Raleigh, May 31—More than 8,000 lantern-like traps, designed especially to appeal to and attract the Japanese beetle are to be put out over North Carolina beginning tomorrow, June 1, it was pointed out today by Dr. R. W. Leiby, chief entomologist of the State Department of Agriculture. The traps are being placed by the Bureau of Plant Quarantine of the U. S. department of agriculture in cooperation with the State Department of Agriculture, in order to gather specimens of the Japanese beetle, which is proving so destructive in so many sections of the country.

These traps will be distributed over the State in series of 400 in most of the larger towns and cities. In the larger cities, such as Charlotte, Asheville, Greensboro, Durham, Raleigh and Winston-Salem, 400 traps will be placed in each city. Japanese beetle traps will be placed in the following cities and towns: Henderson, Franklinton, Louisburg, Norlina, Oxford, Wake Forest and a score or more of other eastern towns.

The beetle traps for the most part will be placed in flower gardens, where the beetles are most often found. They contain a chemical

Educator Dies

Dr. W. J. FeGlothlin, president of Furman University, South Carolina, died Sunday in a Gastonia hospital following injuries received in an automobile wreck last week, in which his wife was killed. He was en route to Washington to attend the Southern Baptist Convention at the time of the fatal accident.

which attracts the beetles into the traps. The beetles are especially destructive to fruit trees and ornamental shrubs and their grubs are damaging to lawns, according to Dr. Leiby. They were accidentally introduced into the United States about 20 years ago from Japan and first became established in the roots of nursery grown plants in New Jersey. The beetle has gradually spread into the south and specimens were found in North Carolina for the first time in June, 1932, in Raleigh, Winston-Salem and Durham.

These 8,000 traps now being set out over the state will be placed in 59 counties and towns. The grown Japanese beetle is similar to the common June beetle, is golden green in color and about one-third the size of the familiar "June Bug." It is usually found on flowers and shrubbery during the heat of the day.

If any specimens are found by individuals, Dr. Leiby will appreciate it if they will send them direct to him, in care of the State Department of Agriculture here in Raleigh, so that they can be examined. This will assist the department in its efforts to determine just how extensively the Japanese beetle has spread over the state.

Bees Sting Bulls.
Rain blocked every contest in the Piedmont League yesterday with the exception of the Bees-Bull game in the Bull City.

The Hornets had little trouble handling the Bovines, doubling them 13 to 9 although they were out-hit 16 to 12. Their night game was washed out as all clubs were to play twin bills on the holiday.

BUSINESS IS BETTER

A new tone of optimism throughout industrial America has been in marked evidence during the past few weeks.

Business pickup, many old employees called back to work, production in many lines, increased electric consumption, increased shipping, stronger prices on wheat, cotton, copper and other items, have all combined to give convincing proof that definite and substantial recovery is under way.

This bank is ready to serve business in this territory soundly, safely, adequately and in close co-operation with governmental policies.

You Can Depend on The Man Who ADVERTISES

Nine times out of ten you will find that the man who advertises is the man who most willingly returns your money if you are not satisfied.

He has too much at stake to risk losing your trade or confidence. You can depend on him.

He is not in business for today or tomorrow only—but for next year and ten years from next year. He knows the value of good-will.

You get better merchandise at a fairer price than he could ever hope to sell it if he did not have the larger volume of business that comes from legitimate advertising and goods that bear out the promise of the printed word.

Don't miss the advertisements. This very day they call your attention to values that tomorrow you will be sorry you overlooked.
