

BEHAN TO PLAY WEEK IN PERSON IN ROCK ISLAND

Well-known Actor and Company to Present "The Sign of the Rose" at Fort Armstrong.

A novel note in motion picture presentation will be disclosed at the Fort Armstrong theatre, all next week, beginning Sunday, when George Behan and his own motion picture cast will present, on the screen and on the stage, for the first time in this city, "The Sign of the Rose."

Behan's venture is a combination of motion picture and spoken drama. The audience is treated to four reels of screen entertainment and then the scene fades out, and when the lights go up there is revealed a complete and elaborate stage setting, representing a fashionable florist's shop. Here Behan and his entire motion picture cast pick up the story and present Mr. Behan's classic of the vaudeville, "The Sign of the Rose," with the same players that were seen in the film portion of the offering. The vaudeville act consumes 25 minutes and, in turn, fades out and the story is resumed in motion picture form.

Behan played this unique combination of screen and spoken drama in a number of the most important cities of the west last year with tremendous success. In this presentation Mr. Behan will have the assistance of Helene Sullivan, one of the screen's foremost favorites.

Manager E. R. Cummings considers the engagement of Mr. Behan and his entire cast one of the greatest attractions presented in this city. He believes that Behan will break all attendance records at the Fort Armstrong.

FREAK DANCING IS NEW RUSS PASTIME

Moscow.—The opening of Russia's theatrical season has brought out examples of freak and impressionistic staging and erotic dancing in several theatres, but nevertheless the classic Russian ballet, the old style opera, and the drama seem more popular than ever.

Both the strikingly new impressionistic presentations and the time-honored ballets, however, drew large crowds, and the opening performances in the theatres featuring these respective styles were sold out long before the curtains. At the Nobles club theatre, where Goleysky presented impressionistic dancing by a dozen or more youths and girls from the Kamerny ballet, cubist and spiral structures were used as scenery to represent palaces, mountains, pyramids, etc. The dancers, posturing weirdly to music by Bier, Strauss and Debussy seemed to be cubist drawings come to life.

When the curtain went up on the first performance of the ballet this year, it was evident that the dancers had enjoyed their first year of good feeding since the revolution. All were much plumper, and some cynics in the audience argued that another civil war might help their figures. Madame Geister, for example, must have put on 20 pounds since last year, but her technique seemed better than ever.

Along with everything else, prices for theatre tickets have soared in Moscow since the close of last season. Formerly obtainable for the Russian equivalent of about 25 cents, parquet seats this year brought about two dollars at the box offices, and from five to fifteen dollars each from speculators.

The audiences, however, seemed to have no trouble in securing the necessary millions of rubles, and the opening night crowds were a mixture of proletarian and bourgeois theatre lovers.

YOU'LL GET RID OF BLACKHEADS SURE

There is one simple, safe and sure way that never fails to get rid of blackheads, that is to dissolve them. To do this get two ounces of calamine powder from any drug store—sprinkle a little on wet sponge—rub over the blackheads briskly—wash the parts and you will be surprised how the blackheads have disappeared. Big blackheads, no matter where they are, simply disappear and disappear leaving the parts without any mark whatever. Blackheads are simply a mixture of dust and dirt and secretions from the body that form in the pores of the skin. Pinching and squeezing only cause irritation, make large pores, and do not get the blackheads out after they become hard. The calamine powder and the water simply dissolve the blackheads so they wash right out, leaving the pores free and clean and in their natural condition. Anyone troubled with these unsightly blemishes should certainly try this simple method.

There have been strike breakers, trust busters, broncho busters and brute breakers, but now we have "The Ghost Breaker," a new form of hero which Wallace Reid is making popular in his new Paramount starring vehicle of the same name which Manager Carl J. Mueller announces as his feature attraction at the Spencer Square theatre for the last half of the week, starting Thursday, with Lila Lee, leading woman, and Walter Heils featured with the star. The picture, as the title implies, is a ghost story. It is a melodrama with modern trimmings. There is an old Spanish castle in Aragon, which is peopled with ghosts, a lovely Spanish girl (Lila Lee) who is much annoyed by the ghost visitors; a young red-blooded hero, played by Mr. Reid, who bumps into a feud in a visit to Kentucky, just because he happens to be a remote branch of the Jarvis family; a funny colored servant, Rusty Snow, which will introduce Walter Heils as a blackface artist; feud scenes; a thrilling fight in an elevator of a New York hotel; a chase after a liner; scenes in mid-ocean aboard the liner; some fine pastoral effects and so on. All of which supplies color in plenty as well as thrills galore.

