

COOKING SCHOOL PROVES SUCCESS AS ANTICIPATED

The Argus Course of Instruction Attracts Much Attention From Women.

AT THE EMPIRE THEATRE

Mrs. E. S. Siple Gives Lecture—Demonstration Before Enthusiastic Audience.

PROGRAM FOR TOMORROW.

MENU:
Baked Ice Cream
Lemon Pie
Meat Croquettes.

Well, we had a great time over at the Empire theatre this afternoon at the opening of The Argus' free cooking school. Mrs. Siple is quite a wizard in things culinary. It seems to me, the nicest thing about Mrs. Siple is that she is decidedly practical. She doesn't talk in terms which we common every-day housewives could not understand, but her remarks flash common sense. Her talk fitted in well with the menu she prepared which was as follows:

Biscuit
Lemon Cake
Salmon Croquettes

After the lecture-demonstration was over, one woman asked Mrs. Siple if she was a suffragist, but Mrs. Siple didn't seem to want to get into a political discussion and evaded the question by saying that she is militant in but one respect and that is in regard to the high cost of living. She said that with a rolling pin and kitchen spoon she loses no opportunity to lambast the aforesaid high living cost, and that if she was not so busy plotting and waging war against the high cost of living, she might not be a suffragist, which by the way, seemed to me as a very clever way of answering the question.

A remarkable thing about today's menu was the manufacture of the lemon cake which was of an extreme rich nature, but which was made without a particle of butter. Mrs. Siple says that she is going to teach every woman in Rock Island who cares to learn, how to make butterless cakes, and thus cut down expenses on this most costly of all cookery products.

BIG SESSION TOMORROW.

Mrs. Siple says that tomorrow afternoon's meeting will eclipse today's in that she now feels a little bit acquainted with Rock Island audience and that she is able, since the ice is broken, to get down to real work on her lecture-demonstrations. The following menu will be served along with a brief lecture which Mrs. Siple states is one of her pets:

Meat Croquettes
Colonial Bread
Baked Ice Cream
Lemon Pie.

Besides baking the ice cream tomorrow, Mrs. Siple says she is going to make some meat croquettes, which although in the nature of a by-product will be as delicious and original as if they cost three times the amount. The lecture-demonstration is called for 3 o'clock sharp at the Empire theatre. Admission is free.

FRESH CAKE TOMORROW.

Mrs. Siple told me that she was going to bake one of her delicious as well as digestible cakes tomorrow afternoon, in addition to the menu mentioned above. She will present this cake to a decidedly surprised as well as delighted woman of her audience.

TODAY'S RECIPES—LEMON CAKE.

Two cupsful flour, one cupful sugar, one-half cupful Crisco, two teaspoonfuls baking powder, four eggs, white and yolks beaten separately, juice of one-half lemon, grated rind of one lemon, three-fourths cupful English currants or seedless raisins cut fine. Cream Crisco, add sugar and cream together. Add the egg yolks beaten to a light yellow. Next add the juice and grated rind of the lemon. Sift in the flour, mix in currants and beat well. Lastly fold in the beaten whites of the eggs.

BAKING POWDER BISCUIT.

Four cupsful sifted flour, four teaspoonfuls baking powder, two cupsful milk, one teaspoonful salt, four table-spoonfuls Crisco. Sift together the dry ingredients. Mixing thoroughly with the Crisco, using a knife or spoon, and add gradually the milk, mixing with a knife to soft dough. Toss on floured board, pat and roll to one-half inch in thickness. Shape with a biscuit cutter, place on a floured tin and bake in a hot oven 12 or 15 minutes.

SALMON BALLS.

One cupful flaked salmon, one cupful hot mashed potatoes, one-half teaspoonful salt, one-fourth teaspoonful pepper, one teaspoonful lemon juice, one egg. Beat together, form in balls. Fry in deep Crisco, hot enough to turn a crumb of bread golden brown in 40 seconds.

