

ANNUAL POLICE REPORT SHOWS 1919 BIG YEAR

Total of 1,242 Cases From Mayor to Keeping Dangerous Dogs—Record in Fines.

A total of 1,242 cases were handled by the police during the fiscal year ending April 15, 1920, and fines collected amounted to $21,877.81. This sum is nearly twice as large as any amount collected in previous years.

The sum is divided with $19,822.70 as the amount of fines collected, $629.84 as aggregated bond forfeitures, $39 as ambulance fees and $1,307.60 as fees for dog licenses.

Of the total number of cases handled by the police, 605 were tried under state warrants and 737 under city warrants. The report of Chief Tom Cox lists the recovery of $18,677.81 worth of stolen property.

There were two murderers arrested during the fiscal year. Robert Cook was arrested for the murder of Mrs. Ida Woods and Cecil Nesbitt, Davenport harbor, at Mrs. Woods' restaurant on Third avenue between Twenty-second and Twenty-third streets, the night of April 12, 1919.

Cook jumped from a third story window of the court house, after a jury had brought in a verdict calling for the death penalty.

Cola Smith, negro, was sentenced to life imprisonment last January for the murder of Oscar Davenport, negro, at the latter's home at 809 Seventh street, the afternoon of June 8, 1919.

Many Bootleggers. The principal reason for the large

Collection of fines is that a good number of bootleggers were rounded up and assessed heavy fines. There was a total of 59 bootleggers tried. Persons arrested for drunkenness numbered 122, and four men were tried for transporting liquor through dry territory.
