Gentlemen—I have been an invalid pensioner for forty years, having contracted pulmonary and other diseases in the Maxisan War, but not till the les of March, 1985, did I feel any symptoms of rheumatism. On that day I was suddenly stricken with that disease in both hips and ankles. For twenty days I walked on crutches. Then the pain was less violent, but it shifted from joint to joint. For weeks I would be totally disabled, either on one side of my body or the other. The pain never left me a moment for eleven years and seven months—that is from March I. 1975, when I was first attacked, to October I. 1986, when I was cured. During these eleven years of intense suffering I tried innumerable prescriptions from various physicians, and tried everything suggested by friends, but if I ever received the lenst constitutions physicians, and tried sverything suggested by friends, but if I ever received the lenst constitution of the first of the march of the first time, of the S. The latest popular rumor with regard to the harried and, in some respects, covert consultation between the German Austrian leaders, is that Prince Bismarck is determined to force Russia to show her hand by taking advantage of the discrepancy between the czar's extensive military preparations on the Austrian frontier and the asseverations of the Russian officials that no aggress.ve movement is intended. Whether this theory be correct or not, there is certainly good ground for the belief that some cheme is on foot to precipitate matters to the end of prolonging the season of peace or bringing about almost immediste war, and that the German chancellor is its master spirit. The active preparations of Turkey, which comprise a call for 50,000 additional troops, show the seriousness of the sultan's position and attest the fact that the Ottoman government is fully aware of the gravity of the situation. Turkey still owes Russia £750,000 of the indemnity exacted by the latter at the close of the last armed conflict between the Ottoman and Muscovite empires, and M. Nelidoff, the Russian ambassador to Constantino-ple, has informed the porte, in accor-dance with instructions from St. Peters.

Mr. Gladstone was greeted with mingled cheers and groans when he passed through London. While waiting for the train he was visited by Earl Spencer, the Rt Hon. Hugh C. He subsequently proceeded to the residence of Lord Northbourne, whose guest he was last night. The President and Mr. Manning. Washington, D. C., Dec. 26-A good many doubts were expressed to-day whether President Cleveland would promised to attend the funeral of Mr. Hendricks, and although a vice president and closely associated with the chief executive, the latter said at the last moment that he would not go. He last moment that he would not go. He had no real excuse for not attending the funeral, either. Then there was more reason for him to attend the funeral of the Indianian. Mr, Hendricks and the president were very good friends to the very moment of the former's death. An old New Yorker, who was thoroughly acquainted with both the president and Mr. Manning said to-night: "Mr. Manning, when he left the cabinet, did so because he could not get along with the president. Mr. Cleveland did everything he could to hamper his secretary president. Mr. Cleveland did everything he could to hamper his secretary of the treasury, and that which hurt Secretary Manning more than anything else was when the president ordered the dissolution of the Manning club, organized in honor of the secretary of the treasury. Mr. Manning felt the little insults heaped upon him by the president, and to his most intimate friends he never failed to refer to Cleveland as 'that ingrate,' You know the rest. Dan Manning made Grover Cleveland. That's history.

When Mr. Manning was departing for Europe for his health, immediately after retiring from the cabinet, an old friend bade him good bye at the pier and said: 'Now Mr. Manning, I hope to see you return in good health so you can help us in the campaign of 1888. ask you if Mr. Cleveland is renominated will you take an active part in the campaign?" To which Mr. Manning replied: "I am a democrat, and will vote the democratic ticket, but I certainly will not again impair my health for a man who never had a grain of gratitude in his soul." The predictions that the president would not, at the last moment attend the funeral, were not well founded, for he left this evening for Albany. It is stated to-night that Mr. Cleveland received a number of letters from New York democrats urging him to be present at the funeral to-morrow, and saying that if he did not he would lose a good many friends in the party in that state.

Although Belgium has no navy she has quite a large merchant marine, consisting of 30 first-class iron steamship, 75 sailing ships, and about 300 fishing vessels. The steamships are nearly all fast screw vessels, and will make good trans-ports, and they can easily be converted into unarmored cruisers. Cleveland at Manning's Grave. Minneapolis Journal: To-day President Cleveland and his cabinet gather round the grave of Daniel Manning. We wonder if the president realizes what it is that he is burying?

Many people have the notion that it was manifest destiny that made Grover dance with instructions from St. Petersburg, that unless the money is paid forthwith Russia will take possesion of the territory in Asia Minor, which Turkey pledged to secure the idemnity.

As Turkey cannot by any possibility raise the sum demanded, and doubtless would not apply it to the payments of her debts if she could, she will in the end most likely decide that it is easier to fight than to pay—if she has not already reached that conclusion.

Lord Randelph Churchill paid a viatt to the czer at the palace of Gatschina yesterday. He was very ostentatiously received, and spent considerable time in private conversation with the emperor.
