

The Christian as Teacher

Jesus' sermon on the mount is the most perfect example of the art of teaching of which the world knows. At its conclusion "the people were astonished at his teaching, for he taught as one having authority". His was the authority of personality, prayer and love.

The teaching aimed at embodying itself in life and conduct. To fail to do this Jesus said would be like the folly of building one's house on sand. In the time of storm it would fall. Truth to abide must be made flesh.

The early church had in it a teacher named Apollos, a man of zeal and eloquence mighty in the scriptures. But his training was incomplete in that he knew only the baptism of John the Baptist. He did not know Christ as fully as Christians should.

Two humble lay folks who were tentmakers noted this deficiency in Apollos and tactfully took him aside and taught him more perfectly. And he was not above learning from these laymen.

DUKE ALUMNI MEET DURING NEXT WEEK

Gatherings Scheduled Throughout State and Elsewhere in Nation

Durham, Dec. 8.—With Monday designated as "Duke University Day" approximately 3,000 Duke alumni living in more than 50 cities will gather to celebrate the tenth anniversary of the founding of the Duke Endowment which has made possible the extraordinary development of their alma mater during the past decade. The anniversary falls on Tuesday, December 11, but this year owing to the special celebration to be held in Raleigh on that date, the university celebration is moved ahead one day. A number of local alumni groups, however, have chosen approximate dates for their own dinner meetings, but most of them will be held this week. From the university will go administration, faculty, and athletic staff speakers to extend greetings to the local assembled alumni. At the same time they will speak of various phases of the university's program and development.

Meetings will be held in 16 cities out of North Carolina and in the state there will be 23 local dinners at which alumni from more than 50 counties will attend. Special exercises are also to be held on the campus, radio talks will be made in seven cities of the state, and Durham civic clubs will have "Duke University Day" speakers at their meetings during the week. Henry R. Dwire, Duke director of public relations and alumni affairs, is in general charge of the plans for the far-flung celebration, and he is cooperating with local alumni officers in planning for their meetings. At some places only local speakers will be heard.

The local alumni associations are scheduled to name their officers for the ensuing year at their respective dinner meetings.

Home Mortgage Loans Shown As Safe Investment

Wadesboro, Dec. 8.—The home mortgage loan, after the severe test of the depression, has proven to be a superlatively safe investment, declares Paul J. Kiker, Wadesboro, President of the North Carolina Building and Loan League. He points out that building and loan associations in this State, which invest almost exclusively in home mortgages, have established a record for safety ever better than the national average, while several small associations in the State have gone into voluntary liquidation during the lean years of the depression, most of these will pay their shareholders without any appreciable losses, he says.

Referring to recent statement issued by the director of education and research for the American Savings, Building and Loan Institute, he says, "This reveals that there are three national institutions with seventy-nine million investors holding the majority of the twenty-one billion dollars of home mortgages in the United States. These are the building and loan associations, the life insurance companies and the mutual savings banks."

"Of the total assets of building and loan associations at the beginning of 1930, representing investments of eleven million people, 98.72 percent survived the four years of the depression intact," he said. "Similar investments by life insurance companies and mutual savings banks proved equally as safe."

Mr. Kiker then points out that while building and loan associations have for several years been operating upon a materially reduced lending scale, they have continued to make some mortgage loans all through the depression. Reports now reveal that the associations throughout the state are again lending liberally for home financing.

Revamping G. O. P. Is Very Doubtful

ality. Each group needs the other group's co-operation. If they unite, what are they?—liberal or conservative? Against this combination, what opposes itself? The New Deal. But the New Deal party necessarily is a compromise party, too. What's the distinction, then? Won't the two new parties be as much alike one another as the two old major parties have been? F. D. R.—WHERE? If there's a discernible distinction, the new party of so-called Progressive-ism will have to be more advanced than the party of the so-called New Deal. Then where will President Roosevelt find himself? At the head of the Progressive party?—as a liberal? Or at the head of the New Deal party, where he is now?—as a conservative? It seems queer to think of President Roosevelt and the New Deal as conservative. Yet surely President Roosevelt is conservative in comparison with Senator Bronson Cutting of New Mexico or young Phil La Follette of Wisconsin or Mayor Fiorello H. La Guardia of New York.

