For Miss Barrett.
Miss Zella Barrett, whose marriage to Walter Helmbeck takes place next month, was the honoree at a very pretty party given by Miss Ethel Yetts last evening at her home, 712 Twenty-fifth street, 12 girl friends being the guests. The home was beautifully and attractively decorated in the colors chosen by Miss Barrett for her wedding, yellow and white. Golden rod and white flowers and strings of hearts were effectively used. Bridal guessing contests were played and in the first game Miss Barrett took the favor. Each young lady was then requested to make a menu. The hostess served a delicious luncheon, the wedding colors being carried out in the courses. In the ices were candy hearts on which were sentimental quotations which contributed much merriment. Following the serving of the luncheon Miss Barrett was blindfolded and after being led about the house was placed beneath numerous articles suspended from the ceiling by ribbons. On opening the packages she found many useful and pretty miscellaneous articles. Other games were then played and Miss Mary Hodgson of Moline took the prize. A number of pre-nuptial affairs are being planned for Miss Barrett. Miss Helen Meese of Moline will give a

Is This True of Your Kitchen?

Imagine the condition of the average kitchen—or laundry—on wash-day.

In one corner is a red-hot fire—to boil the water.

In another corner are a couple of tubs and a washboard.

Across the room are clothes-lines from which hang a score or two of half-dry garments.

The room is a sight. It is hot, stic uncomfortable, unhealthy.

An Oversight.
To impress on young children just what should and should not be done and why is among the most trying problems of parents, as evidenced by the recent experience of a West Philadelphia mother. Last Sunday she asked her small son, aged eight, to carry a chair for her from the dining room to the parlor. He started off willingly, but in the hall he tripped and fell. Amid the crash could be heard the boy giving vent to utterances that would have done credit to a pirate of ancient days. The mother was taken by surprise and was greatly shocked. She gave the boy a long and serious talk on the subject of propriety. This apparently did not make the right impression, for when she concluded the boy added to her discomfiture by exclaiming, "I am sorry I swore, mamma, but I forgot it was Sunday."—Philadelphia Record.

"Never had the pleasure," responded the city boarder.

It's Nature.
