CITY IS INTERESTED

In Mississippi Improvement Convention to Be Held at Quincy.

DELEGATES FROM THREE CITIES

Mayor and Club and Merchants' Presidents Move in the Matter.

Rock Island should be well represented at the waterways convention, to which reference has been made in The Argus, that is to be held Wednesday and Thursday this week at Quincy. Every city and town of any consequence on the upper river is to be represented. Davenport and Moline will appoint delegates at meetings to be held this evening. Certainly Rock Island is as much interested in the improvement of the upper river and its tributaries as Davenport and more so than Moline, and a large delegation of representative business men and shippers should be named without delay.

To Select Delegates.

This afternoon Mayor Knox, President Medill, of the Rock Island Club, and President Kingsbury, of the Retail Merchants' association, are in conference for the purpose of selecting a suitable delegation to represent this city.

A Thanksgiving Dinner

Heavy eating is usually the first cause for indigestion. Repeated attacks inflame the mucous membranes lining the stomach, exposes the nerves of the stomach, producing a swelling after eating, heartburn, headache, sour risings and finally catarrh of the stomach. Kodal relieves the inflammation, protects the nerves and cures the catarrh. Kodal cures indigestion, dyspepsia, all stomach troubles by cleansing and sweetening the glands of the stomach. Harper House Pharmacy, A. J. Riess' drug store, corner Seventh Avenue and Twenty-seventh street.

Warning, Warning.

Beware of substitutes offered by unscrupulous dealers in place of Foley's Honey and Tar, Foley's Kidney Cure and Banner Salve. Dishonest dealers for a little extra profit will try to palm off worthless preparations in place of these valuable medicines that have stood the test of years, and thus jeopardize the lives of their victims. HINTS FOR FARMERS

Cruelty in Killing Hogs. When hog killing time comes three or four men and boys and perhaps a yelping dog will lay siege to the doomed animal and with much ado will catch and throw the beast, which meantime roars the air with his squealing as though crying justly for mercy, and when at last the knife has been driven home and the arteries severed all at once the quietness of death prevails; the hog rises, totters awhile, ghastly blood pouring from the wound; the animal gets weaker and weaker and finally tumbles over and gives his last dying kick. The man's wife and children and perhaps some of the children of the neighborhood have been silent but horrified witnesses of the direful scene. Now, is not this a delightful picture to present for the inspection of women and children?

A merciful way to kill a hog is to strike it in the head with a suitable implement, producing stupor, then instantly use the sticking knife. This causes instant death. An animal suffers more from fear than it does from death itself. A neat, unobjectionable method is to drop the open side of a suitable long, narrow box down over the animal and then turn box and animal upside down, when the knife can do its work and the box be righted again, that the hog can bleed out properly. Humane men will be apt to pursue one of these better methods. Indeed, many of them do so, but if they will not they should be thoughtful enough to have children absent from hog killing that no evil be done by bad example.—Practical Farmer.

Testing Wheat Varieties.

The Ohio experiment station during the past ten years has tested thirty-four differently named varieties of wheat. The Penquite's Velvet Chaff is used as a standard by which to test the yield, and every third plot is sown with that, and as the yield rises above or falls below that the productiveness and the value are estimated. During the ten years' test the Mealy has made the best showing, having had an average yield of four and an eighth bushels per acre greater than the Velvet Chaff. The Poole, Red Russian and Harvest King are decided to be the same variety, and they have ranged from three and one-thirteenth to three and three-quarter bushels better than the Velvet Chaff, the Gypsy three and three-quarter bushels better and Early Ripe three and a half bushels better than Velvet Chaff. Yet they class the Poole next to the Mealy, perhaps because it has been longer tested or because it stands up better than the Gypsy or Early Ripe.

A Hint to the Wise.

How deep is the manure in the feed lot? But you can't tell until it rains and you have to carry some rocks and place them there, or the barn door. This is as it is on hundreds of farms, but not as it ought to be. If the feed lot is on a hillside, heavy rains may wash this manure away and deposit it in the ravine at the foot of the slope, thus leaving the lot comparatively clean. This saves the labor of hauling it out and spreading it on the field. There is another saving connected with this disposition of the manure. The field crops will be much lighter to haul and will require less horse power for storage, and the part that will have to be sold for cash to pay state and county taxes will bring less money, and "money is the root of all evil," you know.—Farm and Ranch.

Asparagus.

It is not many years since we first saw the Palmetto asparagus roots advertised, but they sell now as cheaply as the older varieties and are claimed to have two advantages. They are probably the earliest or first to send up stalks of market size in the spring, and they are said to be not rust proof, but less subject to rust than the others. Those who intend to set plants or sow the seed next spring will do well to try this variety.—American Cultivator.

Keeping Potatoes.

A little air slaked lime dusted over the potatoes as they are put in bins, barrels, boxes or in heaps on the cellar floor will prevent decay. The lime has a purifying effect, absorbing the moisture, and keeps them sweet, dry and fresh. Five cents' worth of lime will be sufficient for twenty bushels.—American Agriculturist.

Rest With Weeds.

The important difference between the intensive and the extensive farmer is the former keeps his soil busy all the year round and then lets his land rest until the next year because he doesn't want to exhaust it; but he lets it exhaust itself by producing a crop of useless weeds.

Aptary Notes.

If signs of moths appear on the empty combs, they may be fumigated with burning sulphur and should be placed in tight boxes. Italian bees are generally admitted to be superior to the black bees. They are better workers and more easily controlled. Drones and queens are perfectly harmless and may be handled as safely as a fly. Queens only use their stings on other queens.

It is hardly worth while to move bees for the sake of getting rid of moths. Vigor and strength are the most reliable protection. Bees cease breeding almost entirely at the beginning of winter, and it is exceptional if any brood comb is found during that season.

All unfinished comb honey in supers should be carefully removed from the hives and placed away securely and kept clean and bright.
