The Thirteenth Commandment

By RUPERT HUGHES

Copyright by Harper & Brothers

CHAPTER XXV-Continued. -16-

"That makes no difference," Daphne in. We'd lose her-unless this no- an added grief to her. toriety drives her away." A little "I'm no use to you now," she wailed. sent it. Oh, dear!"

a card growing in a large little aza- useless both-it's too much!" lea tree. Daphne scanned it. "Mr.

had forgiven her. "Isn't he a darling?" she murmured. wasting praise on the rich. "You'll want to see him, I presume."

But Daphne had had enough of evil not, want not." appearance. "See him here? Never!" a reproof that was excruciating to accept, and ordered her to go down and meet Mr. Duane and incidentally learn about the check, "Business is business," she said.

Mrs. Chivvis descended in all the confusion of a Puritan wife meeting a Cavalier beau. She came back later to say that Mr. Duane was really very nice, and spoke beautifully and had sent the check and would send another if Daphne wished it, and would make old Mrs. Romilly go on with the order, and would she like some special fruits or soups or something? He was really very nice.

and said, "You've been flirting with him! and me so helpless here!"

"Daph !- nee!! Kip!!!" Mrs. Chiv- was on the road. vis screamed. The only counter-thrust she could think of was, "And what does Mr. Wimburn say?"

This sobered Daphne. Why Clay sent no word? Everybody else New York, his pockets full of con- la's appearance, which, he said, was in town had seen the papers. Clay tracts, Bayard, equally successful, a wonderful improvement on what it read the papers. Surely he was not greeted him enthusiastically. Then he had been. capable of such monstrous pique. learned of the accident and the fact When your worst enemy gets badly that Daphne was "in trade." He was hurt you've just got to forgive-if indignant at the news and wanted to his compliments.

CHAPTER XXVI.

Leila was determined to endure regain her beauty. She would go to a taxicab. through any ordeal of knives or plaster casts or splints or medicines for that. She was quite grim about it. of everything but the debris of re-Her resolution extended to the spend- moval, ing of as much of Bayard's money as might be necessary on surgeons' fees and doctors' bills. If she bankrupted Bayard it would be with the tenderest

Five times she went to the operating table, made that infernal fourney plained. "We've expanded so fast we anguishes waited her, what retching across the street. and burning and bleeding. She braved death again and again, took long chances with cowering bravado. And all for Bayard's sake.

vigil at Leila's side he was just falling the new shop." asleep over the first mail when his telephone snarled. He reached for it with alarm. A voice boomed in his

"Ah you thah?" "Yes."

"Keep the line, please. Now, you ah through, sir?" Then a growl replaced the boom, a growl that made the receiver rattle: "Ah you thah, Mr. Kip? This is laughing and chattering, Colonel Marchmont. I dare say you remember our conversation about those damned contracts with Wetherell. A little farther discussion Daphne laughed till she fell against might not be amiss-if you could make it perfectly convenient to drop ovvah at, say, a quawtah pahst fah? Good! I shall expect you at that Bayard pondered. What new persecution was fate preparing? As he went to the office, he bought an evening paper. A heavily headed cablegram announced that the laborers in the British munition works were striking or threatening to strike. A gleam of understanding came into Bayard's eye. When he reached the desk of Colonel Marchmont he looked unabashed into the revolver muzzle of the old war horse's one eye.

Without any preliminary courtesies or any softening of his previous tone the colonel snorted: "Those devilish contracts you made with Wetherell-The poor fellow is no longer alivemore's the pity, but- Well, I'm afraid I was a bit severe with you. I fancy we might see our way to renewing those contracts at a reasonable figure -say at a 25 per cent reduction from the terms you quoted."

Bayard smiled and shook his head, He bluffed the bluffer. "The prices we quoted included only a fair profit, colonel. Since then materials have been going up in price every minute, owing to the demand from abroad. And the home market is booming. We can sell all our product here, and more, too, than we can make."

Colonel Marchmont squirmed, but the counter. The worst of it was that he was a soldier and loved a good her eyes were so tender. when his successor signed new con- with sudden suspicion. everything; yesterday's exorbitance was today's bargain.

of braness. He got back to his office | Clay stormed: "I'll get him!"

| His feet were beautiful on the rug of | the president's office.