Miss Anglin Scores.
Margaret Anglin in her latest medium, "The Woman of Bronze," at the Columbia theatre last night, took her audience through the most trying experiences of emotion and love for nearly three hours, so vividly portraying her part that her audience lived through it with her. It was drama such as one seldom sees in this locality, for such an actress as Margaret Anglin and a supporting cast equal to the one appearing last night infrequently get out of the big cities.

It was the old, old story of love all powerful, the world being too small for three and impossibility of getting happiness through the unhappiness of others. Miss Anglin took the part of the brilliantly fine wife of the more or less weak sculptor, whose weakness was his passion for the pretty, young violinist, Sylvia Morton, a guest in his home and distant cousin of his wife. The wife was what is called old-fashioned in this day, a helpmate to her husband, and of course is responsible for his growing successes. She is willing to "go through hell" for the man she loves and has given her love. A million dollar prize is to be awarded the sculptor whose entry in a contest for a monument to be erected to victory is selected, and Leonard Hunt is competing with the best talent in the world. He has a big, broad vision of the people stirred to better things through the recent war, and hopes to put in the central figure of the woman—"The Woman of Bronze"—all suffering, love and sacrifice of the world. His wife, Margaret Anglin, shuts herself up with him for two months while he strives to complete his work even after she has discovered her fears of their estrangement to be true when she finds her young protegee in the arms of her loved one. Clandestine meetings are held between the girl and the sculptor, and all the while the wife stays, sacrificing herself for the work of her husband, asking only that some day she can stand before the finished work when it is placed in Washington, and the crowds have all left. The girl returns at a studio tea, and the wife heroically plays the part of hostess, while the girl gives way. The wife is told of the bond between her husband and the girl, and the two go away together. Hunt stays with her until the death of her child, and until she learns that their infatuation is not love. Then he returns in the middle of the night to look at his studio. The husband and wife meet, and the sculptor sees in his wife's face what he has been unable to get for the face of his figure, the suffering he has put there and the love which he cannot understand. He is told to stay and finish his work as reparation for the contest in which decision has been postponed for one year, while the wife starts on her journey to France.

Supporting the three central figures, Miss Anglin, Fred Eric and the girl, Eve Balfour was a splendid actor, Max Montrose, who played the difficult part of the simple, good-hearted, unselfish Irish lover of the girl, who stood by his old friend, the wife, through all her trouble.

Melodramatic War Horse.
One of the most remarkable things about the photoplay, "Human Hearts," which is coming to the Fort Armstrong Thursday direct from a successful run at the Chicago theatre, Chicago, and is having its premier in the big theatres throughout the country at this time, is the number of moving picture people who got their start in the business through this melodramatic war horse of the late Hal Reid's. When a new operating company opens a season and wants to put on a sure-fire hit it trots out "Aida." In stock it used to be the same with "Human Hearts." So it is no wonder that so many actors and actresses who are now well known on the screen made appearances in it. "Human Hearts" gave his start to Wallace Reid, son of the author, who played the part of the little girl Grace. Percy Hilton succeeded Wallace Reid in this part. The following actors gained fame in the role of Tom Logan, all

WORKING GIRLS PAID MORE THAN COLLEGE PROFS

Wife of California U. Instructor Pays Budget Compiled by Board of Regents.

Berkeley, Calif., Oct. 17.—The "poor working girl" has it all over a college professor, in the matter of allowances made by employers for subsistence, according to Mrs. Dorothy Hart Bruce, wife of H. L. Bruce, of the faculty of the University of California.

In a letter published in a faculty publication, Mrs. Bruce takes issue with the budget of household expenses for faculty members recently announced by the board of regents.

Mrs. Bruce said in the letter that the professor's wife must "choose between childlessness, or the anguish and humiliation of many years of debt and drudgery" if she expects to live on the salary of her instructor husband. She said that eight other wives of faculty members agreed with her.

Mrs. Bruce said a budget issued recently by a San Francisco teacher of home economics stated a working girl needed $290 a year for clothes to appear well dressed. "That allowance," she declared, "would look big to a professor's wife, whose allowance for clothes is fixed at the pitiful figure of $50."

In the opinion of Mrs. Bruce at least $250 a month is needed to provide the bare necessities for a faculty member's family if he has a wife and three children.