OUT Such possible leaders as Senators Borah of Idaho and Norris of Nebraska don't count. They're too old—Borah at 69; Norris at 73. They can't last long. An opposition leader like Senator Vandenberg wouldn't count, either. Vandenberg merely is the kind of presidential candidate that the "outs" might put in against the "ins"—as a bid for variety. He's on a par with the New Deal. That is to say, he's on a par with it except that Franklin D. Roosevelt thought of the New Deal first. It is hard to take his copyright away from him.

Conservatism Now Treasury Bulwark

of bonds and notes, as of Dec. 15 issue. That, however, successful as it is does not constitute the real reason for rejoicing. (After all, millions in idle funds seek "safe" investment.) What causes the doffing of hats is this: Morgenthau (or is it F. D. R. himself) is putting forth long-term issues at declining interest rates. GOVERNMENT STRENGTH The real strength of the treasury lies in its conservative course—its attempt, in spite of all the large expenditures, to steer clear of actual monetary inflation. That, too probably accounts for the strength of the dollar abroad against gold currencies. The United States is having difficulty holding the dollar down to a level designed by New Deal professors, to keep commodity prices up.

In brief, the United States still leads the world in resources (and actual money) and, if the dollar were to take its normal course, it would go upward and prices would drop. (We often have remarked that we probably should starve to death if we had all the gold in the world—and no trade—the same fate that threatened Midas, who wished that everything he touched would turn to gold. The United States has had its wish—but that precedes nearly every other nation from dealing with us.) CHRISTMAS WINDELL Detroit is the city where Christmas spending will reach giddy heights

Whoopie Girls

GEORGE BARCLAY

Here he is, girls—no as you see him on the gridiron, but all dolled up in his best Sunday clothes, and is he handsome! Yes, you've guessed right. He's George Barclay, the University of North Carolina's All-American guard, who has been chosen on all of the leading All-America teams selected to date. George says he wants a coaching job, but don't you think, girls, he's good looking enough for the movies?

A dividend of $84,300,000 to depositors in the defunct First National bank is being disbursed. That gives bank payoff adherents an argument for payoffs in all the remaining defunct banks of the country. They argue that would start the wheels of industry to turning faster than any other form of governmental aid.

YOU'RE WRONG IF YOU BELIEVE—

That Sunday always has been the Christian Sabbath. It hasn't. That an ambassador, minister or consul must be a citizen of the country which he represents in order to be recognized by the country to which he is sent. That bulls are excited more by red than any other color.

George Washington?

We cannot tell a lie: it's George Washington himself, in person. He's the great - great - grand nephew of the father of his country, who didn't have any children. This George Washington, a New York attorney, is pictured on a vacation at Pinehurst, N. C. (Central Press)

Week of Prayer Is Observed By Baptist Women

By WALTER M. GILMORE Nashville, Tenn., Dec. 8.—This week has been observed throughout the Southern Baptist Convention by the thousands of its women as a week of prayer for foreign missions. This custom began about the time of the organization of the Woman's Missionary Union forty-six years ago. In connection with this prayer season a special offering is made for Foreign Missions, which is known as the "Lottie Moon Christmas Offering" in honor of Miss Lottie Moon, who went out as a missionary to China from Virginia in 1873 because she first suggested the idea.

According to Mrs. F. W. Armstrong Plattsburg, Mo., president of the W. M. U. Auxiliary to the Southern Baptist Convention, during these forty-six years this offering has brought into the treasury of the Baptist Foreign Mission Board in Richmond, Va., $2,626,777.95 over and above the regular gifts to foreign missions, "while the prayers answered have brought untold blessing and strength to missions and missionaries on every Southern Baptist foreign field." The objective of this offering this year is $150,000. The goal set for the Christmas offering in 1933, was $135,000 but the offerings amounted to approximately $175,000. With this extra money furnished by the women 113 missionaries have been supported during the year. It is expected that the offering will go far beyond that of last Christmas.

COTTON PICKING NO HARD TASK TO HIM

Some kind of cotton picking record has been set for this county by this "young" man. Richard Falkner, route 2 Henderson, 82 years old, has turned out 3,200 pounds of cotton for his picking efforts this fall, it was learned here today. This is a mighty fine record for one so far advanced in his years.

ST. PAUL DIGS OUT OF WORST SNOWFALL IN YEARS

It's a bit ironical when an ice cream truck gets stuck in the snow! That is what happened in St. Paul, Minn., when the heaviest snowfall since 1928, eight inches, almost "buried the city".