Bayard felt so kindly to all the stormed, already converted to the world that he hurried to the hospital shop religion. "Customers must not to scatter good news like flowers over ticing how she used the word "friend." find the door shut. Run open it at Leila's couch. She was in that humor once. Suppose Mrs. Romilly dropped when anybody else's good fortune was blush of shame flickered in Daphne's "I never was much. But at least I when I didn't know where else to get pale cheeks a moment and went out. dressed and kept looking fit. And you it. And it nailed our first real con-She sighed: "I suppose Mr. Duane said I was pretty. But now- Oh, tract-a big commission from old Mrs. has stopped that check, too-if he eyer Bayard, Bayard! You used to call me Romilly. We paid back Mr. Duane's luptuous feeling from it. But I really it out of the heart's blood of some Then a nurse knocked; brought in for you, But now- To be ugly and in advance at what was coming to Thomas Varick Duane!" She peered are wandering in strange country you now." closer at the pencilings and read should turn every now and then and broken. Isn't there anything I can wears a different aspect entirely from its look as you approached, and you Daphne felt as if outraged society will need to know how it will look when you return.

From childhood on, Leila had been Mrs. Chivvis begrudged a stingy, warned against extravagance—as Bay-"Well, of course-" She had the poor ard had, as have we all. But only you become senior partner here?" folks' conscientious scruples against now that she was looking backward could she realize the wisdom, the intolerable truth of the adage, "Waste

Meanwhile Daphne was having so She glared at poor Mrs. Chivvis with different a history that she felt ashamed. It seemed unfair to her to get well quickly and with no blemish except a scar or two that would not show, while Leila hung between death and deformity.

But seeing Bayard alone and hearher belief that she had done the wholesome thing when she joined the laboring classes. There were discouragements without cease, yet Daphne was learning what a remedy for how many troubles there is in work. It seemed Daphne eyed her with ironic horror that fifty thousand a year she had at her than ever and more incapable dreamed of. She was uncertain yet of of hating her. earning a thousand a year, but she Bayard gave him the address, and questions. He made haste to the sub-

Then he found Daphne.

"Where are we?" said Clay.

"This was my shop."

"What's the matter? Busted already?" Clay asked, with a not unflattering cheerfulness. "Not in the least," Daphne ex-you? Mrs. Chivvis, you haven't for my middle name-Expense.' gotten Mr. Wimburn. He's kept away so long you might have, though. One morning when Bayard reached Where've you been, Clay? But waithis office after a harrowing all-night you can tell me on the way over to (to him) place of business. She asked asked him if it were not all perfectly

He answered, "It's perfectly loath-

Instead of resenting this insult

Wetherell Was Avenged When His Successor Signed New Contracts at a Higher Price Than He Had Made.

counter-attack. He smiled as he "Where did you get all the capital squirmed. Wetherell was avenged for all this stock?" Clay demanded, a while?"

tracts at a higher price than he had "Oh, part of it we bought on credit made. The changing times changed and part of it on borrowed money." "Borrowed from whom?"

"From Mr. Duane." Bayard departed with a wallet full | This was too much of too much, afford a better home." an feet Bedged with Mercurial wings. | "Oh. no. you won't!"

"Oh, yes, I will!"

"I won't have you assaulting the me. . It doesn't cost me much." best friend I've got in the world." He groaned aloud at this, not nochatterbox. "He lent me five hundred dollars beautiful, and I tried to be beautiful five hundred and then-" She giggled think that it's the fun of making it hard-working man. No, sirree! It may Clay. "And then I borrowed a thou-aloud: "I just learned. I'm heart- look back at the way you came. It wished. He took out a little book, "Well, I'll give you a check for that amount-or more. And you can pay Duane off with interest. I won't have you owing him money."

"You won't have!" Daphne mocked "You won't have? Since when did "Senior partner!" Clay railed "T'm no partner in this business! I hate this business. It makes me sick to see you in it." "Then step out on the walk," said Daphne. "You're scaring away customers and using up the time of the firm. The boudoir is no place for you,

A young woman with a bridal eye walked in and Daphne left Clay to blunder out sheepishly. He did not see that she cast sheep's eyes after ing Leila fret, she felt confirmed in him. He was a most bewildered young man. He had made a pile of money and still he was not happy!