Dr. Pablo Desvernine y Galdos, the new minister from Cuba to the United States, has just arrived in Washington. Senor Galdos is a lawyer and a close personal friend of the new president of Cuba, Mr. Menocal. The new minister is no stranger to Washington, for he was one of the official party of Cubans who were sent to the United States by their government to witness the inauguration of President Wilson. WILSON ASKS QUICK ACTION ON CURRENCY laws and then be laggards about making it possible and easy for the country to take advantage of the change? There can be only one answer to that question. We must act now, at whatever sacrifice to ourselves. It is a duty which the circumstances forbid us to postpone. I should be recreant to my deepest convictions of public obligation did I not press it upon you with solemn and urgent insistence.

PRINCIPLES ARE CLEAR.

"The principles upon which we should act are also clear. The country has sought and seen its path in this matter within the last few years—sees it more clearly now than it ever saw it before—much more clearly than when the last legislative proposals on the subject were made. We must have a currency, not rigid, as now, but readily, elastically responsive to sound credit, the expanding and contracting credits of everyday transactions, the normal ebb and flow of personal and corporate dealings. Our banking laws must mobilize resources; must not permit the concentration anywhere in a few hands of the monetary resources of the country or their use for speculative purposes in such volume as to hinder or impede or stand in the way of other more legitimate, more fruitful uses. And the control of the system of banking and of issue which our new laws are to set up must be public, not private, must be vested in the government itself, so that the banks may be the instruments, not the masters, of business and of individual enterprise and initiative.

"The committees of the congress to which legislation of this character is referred have devoted careful and dispassionate study to the means of accomplishing these objects. They have honored me by consulting me. They are ready to suggest action. I have come to you, as the head of the government and the reasonable leader of the party in power, to urge action now, while there is time to serve the country deliberately and as we should, in a clear air of common counsel. I appeal that you share this conviction. I therefore appeal to you with confidence. I am at your service without reserve to play my part in any way you may call upon me to play it in this great enterprise of exigent reform which it will dignify and distinguish us to perform and discredit us to neglect."

HOLDS CLOSE ATTENTION.

The vigor and strength of the president's message held the rigid attention of a large audience throughout its delivery. The chamber was filled with senators and representatives, the galleries were crowded with men and women of the official set and the corridors about the gallery doors jammed with those unable to gain entrance.

The president gave no direct endorsement to the Glass currency bill, which is to form the basis of the democratic revision of banking laws, but in indirect language made it known it was prepared with his counsel and

Long before capitol doors opened today hundreds lined up in a steady rain in the hope of getting to hear President Wilson deliver his address to congress on currency reform. Although attendance was rigidly limited to one card admission for each member of either house and provisions for the president's family and cabinet circle, hundreds clamored for admission. Railings were erected near the entrance doors, guards placed in charge of entrances and a "ticket choppers" box was installed into which tickets were to be thrown as the fortunate applicants appeared.

MANY MEMBERS ABSENT.

There were many absentees among house members and whole rows of vacant seats in the rear of the hall. Mrs. Wilson and two daughters, who were a party of friends, took seats in the executive gallery. The president motored to the capitol through a steady downpour of rain. He reached the capitol at 12:55 and went to Speaker Clark's office, where he met the joint committee and was escorted to the rostrum of the hall. At 1:10 the president had finished reading his address and left the house chamber. It had taken him a little more than nine minutes to read the address. At its conclusion he was greeted by applause. The speaker adjourned the joint session. The house adjourned till noon tomorrow.

DEFENDS GLASS BILL.

President Wilson discussed the Glass currency bill with Washington correspondents today at the regular semi-weekly conference and made it plain he intends to stand as firmly behind it as he does behind the tariff bill. The general principle of the bill he considers clearly defensible, but he expects there will be amendments for detail.

The administration currency bill was not introduced in the house today. Representative Glass explained until some details were changed he could not present it to the house. He expects to introduce the bill this week, however.
