

Aero History-Makers See Alaska Test Flight Start

Aviation notables at Bolling Field, Washington, as Army squadron prepared to takeoff for Alaska on a flight maneuver designed to test air defenses of the possession. L. to r.: Glenn L. Martin, pioneer bombing plane constructor; Acting Secretary of War Harry Woodring; Lt. Col. Henry Arnold, flight commander; and Maj. Benj. Foulois, chief of the Army Air Corps. Foulois was the first Army pilot. (Central Press)

ARMY BOMBERS GO TO SPREAD WINGS OVER ALASKA

Army bombing planes, en route to Alaska, on a reconnoitering journey, are pictured in full flight after their takeoff at Washington, D. C. Pictured in the cockpit of one of the planes, inset, are Harry Woodring, left, acting secretary of war, and Lieut. Col. Henry Arnold.

FEDERAL POWER COMMISSION MEETS FIRST TIME

President Roosevelt's newly appointed power commission is shown as it meets in Washington, D. C., for the first time. Left to right, seated, are Basil Manley; Secretary of the Interior H. I. Lewis, chairman, and Robert E. Healey. Standing, Maj. Gen. Edward A. Markham, chief of army engineers; T. W. Norcross, of the U. S. forest service; Miss A. Schnurr, assistant commissioner of bureau of reclamation; Dr. E. Lilienthal, of the TVA; and Morris L. Cooke, of the PWA.

WHERE ALL IS UNQUIET ON WESTERN WATERFRONT

This pier in Seattle is shown in momentary possession of picketing longshoremen who have just stormed it, staging a hand-to-hand encounter with police. In a counter-attack, however, they were driven back by rifle shots (without fatalities) and a barrage of tear gas bombs.

Highlights of Convention Of Medics Are Reported

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

THE CONVENTION of the American Medical Association at Cleveland was held from the 11th to the 15th of June, so in account of what was reported there is no longer news. Still, any contribution to medical science is news for a long time. In brief, the following reports of the convention seem to me of most importance:

The use of an abdominal belt to relieve the breathlessness and wheezing of elderly people who have the disease known as "emphysema".

Delayed operation in appendicitis was discussed, and it was suggested that frequently it gives better results than early operation.

The new disease, agranulocytic anemia, and its cause—"Those who are habitual users of sleeping powders, tablets, or drugs of this order, seem to be those mostly affected."

The treatment of eczema in childhood by carefully planned diets, local treatment and X-rays.

Accidental poisoning of childhood—500 children under the age of five years died in the United States in one year of poisoning. Insect powders, rat poisons, poisons in paints, poisons in cosmetics, fireworks, and in drugs used for adults were the commonest causes.

Vaccination against smallpox during the first day of life has been found safe and practical.

Vaccination against whooping cough in nearly 500 children indicated that the disease occurred less commonly in them than in those not vaccinated.

Vitamin A and the common cold. Feeding of vitamin A had no effect on either the incidence or the severity of colds.

The best treatment of the common cold is the use of small doses of opium derivatives, such as papaverine.

The effects of staying awake. A normal healthy man, 24 years old, allowed himself to be kept awake for 250 hours. Sometimes he could not help falling asleep, but he never slept longer than 65 minutes. All sorts of mental and physical tests were made on him, and no important differences from normal were noted. He was able to pull himself together at any time, and only towards the end of this long period did he show marked irritability. After it was all over he slept 12 hours and then resumed his normal sleep rhythm. Six months afterwards he has shown no effects from his experience.

Growing importance of the use of X-ray in cancer, especially cancer of the breast.

Alcohol and automobile accidents. Chemical tests for alcohol in the body fluid performed on individuals involved in 100 automobile accidents, show that alcohol is concerned in more accidents than is ordinarily reported. Controlled experiments with intoxicated drivers explain why the drunken driver is a menace.

Hypodermic syringes as mosquitoes. In an outbreak of malaria in New York City most of the cases occurred in drug addicts who passed the disease from one to the other by loaning each other hypodermic syringes which were not sterilized in between times.

EDITOR'S NOTE: Six pamphlets by Dr. Clendenning can now be obtained by sending 10 cents in coin, for each, and a self-addressed envelope stamped with a three-cent stamp, to Dr. Logan Clendenning, in care of this paper. The pamphlets are: "Indigestion and Constipation," "Reducing and Gaining," "Infant Feeding," "Instructions for the Treatment of Diabetes," "Feminine Hygiene" and "The Care of the Hair and Skin."

Dr. Clendenning

AS FRISCO RETURNS TO NORMALCY

With the paralyzing general strike at an end, the hustle and bustle of San Francisco's green goods district, above, has been resumed and citizens of the Golden Gate city once again are enjoying fresh vegetables. Below, a photo taken shortly after regular bus service had been restored in downtown San Francisco.

Red Headquarters and Leader

Entrance to headquarters of Communist Party in the United States, in 13th Street, New York, and Earl Browder (inset), secretary of the central executive committee and virtual leader. They're in the limelight now. (Central Press)

Da-Da Goes 6,000 Miles to Dad

Radio shortwave provided opportunity for Alphonse Carbone, Byrd expedition cook now in Antarctica, to hear voice of 6-months-old Maria, daughter born after he left for polar regions. She's shown at microphone with mother in their home at Cambridge, Mass. (Central Press)

Wagner Arrives to End Strike

Senator Robert Wagner of New York, father of the federal labor arbitration bill, gets a welcome from Portland, Ore., strikers as he lands from a plane to work on a settlement of the waterfront tieup crippling the city. He averted general strike there. (Central Press)

NRA CHIEF VISITS STRIKE SCENE

Charles H. Martin

Hastening to the Pacific coast when the general strike of labor unions was declared in San Francisco, Gen. Hugh S. Johnson is pictured above at Portland, Ore., talking it over with Congressman

Gen. Hugh S. Johnson

Charles H. Martin who is Democratic nominee for governor of Oregon. The NRA chieftain's influence was expected to be felt in peace negotiations to settle strike along the coast.

DEAR NOAH—IS THE WINDOW SHADE BUSINESS ON THE LEVEL, OR IS IT JUST A BLIND? SEND IN CLARENCE KVAM, YOUR MINNAPOLIS NOTIONS NOW!

DEAR NOAH—WHAT KIND OF ANIMALS ARE USED IN MAKING GAME PRESERVES?

IRA MEYER—REVERYSBURG, OHIO

DEAR NOAH—WHEN ARE KNOT HOLES, NOT HOLES?

BESS NORRIS—TITUSVILLE, PA.

PORK CHOPS 25¢ LB

HOWARD DARLING OF HICKSVILLE, N.Y. IS NOW A MEMBER