There is an awakening in the Sionx Valley upon statehood matters, such as the well trained evangelist would hail as a change of heart. The Sioux Falls Press shows itself to be open to radical soul felt eagerness with which it seeks Press and Dakotaian. With a few

The legislature of Dakota has full power to change the boundaries of judicial districts, to place the various judges wherever it may choose and to fix times and places for holding court. (See sections 3, 4, 5, 1918 and 1919 of the organic act, edition of 1885.) Under these provisions it would be entirely practicable for the terlegislature to create enough districts for the territorial judges in the north half of Dakots and to assign them to places outside the boundaries of the proposed state of Dakota, leaving a clear field to our state judges authorities. In answer to the second proposition of the Sioux Falls Press: There would

The remarkable strike among the laboring men of the knights of labor in the employ of the Gould southwestern railroad system is approaching a period where its existence will not be tempered by the wisdom which has thus far made it eminently respectable. The railroad combination is gathering its forces for resistance and the first overt act in its own behalf has produced a responsive act of violence upon the part of the knights. They have demonstrated by that act an intention to resist through force the employment of other men to occupy their forfeited places, and the moment this phase of the conflict is fully developed they become subjects for an exercise of the full coercive power of municipal, state and general government. Senator Moody is at his home in Deadwood and the Pioneer finds in him a Dakota Iron Works confidence that the report of the house committee on territories on the Harrison bill will be of such a character that it will be acceptable to the friends of the statehood movement.
