frank Tracy, the son, who was so overcome that he had to be supported by the ushers.

Following the procession came the choir singing the recessional hymn, "Ardle with me, that fails the evening tide; Darkness deepens, Lord with me abide."

The bodies were removed to the hearse and the funeral procession was formed. The cortege moving slowly to Rock Creek cemetery, just beyond the soldiers' home, here the bodies were placed in the receiving vault to await Secretary Tracy's determination in regard to their permanent resting place.

Secretary Tracy did not go to the cemetery, as it was feared the task might prove too much for his strength. The President occupied a carriage with Mr. Frank Tracy. A long line of carriages, containing nearly all of those who attended the services at the White House, followed the remains to the cemetery.

Emulating a Tyrant.

HELENA, Montana, February 5.—The Montana dead lock was broken in the senate this morning. A motion was made to consider bills from the republican house and two democrats demanded the yeas and nays. Seven republicans voted in affirmative, the democrats not voting. Lieut. Gov. Richards held that a quorum was present because two democrats had called for the yeas and nays and declared the motion carried. The senate is now considering the house bills.