CHAPTER XXVII.

In the course of a few wretched to be almost panacea. It was exciting, days Clay picked up some of the facts fatiguing, alarming, but it was objec- about Daphne's presence in Wethertive. She was on her way at last to ell's fatal car. He was more furious

He saw Bayard often, but Bayard knew little and said less. One after-Clay Wimburn, seeking chances in noon he invited Clay to ride with him the West, did not see the New York to the hospital, whence Leila was to papers or any other record of Daph- graduate. He warned Clay not to be-

> She was, indeed, a mere shell, and Clay was not entirely successful with Leila sighed: "Much obliged for your good intentions. I'm a mere Clay wasted no time asking further sack of bones, but I'm going to get well. The doctors say that if I take way, fuming; left the train at the care of myself every minute and go everything that might be necessary to Grand Central station and climbed up to a lot of specialists and go to Bar Harbor in the hot weather and to Palm Beach in the cold and spend She led him into a little shop empty about a million dollars I'll be myself some day. That's not much, but it's all I've got to work for. Poor Bydie He didn't know he was endowing a hospital when he married me." "What do I care, honey?" Bayard cried, with perfect chivalry. "The money is rolling in and I'd rather spend it on you than on anybody else." "The money's rolling out just as into etherland, knowing what after had to move. We sublet and moved fast as it rolls in," Leila sighed. "The Lord seems to provide a new expense "You remember Mrs. Chivvis, don't for every streak of luck. And that's

She had actually learned one lesson That was a hopeful sign.

Clay sought Daphne in her odious him what she could sell him. He said When she led him into her new em- he would wait till the shop closed. porlum the graceful fabrics displayed She raised her eyebrows impudently were all red rags to him. He was a and gave him a chair in a corner. He sat there feeling as out of place as a Daphne made Clay sit down and strange man in a harem.

Eventually the last garrulous cus lovely. He waited until Mrs. Chivvis tomer talked herself dumb; the last went on to the workroom. He had a sewing woman went. Mrs. Chivvis glimpse of a number of girls and pulled down the curtains in the show women on sewing bent. They were window and at the door and bade good night.

Then Daphne locked the door dropped wearily into a chair, and sighed, "Well, Clay?" "I want to know why you don't give up Tom Duane." ders again, but she did not smile. is recorded, he took out patents on ma-She spoke instead: "I don't ask you rine engines three years later, and to give up your stenographer." "Oh, it's like that, eh? Well, then, instead of Tom Duane?"

borrow of you because-" He leaped at the implication: "Because you love me?"

"Because I used to." "Don't you any more?" he groaned. "How can I tell? It's been months and months since I saw the Clay America, and a multi-tubular boiler. Wimburn that came out to Cleveland In 1807 he built the sidewheel steamand lured me on to New York. The boat Phoenix, which was a few days only Clay Wimburn I've seen for behind Fulton's vessel in attaining the some time has been a horribly pros- legal speed, and was thus shut out perous, domineering snob who is too from the Hudson river; but he boldly proud to be seen with a working steamed her around to the Delaware woman. He wants to marry a lady. by sea, being the first to navigate I never was one and don't want to the ocean with the new motive power. be one. I'm a business woman and love it."

"And you wouldn't give up your shop for me?" "Certainly not."

obstinate, so right-hearted and so and salvaged some hundreds of galwrong-headed. It was intolerable that lons of molasses before the railroad she should keep a shop. He spoke men plugged the opening and left after a long delay:

"May I come and see you once in to get at the outflow. "If you want to."

"Where you living now?" "Still at the Chivvises'."

"I suppose so, but it would be say they is certainly a wonderful lot self for a cause, as a martyr to the thonely anywhere else It has been of tittle animals."

safe there-since you quit calling on | She has to give up the housework, any money.

She ran on. She had not talked to all my own and I made every cent of stand the bills since he escapes the him for so long that she was a perfect it, and-golly! how I love to watch pain. I tell you, if I ever had a daughit grow."

