

PLAYED IN RUSSIA

First American Virtuosi to Appear in That Country With Royal Orchestra Was Miss Cottlow.

It is interesting to note that when Miss Augusta Cottlow, the pianist who is to play in Woolsey hall on Tuesday afternoon with the New Haven symphony orchestra, was thirteen years old, the late, lamented Anton Seidl asked her to play with his orchestra in New York and under his own direction.

She appeared at that time with Henri Marteau, the distinguished French violinist. Her playing of the Chopin E minor concerto created a profound impression, and she was engaged for a second appearance. That a girl of thirteen should be invited to play with Seidl was an unprecedented honor.

Miss Cottlow then went to Europe, and was the first concert pianist of purely American training and education to score a success there. Her first important appearance was in Berlin, with the Philharmonic orchestra, on which occasion she played the Schumann.

She was the first American pianist to appear in Russia, and played with the royal orchestra before the Grand Duke of Oldenburg. Miss Cottlow appeared at the palace of the Countess Waldersee, and several times at the residence of Andrew D. White, the United States ambassador.

Her first American appearance, after five years of concerting and study in Europe, was made at the Worcester festival with the Boston symphony orchestra, where she played the Tschikowsky concerto. This was in 1900. She was honored with a second festival engagement at Worcester this year when she played the second M. Dowell concerto, playing again with the Boston symphony orchestra, under the direction of Franz Kniesel.

For the convenience of those who want seats for Tuesday afternoon's concert the Woolsey hall box office will be open to-morrow morning from 11 o'clock to 1 o'clock. Again on Monday, during the same hours, seats may be had, and on the day of the concert the box office will be open from 11 a. m. until the concert begins at 4:30 p. m.

As Through a Shop Window

Silver fern dishes are set in outer coverings of carved cut glass.

Large feather muffs are among the pretty things displayed in the shops.

Knitted girdles, especially designed for college girls, are displayed in the shops.

Cut glass bouquet holders are trimmed around the top edges with a filigree of silver open work.

New silver mesh handbags are sewed with a collapsible top which opens something like a draw string.

The newest flit lace is extremely coarse and is embroidered with colored crevells or coarse cotton yarn.

A new veil is large and its upper edge is tied around the hat by a running ribbon. The lower edge is gathered with a Pierrot ruffle.

Pretty for wear on cold days are the double ruchings or ruffs of heavy ribbon with a bit of fur run through the center for a band.

Large hair pins of imitation shell have heavy curling tops which protrude an inch or more from the coiffure and form an effective brush.

Famous Japanese prints are now successfully copied and brought out in miniature as Japanese postcards and all the exquisite colorings for which the old masters of this part of the orient were so justly noted are reproduced in a wonderfully clever way.

It is extremely bad form to wear a soft crushed silk girdle with a plain tailor shirtwaist. A stitched belt, matching the skirt, should be worn with it, or a plain leather belt not over an inch and a half in width. The leather belt should not be worn with a soft fancy blouse.

Little fur collars, "chokers" or "catcocks," as they are called, are simple straight bands of squirrel, pony skin or almost any fur. These are simply fastened at the back by made bands of satin bound with velvet. Their length is up and down and they look extremely quaint under a pretty, duffy mass of hair.

Now that Brussels net is much worn it is well to be reminded that it can be most satisfactorily cleaned by rubbing it with corn meal. Place the garment to be cleaned in a bag with plenty of meal and shake it frequently. Let it remain in the meal for a day and then shake out thoroughly and let it air. If one bath is not sufficient, the experiment should be repeated.

WILLIE LEWIS SAYS NO.

—Not Favorably Impressed.

Willie Lewis, the fast welterweight boxer who is to meet Harry Lewis here at the Grand Opera House on December 14 in the card of bouts which the Edge-wood club is to run was an interested spectator at the Davonport-Washington Glee club game yesterday morning and for the first time in his life witnessed a gridiron struggle.

And by the way in which it affected him it does not look as if the knight of the padded glove will ever be noted for his fame in any football contest. Speaking of the game he said in part: "I'll take my game any day in preference to that game. Why I'd stand absolutely no chance at all if I were sent in there with that bunch; they'd beat me to a pulp. No sir, leave me to my own game."

CROWLEY WINS MARATHON.

Irish-American A. C. Runner Has Easy Time at Yonkers.

Yonkers, N. Y., Nov. 26.—James F. Crowley of the Irish-American Athletic club, New York, won the Marathon race at Yonkers to-day. There were 142 starters, among whom were many of the best long distance runners in this country.

The distance was 26 1/2 miles. About 14,000 people assembled at Getty Square, the starting point and it was estimated that five times as many were lined along the route which ran through Hastings, Dobbs Ferry, Ardsley, Bartisale and thence to the Empire City race track, around which the last four miles of the contest were run. The entire route was traversed by a thick fog and the runners could not be distinguished a hundred yards away. The first man to reach the race course was Crowley who had a lead of almost a mile on the next man, Fowler of Cambridge, Mass. Sam Mellor, who won the Boston Marathon, was the third to appear but he missed second, a half mile behind Crowley. Fowler lost ground after the first round of the track and he was beaten by nearly half a mile for second place. Lewis Teahama, of Cambridge, finished fourth, but through some official's mistake he had to run an extra mile after he had completed the full journey. Edward Ryder, of Jamaica Plain, Mass, was fifth.

RESULTS AT EMERYVILLE.

Don Enrique Wins Thanksgiving Handicap—60 to 1 Shot Wins. Oakland, Cal., Nov. 26.—In the presence of a large crowd, Don Enrique won the Thanksgiving handicap at Emeryville today. Don Enrique was second with Royal Tourist third. Tony Faust went to the front early and did not relinquish the lead until a quarter mile from home. Then Don Enrique which had moved up rapidly, assumed command. He drew away and won handily from Don Enrique which beat Royal Tourist by a head. Magrane, favorite for the second race broke down and Mike Asheim, a 60 to 1 shot led the field home.

First race, 5 1/2 furlongs, purse, $100. Mike Asheim, 110, 10 to 1, won; Matchless
