The Jewelry Story
CONTINUED

We don't show you an old pattern in jewelry or watches, or rings or anything. When you hear of bargains in jewelry, read between the lines—"aged." Old style jewelry, stale as the ice cream from last night's dinner table. If you don't know the age of the style when you buy, you'll find out soon enough, and then a disappointment. People don't want old patterns in jewelry and silver.

Think of a school of dolphins and gold fish, a collection of jewels, peacock's and palms in a stream of rose water catching the waning glow of the sinking sun, on a summer's day and you have a hint of the beauty of some of the styles which we show in our new store.

If you have not seen it, you have a sensation coming.

The following acted as pallbearers: C. J. Larkin, William McEniry, T. B. Reidy, Joseph Geiger and James Kelly, all of this city.

Owing to the expressed wish of the deceased, the service was made simple, and no floral offerings were sent.

Crow.
Mrs. Christine M. Crow, who has for eight years conducted a nursery and florist establishment in this city, died this afternoon at 12:50 at her home, 1623 1/2 Third avenue. Death was due to a cancer of the breast, with which she had been afflicted for some time.

Mrs. Crow, whose maiden name was Christine M. Westphal, was born at Buffalo, N. Y., Sept. 30, 1854. When quite young her parents, Mr. and Mrs. John W. Westphal, removed to Iowa City, and resided there for some years. In 1864 Mrs. Crow removed to Davenport, where her husband conducted a nursery. Her husband, W. H. Crow, who survives, resides in Davenport.

She leaves two daughters, Miss Lucy E. Crow, of this city, and Mrs. Myron C. Long, of Decatur, Ill. Two brothers also survive.

Mrs. Crow was an active member of the German Lutheran church of Davenport. The funeral will be held Sunday afternoon at 2 o'clock, from the home in Rock Island. Rev. W. H. Blanche, pastor of St. Paul's English Evangelical Lutheran church of Davenport, will conduct the funeral services. Burial is to take place at Oakdale cemetery, Davenport.

Motion to Strike from Files Heard by Judge Parmenter in County Court.

Judge Parmenter last evening took under advisement the matters relative to the Thomas Mackin will, which is being contested in both county and circuit courts in various manners.

Both of these questions were taken up at once and the arguments were concluded yesterday. Sturgeon, Stelck & Sturgeon appear for the petitioners, and McEniry & McEniry for the estate.

AGAINST COMBINE

City Council Believes Vertical Pump Out of Question.

PRICE FOR MACHINE HIGH

Indication That There Will be Some Delay in Making a Selection—May Have to Build.

Some of the aldermen are beginning to think that the council is up against a combine as far as the vertical pump is concerned. If one cannot be purchased cheaper than is indicated by the bids now before the body, that class of machine is out of the question. However, there are a number, if not a majority, who prefer a vertical pump to the horizontal. And on account of the few manufacturers making this machine it seems almost impossible to get anything that is independent of the alleged combination.

Decision Distant.
While at times there has been a disposition to equip the waterworks plant as soon as possible with the new pump, since the aldermen have become involved in the actual task of picking out a machine, they have come to believe that little is to be gained at present by haste in making the selection. With the vertical out of the running, the favorites seem to be the Holly, manufactured by the Snow company, and the Allis Chalmers machine. The bids on these pumps were lower than the others on the one that is adapted to the needs of the city.

Will Have to Build.
If the pumps now in operation are to be kept, there will have to be additional room at the plant for the pump, and it now seems probable that such is the case. Definite decision will be reached later.

BULLETS MINGLED WITH MISSILES IN A FIGHT

Two Men and One Woman Engage in Battle on Eighteenth Street About Midnight—No Injuries.

A desperate fight, in which two men and a woman were engaged, occurred last night about midnight on Eighteenth street, just below Second avenue. The three participants came from the east alley between First and Second avenues, and engaged in the scuffle on Eighteenth street, throwing bricks, pieces of wood, and other handy missiles at each other. They were indulging in considerable loud talking and the two men were exceedingly bitter in their denunciations of each other. After a fight lasting some minutes without interference, one of the men took to his heels, and as he went the other fired a revolver at him. The bullet apparently missed the mark, as the runner continued. The other man and woman disappeared a minute later.