"You miser." "Maybe. I guess that's the only never raise her to the hideous, indeway to save money--to make a pas- cent belief that the world owes her a sion out of it and get a kind of vo- living and she's got a right to squeeze that interests me most. It certainly be old-fashioned, but it isn't decent, keeps me out of mischief and out of and it isn't even romantic. The love Wise pathfinders say that when you sand from him. We owe him that loneliness. Oh, there's no freedom of two free souls, with their own calike having a job and a little reserve reers and their own expenses, seems Clay was as wroth as she had in the bank. It's the only life, Clay." to me about the best kind of love there freedom,' as you call it, even for a home evenings and their home will be man you leved? Couldn't you love a a home—a fresh, sweet meeting place." man enough to do that?"

> "I could love a man too much to do that. For where's the love in a woman's sitting around the house all day and waiting for a man to come home and listen to the gossip of her dodged behind the counter.

'It Seems to Me It Couldn't Help Being a Better and a Happier Way of

Clay was not at all persuaded. in marrying a business woman." "How do you know? You know not business women." "I want a housekeeper, not a shop are begun on borrowed money. So I'll "Go get one, then, I say. If a womhousekeeper let her do her own house- and closed his fingers on them. work. But if she can earn enough to hire a hundred housekeepers why tified. She explained: should she stick to the kitchen? In my home, if I ever get one, the cook will dollars, and that's for my half of the not be the star. Besides, it enlarges partnership. Women are wearing their life so. Instead of two living on the wedding rings very light nowadays." wages of one two will live on the earnings of two. It seems to me it with a smile. couldn't help being a better and a happier way of living."

bled "What's your business woman of a heart for part of a heart, but to going to do when the-the babies Clay the very counter was the golden come? Or do you cut out the kiddles?" bar of heaven, and Daphne the Bless-Daphne blushed, too. "Well, I should ed Damozel that leaned on it and think that the business woman could made it warm. afford bables better than anybody else.

way, even when she's a housekeeper. "But you're making so much, I suppose she could give up her shop for a while. At least she could share "Not so very much-yet, but it's the expense-or her husband could ter I'd make her learn her own trade if she never learned anything else. I'd "And you wouldn't give up your could be. Then both of them can come

Clay breathed hard. He was silenced, but not convinced-beyond being convinced that Daphne Kip was still the one woman in the world for him, in spite of her cantankerous notions. Still, of course, a woman had to have some flaw or she would not be human. Daphne's foible was as harmless as anyone's, perhaps. So he blurted out: "I suppose you've given up all thought of marrying me?"

She answered him with pious earnestness: "I've never given up that thought, Clay. I've been trying to make myself worthy of the happiness it would mean. I have had the trousseau all made, and paid for, a long while. That's what I came to town for originally-our trousseau. But when saw how much sacrifice it meant for my poor old father and what a bundle of bills I'd be dumping on my poor young lover I coulan't see the good of it. So I took my vow that I wouldn't get a trousseau till I could earn the price of it myself. And now I've earned the price and I've got it. But I've lost my excuse for wearing it.

"Still, I'd probably have lost you, anyway, or ruined you if I had brought you my old ideas. Everybody always says that money is the enemy of love. I wonder if it couldn't be made the friend. It would be an interesting experiment, anyway." "Daphne, honey, let's try the experi-

She looked at him with a heavenly smile in her eyes, and answered,

He moved toward her, but she empty brain? That isn't loving, that's studied him a moment, then reached below the counter. A bell rang and a drawer slid out. She took some bills But there's no comfort or home life from it, made a memorandum on a slip of paper, and put that in the place of the bills, closed the drawer, and plenty of unsuccessful wives who are leaned across the counter, murmuring: "They say all successful businesses borrow this from the firm-for luck." She put out her hand. Clay put out an can't earn enough outside to hire a his. She laid three dollars on his palm

"What's all this?" he asked, all mys-"A plain gold band costs about six

"I should say so!" Clay groaned, but She bent forward and he bent for ward and their lips met. She was only Clay blushed vigorously as he mum- a saleswoman selling a customer part

THE END.

