HOMESPUN SUIT IS NOBBY FOR SCHOOL

BY ELOISE.

The "first suit" or school suit is always a difficult problem. It must not be too grownup looking and yet it must have an air of smart girliness which will not be too juvenile to suit even the most particular flapper. This year the suit problem has been settled by many mothers by getting, not a suit at all, but one of the pretty new plaid skirts and a smart little navy or tan coat.

There is one other way the suit problem may be solved and that is by getting out of the very English homespuns which are now in the shops. Here is an attractive model in an odd shade of blue which is quite the thing for frosty days and school wear. It gives plenty of warmth and makes it unnecessary to wear a heavy coat. Four pockets bound in gray and a gray scarf set it off nicely. A gray and blue knitted hat forms the finishing touch to complete the costume.

Wilmer T. Pearce.

One of the prettiest of nuptial events of the year was the wedding last evening at the Edwin G. Fraser home, 724 Twenty-third street, when Miss Mary Edwina, the charming only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Fraser and a popular member of the younger set, became the bride of Wilmer Trimble Pearce of Chicago, son of W. C. Pearce of that city.

The beautifully simple home ceremony was celebrated at 8:30 in the presence of some ninety wedding guests, relatives and intimate friends of the young couple and many old family friends of the Frasers, by Rev. John McGown Stevenson, pastor of the Broadway Presbyterian church. Southern amylax, ferns and low palms, combined with the deep pink Russell roses and waxy Easter lilies, were artistically used in decoration of the rooms. The vows were said before an altar arranged before the fireplace in the living room, which was massed with ferns and other greenery and relieved with a touch of pink roses and lilies. Two tall lighted cathedral candles stood up through the masses of green. Tall floor baskets of the roses, and baskets and vases of them, together with more ferns, were used in all the rooms. Preceding the ceremony, as the guests were gathering, a string orchestra in a hall recess played a program of nuptial music. The guests were received by the bride's mother and father, who were themselves observing the 40th anniversary of their marriage yesterday, and W. C. Pearce, father of the bridegroom. Mrs. Fraser's gown was a combination of gray embroidered georgette crepe and tulle trimmed with steel beads, and her corsage of the pink roses was tied with gray tulle. Ben Hartz, tenor, sang "Admiration At Dawning," to orchestral accompaniment, just before the music modulated into the Bridal Chorus from Lohengrin, which announced the hour for the taking of the vows.

Marching down the smilax-twined stairway and through the white ribboned aisle to the altar, the members of the bride's party were met by the bridegroom and his best man, Miss Conkey of Superior, Wis., came first. Her dress was a pretty model in orchid shade, made of dotted silk net over silver. The bodice was of satin and trimmed with French flowers. Miss Carol Sampson of Galena came next. Her dress was also in the dainty orchid shade, the material being satin with trimming of cornflower blue velvet ribbon. The bridesmaids carried like bouquets of pink Russell roses and blue cornflowers, which were tied with large tulle bows.

Just ahead of the bride came her honor maid, Miss Catherine Marshall, in a frock of old blue georgette crepe. It was girdled with a heavy corded ribbon of rose and orchid, while her bouquet of Russell roses and blue cornflowers was showered with valley lilies and tied with pink tulle. The bride walked alone to the doorway of the living room, where she was met by her father, who gave her in marriage. The bridal dress was a stunning creation of bridal satin and Duchess lace. The bodice was lace trimmed, and the draped skirt, which made a tunic arrangement—was edged with the lace. Her veil was an exquisite arrangement of real Spanish lace, which was brought from Porto Rico by the bride's brother. The arrangement was in a Spanish style, resembling the way a mantilla is worn, and was held in place with a bandeau of orange blossoms. It was in three-quarter length. Shell pink roses surrounding a center of Easter lilies and maiden hair fern formed the huge old-fashioned bridal bouquet. The showers were of satin ribbon, tied here and there, holding lilies of the valley and dainty fern sprigs.

The single ring service was used. Mr. Pearce and his best man, Oscar B. Fraser, brother of the bride, the best man, Sidney Mounteer of Chicago, John W. Potter of Rock Island and Mrs. G. ushers. Mendelssohn's "Wedding March" was played at the conclusion of the program by the orchestra, which played softly as the vows were being said. The wedding reception followed the ceremony, and the wedding supper was served in the dining room, on buffet. The serving table was centered with a tall silver basket containing Russell roses, ferns and Easter lilies. There was also a bride and a bridegroom's cake.

Mr. and Mrs. Pearce left at midnight for Chicago, and they are to be at home after Nov. 15 at 3529 Broadway, Chicago, where they have an apartment awaiting their return. The bride's traveling suit was of nut brown, redline, collared with mink, and her hat of brown velvet had embroidery of nut brown.

The bride presented her maid of