WORLD'S FIRST STEAM FERRY | CROW IS ENEMY OF FARMER Was Established by John Stevens in Under Modern Conditions There Seems 1811, Running Between Hoboken

and New York.

The first ferry in the world was established in 1811 by John Stevens between Hoboken and New York. Tak-She shrugged her excellent shoul- ing up the study of steam in 1789, it in 1798 completed his first boat, successfully operating it on the Hudson why won't you let me lend you money river. In 1804 a second boat was equipped with two screws, and the Her answer astounded him with its style of propeller designed by him was eminine logic: "I can borrow of Mr. for many years preferred above later Duane because I don't love him and inventions. Though this was the first never did and he knows it. I can't application of steam to the screw-propeller, yet this design was the identical short, four-threaded screw used today. It is remarkable that this form of propulsion was not practically introduced until 1837. His original steamboat also contained the first condensing double-acting engine ever made in

> Rush for Free Molasses. When a tank car filled with 8,000 gallons of molasses was upset near Telford, Pa., and the molasses began

His Tribute.

Little Reason for the Bird's Continued Existence.

The record of the crow is like its coat-about as black as black can bea writer in Detroit Free Press says. It may be that in the great plan of nature, some time in the past, the crow served a useful purpose-likewise the hawk and the buzzard. Take the buzzard, for example. Once protected by human laws everywhere because useful for removing carrion, the stench of which offended the nostrils of all animal life, it is now outlawed, because man realizes that it is better to burn or bury the dead-leaving no excuse for the existence of the disease-carrying buzzard. So, in the beginning, the mission of the crow, we may conjecture, was to preserve some equilibrium, some balance in the economy of nature. It may be he was placed here to hold in check the weed seed and grain eating birds, because weeds were a factor in the past in covering the waste places of the earth and making them fertile. However that may have been, there seems to be no excuse for his existence now since man, the agriculturist, seeds the waste places to useful grains and grasses and needs the help of the insectiverous birds.

"Martyrs." The word "martyr" has various meanings. Specifically, it is still con-He looked at her with baffled emo- to run out, people came by scores, on their religious convictions. The "Holy tions. She was so delectable and so foot, in carriages and by automobiles, Innocents" are a notable example of involuntary martyrdom. The word "martyr" should not be applied to a person who loses mere property, but is dozens of disappointed ones waiting used to persons who have died while striving to attain their object. The dictionary gives as the primary definition of "martyr"-"One who submits Hans was on a visit to his grand- to death rather than forswear his refather's farm, and for the first time ligion; specif., one of the early Chris-"You ought to take better care of saw a lot of bees making honey. After tians who suffered death for their reyourself than that. Surely you can looking at them with deep interest for ligion." In general, the word is used a few moments he said: "Well, I must also to denote one who sacrifices him-I nursuit of wealth.

"FAKE" ASPIRIN

Counterfeiter Caught! The New York health authorities had a Brooklyn manufacturer sentenced to the penitentiary for selling throughout the United States millions of "Talcum powder" tablets as Aspirin Tablets.

Don't ask for Aspirin Tablets-Always say "Bayer." Don't buy Aspirin in a pill box! Get Bayer package!

Always say, "Give me genuine 'Bayer Tablets of Aspirin.' " Insist you want only the Bayer package with the "Bayer Cross" on the

The genuine "Bayer Tablets of Aspirin" have been proved safe by millions for Pain, Headache, Neuralgia, Toothache, Earache, Rheumatism, Lumbago, Colds, Grippe, Influenzal Colds, Joint Pains, Neuritis. Proper dose in every "Bayer" package. American owned!

Boxes of 12 tablets-Bottles of 24-Bottles of 100-Also Capsules. Applein is the trade mark of Bayer Manufacture of Monoaceticaeldester of Salicylleads

"Her Get-Away. "Tell her I'm not at home." "But you are at home, ma!" "Well, I won't be by the time you tell her.'-Cartoons Magazine.

For a merciless critic commend us to the successful author.

The postage stamp that carries love letter seldom sticks to cold facts

Have You Tried Tuxedo in the New "TEA-FOIL" PACKAGE?

Finest Burley Tobacco Mellow-aged till perfect + a dash of Chocolate

